FLYING OCEAN LIFE'S DREAM OF GERMAN ACE

Gronau Tells Thrills of 6 Hops to U. S.

Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau of Germany and three companions who flew across the Atlantic ocean in six hops dropped down in New York harbor yesterday. It is hoped they will fly to Chicago tomorrow or Friday as guests of the national air race committee. Details on page 4.

New York, Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Early this morning we were very low indeed when we saw the fog shut out the sunlight in Halifax and thought that we should again be delayed in arriving at New York. Since Reykjavik we have lived for nothing but this wonderful city. As for me, I had planned for the flight for two years, but I did not tell Zimmer and Klein and Fritz until we reached Iceland, because I did not wish the authorities to find out and to stop our flight.

Last Day the Best.

But, tonight, what I have dreamed of for a life time is accomplished. We had a splendid trip today, the best of the crossing, except for two hours of fog off the Nova Scotian coast. And then, when we saw New York from the air, the immense buildings, the thousands of tiny dots that thronged the streets, the busy waterfront, it was what we call in the old country wunderbar. I followed the pilot plane down and touched the water just off what they told me was the battery. The landing was not difficult, though there were many boats in the harbor and I had to be careful not to let the old plane strike any driftwood, which is very dangerous in a seaplane.

Operator Sticks at Key.

But we are here. And now that we are I want to say how well old Fritz stuck at that key in the after cockpit and to tell you how faithfully Franz Klein climbed up each hour of flight to look at the thundering motors, B. M. W.4, we call them, 500 horse power motors built by the Bavarian Motor works. They are new, but the planes itself is the same old Dornier-Wahl that Lindbergh and Courtney used. Edward Zimmer, one of my students at the Deutsche Verkehrs Fliegerschule, was at the stick with me, and when I was navigating Zimmer kept us on the courses.

Because the plane is old, we had to do a lot of what you call improvising before we started. It is not a comfortable plane to be in a long time. The forward part of the hull has the engine and the towing lines and all such gear as that. And then in the pilot's cockpit, Zimmer and I sat side by side.

I made all the landings and took the stick at the takeoffs, too, because there is only one throttle and it is on my side. Back of the pilot's cockpit was a little place where I kept my navigating gear—the navigating cockpit, we call it, though it is closed over—and I had to use the pilot's cockpit to take my sights. I took along a bubble sextant, lots of charts, but not enough, as I found out, and four compasses. Three of them were magnetic and one was an earth inductor compass, which behaved very well.

A Wind Driven Generator.

Between the navigator's cockpit and the radio cockpit further aft in the hull, is the tank room, where we kept the gasoline. We could only crawl through there, so we rigged up some ropes and a carrier so that I could send messages to Fritz without moving from the forward part of the plane. Fritz had his sending and receiving gear back there, a wind driven generator for the sending set and an auxiliary patrol driven generator. Hans Hack, our mechanic, spent his time in the tank room or in helping Fritz, and every hour, as I have said, would climb up to the great motors and look them over.

We left List, our little flying village, on the isle of Sylt in the North sea, last Monday morning, just nine days ago. I can hardly yet believe it; it seems more like months; in 47 hours of flying we have sailed over 4,000 nautical miles; over ice and icy waters, over Greenland and those other countries I had only read about, and now at last we are here. And it is warm again, almost too warm.

When we left Sylt we shot along

POST IS FIRST IN LOS ANGELES NONSTOP DERBY

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Three flyers in the Los Angeles-Chicago nonstop Derby, who got away from the Pacific coast at dawn yesterday, streaked across the finish line in close order before 30,000 air race spectators at Curtiss field last evening with Wiley Post of Oklahoma City in the lead.

Schoenhair Second to Land.

Following on the heels of Post in his white Lockheed-Vega, was Lee Schoenhair of Akron, O., holder of a half dozen speed records, and ten minutes later William S. Brock, trans Atlantic flyer, slid in for a landing. Col. Roscoe Turner flew in with his lion cub mascot an hour later. All four ships were Lockheed cabin planes.

Post staggered a little as he climbed through his cabin filled with special gas tanks, and stumbled out. He could not hear the cheers that greeted him, for nine hours of a roaring Wasp motor had left him deaf. He took off from Los Angeles at 8:30 a. m. Chicago daylight time yesterday morning, arriving here at 5:39:04. His elapsed time was 9 hours 9 minutes and 4 seconds. He carried 508 gallons of gas.

Loses Way in Iowa.

Over the 1,706 mile beeline course Post estimated that he made better than 192 miles an hour. He headed through the Cajan pass, passed north of Kingman, went up into the mountains and dropped down on to the plains at Pueblo.

"I kept from 11,000 to 13,000 feet over the mountains and dropped down to about 4,000 feet after I left Colorado Springs," Post told reporters. "I lost my way over Iowa when one compass went haywire, and I wandered about for 25 minutes. Then over Chicago I poked around for another 15 minutes or so, trying to find the field.

"It was an uneventful flight, and I didn't see one of the boys who took off with me this morning."

Schoenhair left Los Angeles a half hour ahead of Post although their planes landed here only five seconds apart. Schoenhair got away from Metropolitan airport at 8 a. m. Chicago daylight time and was in the air 20 minutes longer than the Oklahoma pilot. Schoenhair's elapsed time was 9 hours 39 minutes and 17 seconds.

Flies at 15,000 Feet.

Schoenhair reported that he maintained an altitude of 15,000 feet throughout most of his trip.

"I couldn't make out a landmark all the way," he said. "I don't know where I crossed the Mississippi, but I think it was there I lost my bearings and a lot of time."

Bill Brock's time was cut down considerably by a heavy load. He carried radio broadcasting equipment and an announcer, Robert Brown of Cincinnati, who attempted to broadcast the progress of the flight until a couple of tubes burned out.

Brown was a little the worse for wear when he tumbled out of the cabin, where, for more than nine hours he had been cooped up with gas fumes and stuffy air. He had to be assisted from the field. Over Albuquerque, Brown said he was thrown into the broadcasting machinery and received a severe burn on his arm.

In contrast to his bedraggled passenger, Brock climbed down from his cockpit smiling and a lot more collected than the crowds that ran across the field to greet him. Two Early Birds, a fraternity of old time flyers, stepped out from the crowd with two tall steins of beer. He downed one of them, beamed, but spurned a second.

Turner's Gas Tank Empty.

Col. Roscoe Turner floated down on Curtiss airport with an empty gas tank. The huge Hornet motor of his Lockheed express had burned up 535 gallons of gas in the ten hours the plane was in the air. His elapsed time was 9 hours 58 minutes and 41 seconds.

Turner, grinning broadly, stepped from his cabin decked out in one of his colorful sky blue uniforms with many brass buttons. Under his arm was Gilmore, the lion that was a cub when Turner started carrying him on his cross-country flights but whose present dimensions are a bit too large for a playmate.

Trap Student, 17, in Attempt at Extortion

A 17 year old boy, decoyed into a police trap last night, confessed authorship of a half dozen letters within the last week to wealthy south side women, threatening them with death if they did not comply with his demands for money.

He is Benjamin Markowitz, 1136 East 46th street, Hyde Park High school student, a son of Morris Markowitz, trucking contractor, killed four years ago. Roy Tagney, business agent of the Machinery and Scrap Iron Teamsters' union, was tried for the murder and acquitted.

Boy Leads Dual Life.

Young Markowitz was revealed as leading a dual life. By day he delivered flowers for a florist. At night he attempted to play extortionist. All of his intended victims were customers of the florist. The first one to report to the police was Mrs. Henry Stein of 4835 Greenwood avenue. The demand on her was for $4,500. Another was Mrs. Julian Manheimer, 4456 Drexel boulevard, who was asked for $3,000.

They were told to "throw it in a package over the back fence at 4444 Greenwood avenue." Lieut. Michael Woods and Sergt. Phillip Fitzsimmons of the Hyde Park station arranged with Mr. Stein to trap the writer.

Falls Into Police Trap.

Last evening Mr. Stein walked past the back fence at 4444 and tossed over a package. Woods and Fitzsimmons, hiding nearby, waited a half hour before they saw a figure creeping through the grass. They leaped up and he started running. Fitzsimmons fired four shots in the air and he halted.

At the Hyde Park station he readily admitted authorship of the letters, but refused to say what he proposed to do with the money. Lieut. Woods believes he is a psychopathic case.

FIRES TEAR GAS BOMB IN ANGER AT RESTAURANT

After theater patrons last night in Henrici's restaurant, 72 West Randolph street, ducked for cover—and their handkerchiefs—when a fountain pen tear gas gun was fired into the front door by George E. Dickson, a visiting aviator from Pittsburgh. A few women screamed and a near panic was in progress when Traffic Policeman Albert Rosenquist, who happened to be passing, seized Dickson.

Fred Ethke, manager of the restaurant, signed a complaint.

"When I told Dickson I could not admit any more customers," he said, "Dickson started to argue with me. I said I could not violate our rules—that we closed promptly at midnight—and Dickson then pulled his fountain pen gun and let fly."

FLYER, 4,500 FEET UP, FIGHTS RATTLESNAKE; HE'LL SURVIVE BITES

Scott City, Kas., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—H. "Happy" Wiggins, a salesman who pilots airplanes as a hobby, found himself at an altitude of 4,500 feet with a rattlesnake as a traveling companion. Wiggins hurled the reptile from the cockpit of his airplane, but not until after the rattler had struck him twice in the struggle that took place. Wiggins today is recovering from wounds on the hand and arm caused by the snake bites.

After Wiggins had managed to throw the reptile from his plane he headed for a farmhouse eight miles away, narrowly averting a crack-up in a hurried landing in a pasture. Wiggins was given emergency treatment at the farmhouse and then rushed to a physician.

The snake is believed to have crawled into the plane while it was parked in a hangar here.

Cop Leaps in Driverless Auto on Edge of Ravine

Policeman Roland Demgen of the Highland Park police force last night jumped from his speeding motorcycle into a driverless automobile and stopped it on the edge of a 70 foot ravine east of Highland Park. The automobile had been stolen in Evanston and the policeman was pursuing the two boys in it, when they leaped out after heading the car toward the ravine. The boys, who were captured, gave their names as Ray Reynolds and Morton Nellessen.

Peru Seizes Ex-Dictator; to Face Trial

LIMA, Peru, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Former President Augusto B. Leguia today was a prisoner held by the military junta that took over power in Lima after his resignation, yesterday. He was surrendered at 4 a. m., by officers of the cruiser Almirante Grau, on which he yesterday took refuge with the intention of seeking safety abroad.

According to an official statement, the Almirante Grau left anchorage near San Lorenzo island at about 1 a. m. this morning. The officers intended to land the former president at some foreign port.

Surrenders by Wireless.

The cruiser steamed out about 12 miles. Then a wireless from the junta was received threatening the officers with court martial if they did not return within 48 hours. The cruiser put back to Callao harbor, wirelessing that she would surrender.

This means it is understood, that Leguia will face trial for his "misdeeds" in the eleven years he ruled Peru under a dictatorship.

This latest development is credited to both students of Lima and to Lieut. Col. Luis Sanchez Cerro, who led the original revolt at Arequipa last Friday. Both the revolt leader and Gen. Manuel Maria Ponce, head of the Lima military junta, or "provisional government," yielded to the demands of students that the former president be prosecuted.

Will Confer with Ponce.

Lieut. Col. Cerro, insurgent leader, will arrive in Lima tomorrow to negotiate in person with Gen. Ponce and the military junta, announcement was officially made this afternoon.

The junta issued a decree today announcing acceptance of Leguia's resignation "in view of the unanimous opinion favoring its acceptance," and also issued a manifesto outlining its aims for the country and declaring amnesty for political prisoners. The newspaper El Comercio said editorially today that Peru's congress had also been dismissed by the junta.

Rumors that Leguia was dead or dying aboard the cruiser in Callao echoed through Lima late today. They arose as soon as it had been learned that he was suffering from an attack of uremia, of which he has long been a victim. One of his aides, who accompanied him aboard the cruiser came ashore this morning and summoned an American doctor, Dr. McCormack.

The rumor that the former president was dead persistently circulated but efforts to verify it proved useless. Dr. McCormack was quoted in some quarters as saying that Leguia was ill, but not gravely so.

Recognize Rebel Chieftain.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Arequipa dispatches this evening reported that four Peruvian army officers, sent by the military junta in Lima, had arrived at Arequipa today and reached an understanding with Lieut. Col. Luis Sanchez Cerro, chief of the southern insurgents.

According to the dispatches, the officers from Lima recognized the Arequipa junta as the real government of Peru.

Seek U. S. Flyer's Release.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—The state department moved today to bring about the release of Lieutenant Commander Harold F. Grow, United States naval reserve, American aviator held prisoner by the Peruvian revolutionists. In a message sent to Ferdinand L. Mayer, the American chargé d'affaires at Lima, the department asked that "all appropriate measures" be taken to secure Grow's release. Thus far the department has received no information indicating Mr. Grow is in any danger. Mr. Mayer in a message to the department yesterday said the revolutionists had promised to protect foreign nationals and maintain order. The department has had no further information on another American flyer, Elmer Faucett of Savona, N. Y., also reported detained.

Henry Siegel, Big Merchant Once, Is Dead

New York, Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Henry Siegel, former president of the Siegel Stores corporation, controlling Siegel, Cooper & Co. in Chicago, and The Big Store, the Fourteenth street store and Simpson-Crawford company, New York, and Henry Siegel & Co., in Boston, died at the Paul Kimball hospital in Lakewood, N. J.

He was staying at his summer home near Laureiton with his wife when he had a heart attack and was taken to the hospital. Mr. Siegel was more than 70 years old.

Once Great Merchant.

Mr. Siegel, whose home was in Hackensack, was at one time one of the wealthiest and most prominent business men in the city. As a multimillionaire merchant of Chicago, Boston and New York, he was a leader in financial circles here. Bankruptcy and business reverses in 1914 left him almost penniless.

Six years ago he tried to rebuild his fortunes, beginning modestly by opening a small haberdashery shop in Hackensack. At the time he lived in a boarding house there. A serious illness two years ago prevented him from continuing his effort.

Interlocked Structure Falls.

Mr. Siegel's stores went into the hands of receivers in 1914 coincidently with his bank. Henry Siegel & Co., after the bank had made loans to the stores from the depositors' money. Large payments to creditors of both concerns resulted in financial collapse.

Mr. Siegel was married twice, his second wife being the former Miss Henrietta Struble of Scranton, Pa. Lady Julia Cavendish of London is a daughter. She came to this country in October, 1928, upon the first illness of her father and returned after he had recovered.

Expert Investors Are Buying Bonds Now

Gallant Fox is a great horse in his way. But he would be a total loss pulling a milk wagon in place of an old Dobbin who knows his route. One horse isn't like another.

The same with bonds. One security fulfills your requirements if you have a mortgage to pay off in two years. For permanent investment it would be unsuitable. High yield is all important to some. Ready convertibility into cash is the dominant factor for others. In a third case, the safety of a government bond is essential. Choosing bonds suitable for particular needs requires expert advice. High grade houses give that honestly.

Banks are buying bonds right now. So are insurance companies. That's why bond prices are going up. And if sound bonds are attractive to such experienced investors as banks and insurance companies they should be attractive to the individual. It's a good time to talk over your investments with a good bond house.

CO-CHAIRMAN OF FIRST NATIONAL IS HEART VICTIM

Long Conspicuous in Chicago Finance.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Frank O. Wetmore, co-chairman of the First National bank and a figure in Chicago's financial life for more than a quarter of a century, died of a heart attack late yesterday afternoon in his country home near Wheaton. Although he was only 63 years old, his service of 44 years with the First National bank won for him the title of dean of Chicago financiers.

Mr. Wetmore's death was wholly unexpected. While he had suffered from heart irregularities for several years and been under medical treatment occasionally, he had not allowed the ailment to interfere with his work or with his favorite recreation, golf. He had been at his offices in the bank on Monday and appeared in good health and spirits, chatting with his associates and discussing bank affairs.

Feels Ill; Stays at Home.

Arising yesterday morning, he complained to Mrs. Wetmore that he did not feel as well as usual. So he decided to forego a round of golf and stay home for the day. As the morning passed and he did not improve, he telephoned to a Wheaton physician. The latter advised him to go to bed and rest.

Dr. Joseph L. Miller, Mr. Wetmore's regular physician, was out of town. Dr. Richard H. Olsen visited the house at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and the members of the family were much perturbed. Mr. Wetmore had lapsed into unconsciousness. When Dr. Olsen went to the bedroom, he found him dead.

Noted Contemporaries Recalled.

Mr. Wetmore's career as a Chicago banker was contemporary with those of a number of Chicago's noted financiers. Among these were Lyman Gage, one of his predecessors as president of the First National bank and secretary of the treasury under Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt.

Others were James B. Forgan, also president and chairman of the First National; John J. Mitchell, head of the old Illinois Trust and Savings bank and later chairman of the Illinois Merchants Trust company; George M. Reynolds, chairman of the executive committee of the present Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company; and Oscar G. Foreman, chairman of the executive committee of the Foreman-State National bank.

Now Mr. Wetmore's death marks another vacancy in the group of pioneer Chicago financiers of international reputation. Of the older bankers only Mr. Reynolds, Mr. Foreman; Frederick H. Rawson, who shared the title of chairman of the First National, and one or two others survive.

Successor of Forgan.

It was on the death of Mr. Forgan in October, 1924, that Mr. Wetmore became chairman of the First National. He had been elected president of the bank when Mr. Forgan became chairman in 1916. Mr. Mitchell and his wife were killed in a motor accident near Chicago in October, 1927. Other contemporaries whom Mr. Wetmore outlived were Ralph Van Vechten, Edmund D. Hulbert, and Henry Haugan.

Mr. Wetmore was born Nov. 12, 1867, in Kalamazoo, Mich., his first employment was in his father's hardware store. He came to Chicago in 1886 and found a place in the bank he was to remain with until his death.

He began as errand boy and messenger with the First National bank, and in the ensuing years passed through the various stages of banking. His mentor and friend was Mr. Forgan.

Son Dies in Service.

Mr. Wetmore in April of 1890 was married to Miss Marie Louise Barlow of Chicago, who survives him. Two sons, Orville and Horace, were born to them. Orville died Oct. 10, 1918, while in service as an ensign in the United States navy.

Many responsibilities were thrust upon him in his 44 years of service at the First National bank. He accepted leadership in many forms of civic enterprise. Among the achievements credited to Mr. Wetmore is his part in the settlement of Chicago's transit problem. He had studied it for more than 20 years. Much of its success was credited to him.

Ambition Is Realized.

He was for years an official of the American Red Cross. He was chairman of the finance committee of the Red Cross during the world war. In 1925, Mr. Wetmore was elected a member of the federal advisory board of the federal reserve board, representing the seventh district.

One of his ambitions was realized with the consolidation in December of 1928 of the First National bank and its subsidiary, the First Trust and Savings bank, with the Union Trust company. It was then that Mr. Wetmore became co-chairman with Mr. Rawson, who had been chairman of the board of the Union Trust. The consolidation, a $600,000,000 merger, gave Chicago one of the largest banks in the United States.

Buys Wheaton Estate.

In 1928, Mr. Wetmore bought from William H. Lyford, vice president and general counsel of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad, the 80 acre estate near Wheaton, where he had made his year round home. It is one of suburban Chicago's beauty spots. Its brick residence is known as the "Seven Gables." Besides the outdoor swimming pool, it has a sunken garden and a rose garden. It overlooks the Chicago Golf club.

No funeral announcements have been made, except that Mr. Wetmore will be buried in Wheaton.

ANECDOTES OF BANKER

Many stories are current in La Salle street of Mr. Wetmore's quick wit. In matters of business he could be stern and uncompromising. But aside from such occasions his geniality was proverbial.

A few years ago, as the result of a reorganization of a big industrial company, the First National bank joined in selling the company's bonds. However, the company again encountered trouble and the bonds depreciated in value. On Mr. Wetmore's advice the bank quietly took up the bonds it had sold, although not obligated to do so. That was a story he didn't tell, but there were others less serious that he made known.

More Than a Banker.

"While I'm a banker," he once recalled, "I guess I've been in about every kind of business there is. And I do not believe any man has had more fun packed into 44 years than I have.

"I recall once I was in the clothing business, so to speak. The bank had a customer whose note was overdue. He came in to see me and request an extension, but I explained that was impossible.

"'But the clothing business is terrible,' he said. 'I can't pay up. Were you ever in the clothing business?'

"'No,' I said, 'but the note must be paid.'

"'Well, then you and the bank are in the clothing business right now.'"

Speech Is Recalled.

It was last April that Mr. Wetmore celebrated his forty-fourth anniversary in the bank's service. And about the same time one of the bank's employés was retired on pension after 50 years' service. Mr. Wetmore arranged for a little ceremony on the bank floor after business hours.

"John, I can remember you when you gave me orders," Mr. Wetmore said. "And I got even by giving you orders. You didn't pay much attention to the clock and you saw to it that I didn't either. I think you taught me something that has been of value to me—at least, it has enabled me to keep on the pay roll. So we're giving you a watch—your time is your own and we hope you enjoy it to the utmost."

Tremors Felt in Wales.

SWANSEA, Wales, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Several earth tremors were felt here last night but there were no reports of any damage. All south Wales experienced the tremors.

HEIFETZ PLAYS, MOB TUSSLES AT AUER RITES

Famous Violin Master Is Laid to Rest.

New York, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Broadway bade farewell today to the man who taught Mischa Elman and Jascha Heifetz to play the violin.

Perhaps the late Dr. Leopold Auer cared little for Broadway during his lifetime, but that mattered not to Broadway. For he was a celebrity, and today at his funeral a pupil more famous than the master was to play a melody that has been heard thousands and thousands of times on phonographs round the world.

So, while Jascha Heifetz, pale and grave, played the Schubert "Ave Maria" at the bier of his friend and teacher in a Broadway funeral establishment, crowds of perspiring humans pounded on the doors outside, argued stormily with the police, clamored for admission.

And when the service had ended they pressed curious faces against the windows of the limousines in which Dr. Auer's more celebrated pupils followed his body to the grave.

Floral Pieces Torn.

Greedy hands grabbed at the floral tributes, tearing away buds for souvenirs. Several of the pieces were badly damaged.

So great was the crowd, pushing, shoving, milling about, that Mrs Auer was severely jostled. Heifetz had to call out his name to get through. Many of Dr. Auer's old friends and associates were unable to get in.

Among these were Mischa Levitzky, widely known pianist; Max Rosen, one of Dr. Auer's former pupils, and Jacques Gordon, former concert master of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

One Woman Defies Police.

Men and women of distinguished appearance and boys and girls with music portfolios were among the pushing crowd on the sidewalk, in the vestibule, on the stairway. When the crowd threatened to batter down one door that led indirectly to the chapel, police started to clear the place. One woman refused to move. Two policemen carried her away.

In the chapel, four priests in golden robes stood at the corners of the casket and chanted the ancient ritual of the Russian Orthodox church. Josef Hoffman played the first movement of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" and Jascha Heifetz followed him with "Ave Maria," and all was over.

Leopold Auer was no stranger to Chicago. For several years he came here annually to teach a master class of violinists in the summer session of the Chicago Musical college.

BOMB MELROSE PARK HOME.

A small bomb was exploded yesterday under the back porch of the home of Edward Bennish, 1001 North 11th avenue, Melrose Park. The police said it was due to labor trouble.

25 BUS PASSENGERS STRANDED AS OWNER ABSCONDS WITH FARE

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Twenty-five persons, including several women and two babies, were stranded here today, and some had gone without food for two days because a bus line owner absconded with fares paid him by the party which left Los Angeles nine days ago for Chicago and New York.

In Municipal court three drivers were exonerated of charges of operating a bus without a permit, brought by members of the party in an effort to hold the drivers until they obtained refund of fares from B. C. Elliott of Los Angeles, owner of the National Stage line.

The party was due in Chicago last Friday but a series of mishaps delayed the trip, causing the passengers to use funds for food and lodging, and many said they loaned money to the drivers to use for gas and oil and for bus repairs.

The party included Mr. and Mrs. Flagle, Chicago; John P. Sladek, 2227 Elmwood street, Berwyn, Ill.; Michael Ready, 1519 North Western avenue, Chicago; John M. Packhan, 706 North Oakley street, Chicago; Oscar J. Coffell, 724 Delaware street, Gary, Ind.; Edward C. Chisdore, 6241 Ingleside avenue, Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. James Short and baby, 6327 Stewart avenue, Chicago.

KILLED BY AUTO IN OUTER DRIVE; MOTORIST HELD

A man believed to have been Arthur C. Parker, 60 years old, an accountant, from New York City, was injured fatally last night when struck by an auto in the outer drive near Congress street. Parker died shortly after being taken to St. Luke's hospital.

Arthur C. Packard, 20 years old, 226 14th street, Milwaukee, the driver, was held. Packard said the victim stepped from the sidewalk directly into the path of his car.

This death raised the auto death toll for 1930 in Cook county to 645.

Hyman Sliverstein, 61 years old, 5412 Woodlawn avenue, died yesterday at the University hospital of injuries received last Saturday in an automobile accident near Libertyville in Lake county. His wife, Rose, 54 years old, who was driving the car when it plunged into a ditch, was killed instantly.

Morris Van Oost, a janitor, 6111 Calumet avenue, driving his sedan north in the inner drive early this morning, crashed into a safety island at 11th street, wrecking it and receiving a fractured skull and internal injuries. He was taken to St. Luke's hospital unconscious. His condition is critical.

FALL FATAL TO GIRL, 6.

BANK EMBEZZLER NAMES ANOTHER IN $211,000 PLOT

Makes 2d Confession in Hammond Theft.

Another man was implicated last night by Boleslaw Salik, confessed embezzler and secretary-treasurer of the Northern Trust and Savings bank of Hammond, as his co-conspirator in the abstraction of $211,000 in funds.

Salik confessed late Monday that he had embezzled $140,000 from the bank and $71,000 from the First Polish Building and Loan association, affiliated with the bank and of which he served as secretary.

The Second Confession.

Salik is reported to have named an alleged associate in his embezzlement in a second confession, given yesterday afternoon to L. B. Holleman, chief clerk of the building and loan department of the Indiana bank department. Holleman talked for several hours with Salik in the Lake county jail at Crown Point, but would not reveal the name of the man accused or tell whether any new warrants would be sworn out immediately.

Bank Examiner Thomas Barr said he intended to meet the bank directors late in the afternon and intimated that an important announcement may result from this conference. This was believed to refer to the associate reported to have been named by Salik.

Salik was taken from the Crown Point jail, to Hammond last night, and after a conference with Justice of the Peace Albert E. Griffiths it was decided to arraign him at 1 p. m. today. He told the justice that he would waive formalities and that he intended to plead guilty in Criminal court.

Books Being Audited.

The Northern Trust and Savings bank is capitalized at $25,000 and has a surplus of $25,000, its total resources being given as $475,000. Last night Mr. Holleman and State Bank Examiner John E. Myers were auditing the books of the institution and the building and loan association, and would give no indication as to whether the bank is likely to reopen.

Monday afternoon, according to President Paul B. Lipinski of the bank, Salik came to his office and said he was $35,000 short in his accounts. Lipinski called for the directors and Salik began to explain the shortage, gradually increasing the amount.

He had used the money for speculation, Salik said, after having obtained it by abstracting money given for mortgage payments. These mortgages he would continue in the bank's books as "live," paying the interest upon them from his own pocket. He also gave his own notes for a total of $30,000, and paid the interest upon them.

At the home of President Lipinski the family denied published reports that Mr. Lipinski was gravely ill. He has been indisposed, but expects to be at the bank today, it was said.

INDORSE REBUILDING OF MICHIGAN HIGHWAY DETROIT TO CHICAGO

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—At a meeting in Lansing today representatives of counties through which the highway passes, voted to indorse Michigan's proposal to rebuild U. S. Highway No. 12 [Michigan avenue] between Detroit and the Indiana line at a cost of several million dollars. Work probably will start next year, if the administration taking office Jan. 1 approves the plan.

Highway Commissioner G. C. Dillman hopes to make it practically a super highway between Detroit and Chicago, reducing the traffic burden on U. S. 112. Cities are to be skirted and the new road eventually will be a solid ribbon of 40 foot concrete.

The proposed relocations were approved with one exception. Battle Creek asked that the highway pass that city on the north rather than on the south.

Cuban Police Seize Two as Red Party Chieftains

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 26.—Charged with being leaders of the national communist party of Cuba, Mario Rayes and Salustiano Sarrillo were arrested today. Both men had in their possession letters written by Moscow soviet leaders instructing them how to conduct a Red propaganda campaign here.

TWO HELD ON GIRL'S CHARGE.

Anton Konesnick, 18 years old, 2413 South Kirkland avenue, and Charles Wenk, 21 years old, 4215 West 24th street, were held to the grand jury yesterday in boys' court on charges by a 15 year old girl, that during an automobile ride they had attempted to attack her.

MUSICIANS' PAY SCALE SETTLED WITH THEATERS

Chicago musicians employed in motion picture and legitimate theaters in Chicago have renewed their wage agreements with the theater owners for a one year period beginning next Monday.

Announcement of the agreement was made by James C. Petrillo, the president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians. Under the terms of the new pact the pay of the players will remain the same as the old contract provisions.

Garrity Represents Theaters.

John J. Garrity represented the Chicago Theater Owners' association, this group including legitimate theaters. The movie theaters were represented by Jack Miller and John Balaban. Several conferences were held between the union and with each threater group individually.

Petrillo stated the wage scales for union players ranges from $93 to $130 per week. The new agreement will affect approximately 900 musicians.

Agreement Made in Peace.

This year when the union delegation conferred with the theater owners there was a lack of conflict that attended the agreements of the last three or four years. One or two of the disputes ended in strikes.

"Prohibition has curtailed employment of musicians" said Petrillo.

"But the demand for old fashioned folk songs and music has been on the increase during the last three years. The best illustration is noted in the 150,000 attendance at the Chicagoland music festival staged last Saturday."

BEES ATTACK 5 WHEN HIVES ARE SMASHED; ALL SERIOUSLY HURT

Laporte, Ind., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Five persons are in a critical condition today as result of an attack by several swarms of bees, infuriated when their hives were accidentally smashed. The victims are Willard Place, Laporte county farmer, his two sons, Elbert and Roy, a daughter, Mrs. Noah Hadley of Brookville and his granddaughter, Clara Place, Pueblo, Colo. Clara, aged seven, frightened a team of horses while she was on a hay rack and they ran away, throwing her into five hives of bees. The insects swarmed on her and the other four persons were severly stung while trying to rescue her.

PHŒBE OMLIE WINS WOMEN'S DIXIE AIR RACE

Crowds Acclaim Daredevil Aviatrix.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

At 2:6 o'clock yesterday afternoon Phoebe Fairgrave Omlie of Memphis poked the nose of her smart little Monocoupe out of the skies above the Curtiss-Reynolds airport, dropped lightly to earth, and taxied across the field to break an imaginary tape in the women's Dixie air Derby. Her elapsed time from Washington was 11 hours 42 minutes and 21 seconds, and her prize $2,000. It was her second victory in the event in two years.

Four minutes behind the winner, Mrs. Martle Bowman of Los Angeles swooped in and claimed second place and second prize of $1,200. The whirling propeller of her Fleetship herded the crowd around the Omlie plane back toward the field entrance gates as the usual congratulations were showered upon the winner, but mechanics alertly grasped the wings and swung Mrs. Bowman's blue monoplane away from the danger zone.

St. Louis Aviatrix Third.

Laura Ingalls of St. Louis was just four seconds behind Mrs. Bowman. Her third place won her a prize of $800.

Nancy Hopkins of Garden City, L. I., a niece of Charles Dana Gibson, had only 28 seconds to spare when the final flyer in the women's Dixie Derby, Charity Langdon of Norfolk, Va., touched the ground. A sixth contestant, Vera Dawn Walker of Los Angeles, was reported out at Birmingham when her plane developed engine trouble.

Aviation doesn't boast many more dervy feminine followers than Phoebe Omlie. Her reputation is "ace high" in her chosen field. Before she was a pilot, her admirers were relating last night, she was a daredevil wing walker and parachute jumper, with her husband, Vernon Omlie, as the other part of the aerial team. Both of her legs were broken in one of her drops, and she has had several other accidents.

Last year at Cleveland when the women's class B Derby finished at the national air races, with Phoebe Omlie in first position, a reception like yesterday's marked her victory. The fans who crowded around were astonished to see her crawl painfully out of the cockpit with a cane in each hand to hobble to the stands. A stay in a hospital during the intervening twelve months while her ankles were broken and reset has so far restored the use of her limbs that she can walk unaided, though stiffly.

Women's Planes Gay.

Her triumph should almost certainly usher in a vogue for red and yellow as favorite racing colors for women pilots. For both her cabin Monocoupe and the Waco monoplane of Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, who swept in just 24 hours and one minute before to win the Pacific coast "powder puff" Derby, were gayly striped in those bright tints.

Moreover, Mrs. Omlie was faithful to her ensemble effect. For she hopped out to face the cameras and microphones in a yellow crepe sport dress and crimson beret, a silver wishbone dangling from a fine chain about her neck, and wearing neat white and brown sport oxfords and white silk hose.

Her cabin plane made possible the costume she had adopted. The other competitors, in open planes, needed protection for their eyes and clothes, while Mrs. Omlie wore only the same type of brown sun glasses half the spectators in the stands have adopted.

"Great to be here," she laughed as the handshaking started. "We had a dandy trip, though it wasn't monotonous. Did you know that on our first lap, between Washington and Raleigh, the weather was so bad not even the mail pilots were trying to get through, but we Derby racers kept right on going? I think this race proves that there's still a great practical field for the lighter planes for reliable passenger traffic. That's about all."

"What sort of a message do you want to send to the folks back home?" a correspondent for a Tennessee paper called out. Phoebe beamed at him.

"Just tell 'em Miss Memphis came in first," she flashed back.

"Weren't you pretty sure from the first that you'd win?" some one else suggested.

Not Sure of Victory.

"I should say not," she declared. "A race is never won till the line is crossed."

Mrs. Omlie has been piloting planes for the last ten years. She got her first experience at the controls at St. Paul, she said. During most of the ten stages of the hop from Washington she was in the lead. Her lead over her nearest rival, Mrs. Bowman, was three hours and six minutes in elapsed time at the finish. The average speed for the Dixie Derby, Mrs. Omlie estimated, was probably 145 miles an hour.

Today the attention of the women pilots will focus on the scheduled meeting of their organization, the "Ninety-nine" club, at the Drake hotel, to be followed by a luncheon. Miss Amelia Earhart, president of the organization, will be back in Chicago to preside, although she hopped for Pittsburgh yesterday to keep an appointment.

Some discussion of the differences of opinion among the women pilots is anticipated during the meeting. Miss Earhart and others are known to favor competition in high powered planes on the same basis as men.

MAKE AIRPLANES EQUAL OF DRAGON FLY, STOUT PLEA

Asks Complete Revision of Aviation Science.

Man as a flyer must humble himself before the four winged dragon fly.

"It will follow your bait through the air on a fish line as fast as you can throw it, stop, stand still as the hook hits the water, fly back again, stand still in the air, or fly backwards while waiting to catch up with the bait on your next swing," William B. Stout, president of the Stout Engineering laboratories, said yesterday in extolling the wizardry of the dragon fly before the Society of Automotive Engineers. He advised them to try out this kind of flying on their helicopters.

Demands Revision of Science.

There must be a complete revision of airplane engineering within the next two years, Mr. Stout said.

"The plane of the future," he said, "must carry more passengers than our present plane, not only in actual number, but more passengers per horsepower, per pound of fuel, per square foot of wing or pound of structural area.

"Cruising speeds must very shortly approach 200 miles per hour for even our largest transport. Comfort and luxuries must be added far beyond those furnished on any other transportation. Landing speeds must be decreased.

"The plane of today is safe enough once it is given the proper instrumentation. Because people have been created a certain size, we must make the flying wing of the plane big enough so that the wing itself can be six feet thick, so that the people can move about.

Visions Plane of Future.

"The ideal airplane is a wing alone, with everything housed within it. We all believe in the flying wing, but no one has devised the structural and aerodynamic combination that will do the trick. There are many things that we can do, however, with the extreme tapered wing, and I believe it must be included in the future plane.

"A new landing gear is of great importance. We must arrange a simpler method. There must be an entire enclosure of power plant. Something also might be developed if some one started a serious line of experiment on a pusher tail first machine."

HOOVER LIGHTS BRIGHT BEACON THIS EVENING

President Hoover's touch upon a button in the White House tonight will illuminate the Lindbergh beacon topping the Palmolive building and will set in motion a 2,000,000,000 beam candle power light which becomes a government aerial lighthouse under the direction of the department of commerce. Short ceremonies will precede the lighting.

The exercises will be held on the roof of the Palmolive building, at the base of the beacon, where dinner will be served at 7:15 p. m. The dedicatory ceremonies will begin at 8:45 p. m. with a brief review of the history of the beacon by Merrill C. Meigs, chairman of the civic committee. William D. Saltiel, city attorney, will delivery the dedicatory speech, accepting the beacon in behalf of the city. Noted airmen attending the national air races and Col. Lindbergh have been invited to attend.

Calumet Police Seek Bandit Gang in Prairie

Thirty policemen from Gary, Hammond and East Chicago were on a man hunt through the Calumet prairies near East Chicago yesterday afternoon seeking five members of a stickup gang sought following the arrest of two of their band during the morning. Those arrested were Michael Mangus, 20, and Stan Paziczsz, 20, both of Gary.

ASKS $100,000 HEART BALM OF BUSINESS MAN

Edward J. McCabe, vice president of the Kingsbury Beverage company and formerly secretary to Timothy J. Crowe, when the latter was president of the sanitary district, was sued for $100,000 in Superior court yesterday by Miss Alta Brineman, 31 years old, of 1111 Hyde Park boulevard. Only the praecipe of the suit was filed by Attorney David A. Riskind, who said the declaration will charge breach of promise.

Miss Brineman, the attorney said, met McCabe about 18 months ago in a cabaret. They became friendly, he said, and last December she divorced her husband, Abe Kaplan, after McCabe promised to marry her.

McCabe lives at 4928 West Washington boulevard.

WHITE TAM IS EMBLEM FOR PIONEER PILOT

A number of men, and one woman may be seen wandering around Curtiss field wearing white tams. They are not artists. They are Early Birds, members of an organization of those who flew before Dec. 17, 1916.

Spotted yesterday was Miss Marjorie Stinson, who learned to fly on an old Wright pusher, and Earle Ovington, who flew in from Santa Barbara, Cal., with the women's Derby. Ovington was the first air mail pilot in the United States.

P. G. B. [Bud] Morriss, 201 East Delaware, who started in 1910 with a Bleriot, and Jack Vilas, Evanston, who had hydro license No. 6, are two more members.

150 Speeders Are Due at Evanston Court Tomorrow

One hundred and fifty defendants are scheduled to appear tomorrow before Police Magistrate Harry H. Porter in Evanston as the first move in Judge Porter's announced determination to clear his dockets of speed cases. Four hundred warrants recently were issued by Judge Porter for persons arrested for speeding who failed to respond to tickets. Some of the warrents date back to last May.

Debutante Speaks Her Mind to Drive Crowd Off Plane

The crowds were around Nancy Hopkins' plane. She is the Washington and New York debutante who came in fourth in the Dixie Derby. A pair of greasy mechanic's overalls emerged. Nancy in them. Hands on hips, she surveyed the crowd clambering around her plane. "Hey, you," says Nancy of the aristocratic lineage, "get the hell off the wing—it's only fabric, y' know."

Gilmore, the lion cub of Lieut. Roscoe Turner of Los Angeles, was quite spent when his master came in last in the Pacific Derby. The cub had to be carried from the plane.

Eddie Schneider, the fair haired 18 year old youth who recently broke both junior transcontinental records, flew in before noon yesterday to enter some contests.

The navy dirigible Los Angeles will not appear at the races. The second request of the directors of the race association to have the big ship make a trip here has been turned down by navy officials, as was the plea made several weeks ago. The Puritan, however, has been representing that class of aircraft at the show.

Louise Thadden, who won last year's powder puff Derby, will fly in tomorrow from Pittsburgh, it is expected, with Amelia Earhart. Miss Earhart went to fetch Mrs. Thadden. Mrs. Thadden will leave her month old son behind.

While it is a matter of pride with aviators here never to be caught in helmet, goggles, or flying suit later than three minutes after they climb out of their planes, not so with the women flyers. Mrs. Betty Lund, for instance, has worn a new flying creation daily throughout the races. Her latest is a pique suit of pea green shorts and blouse. Ankle socks and shoes of green complete the costume.

CROSSING OCEAN LIFE'S DREAM OF GERMAN FLYER

over the North sea with pretty fair weather conditions and a strong tail wind which made that the quickest lap of our journey—about 700 miles in six and a half hours. We had often hopped over to the Faroe islands and I knew a little cove there called Transesvaag where we had stored some petrol.

It was raining, very very hard when we came there, so there was nothing we could do but just set the plane down on the water, cover up the motors as best we could with some canvas tarpaulins and wait for it to stop. We stayed there overnight and on Tuesday we took off for Reykjavik.

We started in clear weather, but we had not gotten far before we ran into a mighty fog bank lying before us and going up very high. It is strange flying into fog. At first just for a moment there is always an uncomfortable feeling, but then one gets used to it.

Flys Through Fog for Hours.

We flew through the fog for hours, and Fritz kept getting messages from ships and stations reporting a head wind. I always want to get down low when there is a head wind for the wind is usually not so strong near the sea. So we came very low and could see that the sea was very rough, but there was no head wind. All the way to Iceland we kept getting messages reporting head winds yet we had a tail wind all the way. About six hours we were in the fog and then suddenly all was clear and we saw the island before us.

Great white snow mountains, strangely shaped, stuck up from the rocky coast and inland we saw the foaming hot springs and the steam from the boiling water. The clouds of steam were yellow and white; the yellow, I suppose, came from the sulphur springs. Just before we got to Reykjavik we swooped down into the lips of a crater and above a beautiful lake deep in the crater.

We had a very kind reception in Iceland and it was good to sleep in fine beds at a good hotel.

Great Storm Outside.

Wednesday it rained fearfully and there was a great storm outside and we were glad to be in port. And on Thursday we spent the day in refueling and in getting ready for the long leg to Greenland. Just as before, it was splendid weather when we left Iceland, but before an hour we ran into a storm. And it kept up almost the whole way. For seven hours it blew hard from the north, about forty miles an hour, I think. And the air was bumpy so that piloting was hard.

It rained hard too, and there was mist so that we could not see far and had to fly close to the surface of the water. The sea was very rough and we did not like to look upon it. So, we were all relieved, I think, when we first sighted pans of floating ice. For the sea is seldom rough in an ice field, the ice breaks the force of the wind and the water does not "kick up" so much. After ten hours we saw Greenland's barren coast.

Flys Slowly Over Coast.

The old Dornier-Wahl rain-soaked, but still humming along, rounded Cape Farewell, in what should have been for us, about sunset, but because we had been flying with the sun, it was still early afternoon in Greenland. We flew slowly over the coast because I wanted to see where I had sent some petrol in case of an emergency landing. But they were so little, and the huts of the Eskimos so small we could scarcely see them.

Then we landed in Ivitgut, in the Greenland afternoon, and the Eskimos were stolidly amazed. We had a splendid reception from the manager of the Creolite factory, the only one of its kind in the world; and we had a real dinner and slept in real beds and we had not expected that in Greenland.

Saturday morning at 8 o'clock as we prepared to leave it was very fine weather at Ivitgut, though the town had just had a report from a steamer which was trying to get in the fjord and couldn't find the entrance because of fog. We took off, though, and then we had our only accident, and we were lucky, very lucky that it wasn't worse. Just as the plane lifted from the fjord the propellor for our driven radio generator, a small propellor, driven by the slip stream, broke to pieces, "exploded" really, for it made an awful noise and smashed all to bits. It wrecked the generator, but fortunately it didn't do any harm to the tail of the plane or to our elevating rudders.

A Petrol Driven Generator.

We had the petrol driven generator, you see, but that was hard. Because it had to be cranked by hand each time we started it, and it couldn't be kept going long because it becomes too hot. We got off all right the second time, but soon ran into the fog the steamer reported.

We climbed and climbed and got over the fog, then we couldn't use our driftmeter and so I got out the bubble sextant, while Zimmer took the stick, and I made some shots of the sun. They weren't very accurate because we couldn't get a true horizon on account of the fog.

We managed to stay above the fog for a time and the sun shone, but then clouds came above us and the fog below and we were shut in a world alone. We glided down toward the water and skimmed along above the wave tops, so close that we had to reel in some of the radio antenna. At about a ten foot height.

We sped along for almost six hours, until suddenly we saw ahead of us icebergs, blue, green and huge. Then we knew we were near land and soon we found it. The rugged cliffs of Labrador rose sheer from the sea before us, great and gruff and grim, but they seemed glorious to us.

Thank God, we are over to America, we said, and had a drink of brandy around to celebrate it. But we don't know where we are, even if we are here, was our second thought. But our luck was still with us and we soon found out. We flew right over Greedy island and saw the masts of the radio station there and that was a landmark and we knew we were not far from Cartwright.

At Cartwright we were wonderfully taken care of by the Hudson's Bay company factors. When we first landed we thought we had struck a band of robbers, for all about us swarmed boys and men with long beards. We found out they were only college lads from America working at Cartwright for Dr. Grenfell, who, they all said, was the patron saint of Labrador.

We left Labrador Sunday morning at 7 o'clock, skirted the Labrador coast and tried to find Greenly isle. I had long wanted to see that, but we lost it in the fog. So then, despite a ten degree error in our compass, off Newfoundland, we came on to Nova Scotia. When we found weather conditions in Halifax so bad we landed at Queensport and I guess you know the rest.

German Flyers Reach New York

New York, Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau and three companions who flew from Germany across the Atlantic ocean in six hops dropped down in New York harbor this afternoon in their Dornier-Wahl flying boat.

Capt. Von Gronau and his companions were uncertain late tonight as to their plans for the next few days. A telegram from Clifford Henderson of the National Air Races at Chicago asking them to visit the show as guests of the race committee was one of the first messages delivered.

"We hope to go to Chicago and to Washington," Capt. Von Gronau said, "but first I must report to my government. Then I must talk with my representatives here. I do not know that the engines of my plane are in condition to fly in this warm climate after the trip across the ice wastes."

Should the flyers decide to go to Chicago, and their representatives here considered it likely they would go Thursday or Friday, there will be plenty of planes available. The Dornier company of America and the Fokker Aircraft corporation both will place planes at their disposal.

The German flyer's unheralded and partly extemporaneous flight in a five year old plane was made in forty-seven flying hours. He took off from the Isle of Syit in the North sea, the fartherest north German soil, Aug. 18 and landed here at 3:45 p. m. after a fast run from Halifax, his last stop. He had covered 4,000 sea miles, or about 4,670 land miles.

It took less than eight hours to fly down from Halifax, but more than three hours were consumed in getting from the Battery to a midtown hotel.

Five thousand persons greeted the flyers when they landed in the bay and the city welcome boat Macom was on hand with official welcomers. After a brief stop at the Battery the flyers returned to their boat and flew it to North Beach airport, where it was anchored.

phons and pulled its whiskers, provoking a few jungle snarls.

The winner of the non-stop race will not be decided until Goebel makes his attempt which may be started any time before the final day of the race meet. He must land here between 1 and 7 p. m. If any of the flyers feel they can better the time they made today, they may go back to the coast and try it over again, but they all seemed satisfied to let their marks stand last night.

The arrival of the non-stop derbyists climaxed the fourth day of the nation's big air show at Curtiss field, before the second largest crowd of the meet.

Await Lindbergh Visit.

Spectators are looking forward to the arrival here of Col. Lindbergh from New York. Word from there yesterday indicated that the flying colonel was planning a trip here with Mrs. Lindbergh, but that he would be unable to make an extended stay.

A big delegation of Franco-Americans were on hand to applaud the performance of Marcel Doret, the Frenchman, who followed the English, German and Italian flyers into the air. Capt. Fritz Loose, the German pilot, was in this third American plane this afternoon. It was a Savoia-Marchetti amphibion, unsuited for stunting, so he contented himself with a straight flight. These foreign flyers who have been performing separately before the crowds for the last four days, will take the air together Saturday afternoon in the first international race in the history of the national air meets.

Goebel May Fly Today.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Arthur Goebel, Pacific ocean flyer and former holder of the American transcontinental speed records, said tonight he expected to get away at 7 a. m. Chicago daylight tomorrow in the nonstop Derby race to Chicago.

Results of Air Race Contests

The men's nonstop Derby from Los Angeles and the women's Dixie Derby were the outstanding events at the national air races at Curtiss field yesterday. U. S. GETS SEIZED AIELLO RECORDS FOR TAX INQUIRY

Evidence of Huge Incomes Found by Raiders.

$55,725 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,725 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle. Of the $25,000 reward offered by The Tribune, $10,000 will be paid to any person who will give confidential information identifying the slayer of Lingle. All information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in room 305 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

Evidence seized by Pat Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson, in a raid upon the Rogers Park home of Joe and Dominick Aiello, leaders of the Zuta-Aiello-Moran gang, has been turned over to the federal government, and may result in prosecution of the gangster brothers for income tax frauds.

This was learned yesterday as government investigators pored over the records taken from the Aiellos. It was said that evidence of the Aiellos' traffic in alcohol, of their bank accounts, and of extensive transactions in real estate was taken in the raid and delivered to the office of District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson.

Mr. Johnson has been for some time engaged in a campaign to punish and imprison gangsters and corrupt politicians and public officials through investigation of their income tax payments. The fraud perpetrated against the government by the Aiellos is sufficient, it was learned, to cause them to be given heavy penitentiary terms.

The district attorney's campaign has already resulted in the conviction of Ralph Capone, brother of Scarface Capone, and Gene Oliver, a member of the board of assessors, both of whom have been sentenced to prison terms.

Florida Quiz Involves Zuta.

Developments in the Chicago investigation of the murder of Jack Zuta, vice lord and gang chief, had a repercussion yesterday at Jacksonville, Fla., where three men are facing trial on a charge of conspiracy to assassinate Gov. Doyle E. Carlton.

Attorneys for the accused men caused the issuance of subpoenas for many witnesses, including the governor, and the manager of the Western Union office at Orlando. The latter is directed to produce copies of all telegrams addressed in 1929 to Frank Gross, 22 West 5th avenue, Gary, Ind., the originals of which were found in one of the secret safe deposit boxes of Zuta.

The telegrams, together with a letter addressed to Gross, indicated that an effort had been made to influence Florida officials, and Gross, when interviewed, declared he had sought to arrange for protection in the operation of a gambling house in Miami, which was to be financed by Zuta.

The defendants in the case are Fred O. Eberhardt, Tallahassee publisher; Frank Ralls of Jacksonville, former political campaigner for Carlton, and Henry Halesna, Jacksonville real estate operator. The witnesses were called for today, when a preliminary hearing will be held.

Hotel Man Cited.

Robert Kloeppel, manager of a Jacksonville hotel, was summoned, with instructions to bring with him a list of all telephone calls, dinner checks and charges made to Vincent C. Giblin, attorney for Al Capone, Chicago gangster, during the month of August, 1930.

Policemen carrying a warrant for Peter Von Frantzius, sporting goods dealer, charging him with being accessory to the murder of Alfred Lingle on the ground that he sold the weapon with which Lingle was killed, were unable to find Von Frantzius yesterday. The warrant was issued by Judge John H. Lyle.

DIES AS RESULT OF FALL.

Fred A. Kouka, 71 years old, 10639 Drew street, a retired policeman, died yesterday at the Englewood hospital of a fractured skull, sustained when he fell down a flight of stairs at the home of his nephew, Henry Hattendorf, 10633 Drew street.

Ground was broken yesterday at the University of Chicago for the first of two residence halls for undergraduate students, which will be completed next autumn at a cost of $3,000,000. They include a men's unit to accommodate 400 students between Greenwood and Ellis avenues, and a women's unit between Woodlawn and Kimbark avenues in 60th street. Part of the construction cost was donated by Julius Rosenwald.

SEIZE SUBURB'S BOOKS ON MOTOR CLUB'S CHARGES

The village records of North Riverside yesterday were placed in the hands of Assistant State's Attorney William A. Rittenhouse, who is investigating charges made by the Chicago Motor club that automobilists have been victimized in a "kangaroo court" in the western suburb. The records were obtained by means of a subpoena ducas tecum.

Attorney Joseph Braun, representing the motor club, said his organization will send questionnaires to 600 or more persons arrested in the suburb from April to August. He hopes to present evidence to the grand jury within the next two weeks.

The prosecutors hinted that they expect to get evidence on "fines" said to have been collected from couples caught in "petting parties."

The prosecutor yesterday questioned David McHale, president of the village board; Joseph Densfield, treasurer; Arthur Andresen, village clerk; Alonzo T. Ulrich, police magistrate; Otto Martinek, chief of police, and Edward Emons, a lieutenant.

T. W. PAGE, DEMOCRAT, APPOINTED TO TARIFF GROUP BY HOOVER

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Thomas Walker Page, an economist and a Democrat, was appointed by President Hoover today as a member of the reorganized tariff commission.

His selection was regarded as indicating an intention to place experts on the commission as Mr. Page has had long experience in tariff matters, having been a Taft appointee as a member of the old tariff board in 1911 and 1912 and later a Wilson appointee as a member of the tariff commission from 1918 to 1922. He served as chairman of the commission during the last year of the Wilson administration and the first year of the Harding administration.

President Hoover last week announced the selection of Henry P. Fletcher of Pennsylvania, former minister to Italy and other countries and former undersecretary of state as chairman of the tariff commission. Four other members remain to be appointed.

WHEAT PLANTING CUT; FARM BOARD PLEASED OVER IT

Sees Success for Its Program.

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Kansas Democrats aligned themselves today with Clyde M. Reed, Kansas' Republican governor, in opposition to the wheat acreage curtailment program of the federal farm board. Resolutions adopted by the state Democratic council opposed the reduction in acreage of "any crop which can be produced with profit in this state."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—A large measure of success already has been achieved by the federal farm board in its campaign to reduce wheat acreage, according to a wheat production forecast issued today by the bureau of agricultural economics of the department of agriculture.

Seedings this fall of winter wheat will be 4.5 per cent less than seedings last fall if August intentions of farmers are carried out, the report asserted, adding that the 41,392,000 acres indicated is "the lowest intended acreage since 1923." Farm board officials interpreted the report as especially significant, coming as it does at a time when efforts are concentrated upon the problem of reducing wheat surplus.

Live Stock Prospects Better.

Further hope for the farmers was held out by the agricultural economics bureau in a second report declaring that economic conditions in the cattle industry are likely to improve in the next twelve months, despite the feed shortage caused by the drought.

In its wheat outlook report the bureau pointed out that this is the third consecutive year of decrease of intended seedings since the peak year, 1927, when farmers reported in August an intention to seed over 19,000,000 acres of winter wheat. The report says:

"Nebraska and Oklahoma farmers report an intention to decrease seedings 13 per cent this fall, Illinois 8 per cent, Colorado 7 per cent. Decreases of 5 per cent are reported for Texas, Montana, and California. Other important states mostly show decreases of from 1 to 4 per cent except Washington, which reports an intended increase of 50 per cent. Most southern states except Oklahoma and Texas intend increases, Virginia reporting 2 per cent, Kentucky 10 per cent, Tennessee 20 per cent, and North Carolina 25 per cent more than last fall.

JUDGE'S THREAT FORCES BOOKING OF RAID VICTIMS

Sixty men arrested in raids on alleged handbooks yesterday provided a casus belli between the police and the judiciary last night that culminated in an ultimatum by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude that he would cite Acting Commissioner Alcock and Sergt. Fred L. Buerger for contempt if thirteen of the men were not booked.

Previously other judges had interceded for various prisoners on the same grounds, among them Superior Court Judge Peter H. Schwaba and Municipal Court Judges Francis P. Borrelli and William R. Fetzer. They were told that Alcock had ordered the men held until 7 this morning without being booked.

It was 6:20 last night when Judge Trude delivered his ultimatum, and at midnight Sergt. Buerger, acting on advice of Alcock, issued orders to book all the prisoners. Those lucky enough to make bond were immediately released.

POLICE RAID TWO HANDBOOKS.

Two handbooks were raided in the downtown district last night by Sergt. Thomas Foley and a police squad from the First district station. The places raided were: 353 West Madison street, Ruben Raff booked as keeper; 40 North Wells street, Joseph Bradley arrested as keeper and six inmates arrested.

Traylor Heads Drought Relief Finance Body

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank of Chicago, and head of the Illinois drought relief committee, was selected today as chairman of a committee representing all the states to draft a final financial plan for extending aid to farmers in the stricken area.

Mr. Traylor's committee was named at President Hoover's conference at the White House with the banking representatives of the various state committees. The group will meet again tomorrow morning, when the Traylor committee will submit its recommendations. At the same time a joint report will be submitted by spokesmen for the department of agriculture, the farm board, farm loan board, and treasury and a specific program will be agreed upon.

In a general way the conference today approved the tentative program already suggested by the President and his advisers calling for the creation of state and county credit corporations to obtain funds from the federal intermediate credit banks and lend money upon farmers' notes.

Based on Coöperation.

"I feel that this is a practical plan," Mr. Traylor stated following the conference. "In many places in Illinois and other states local credit corporations already are in existence and can readily be used. Of course, we cannot expect a direct outlay of cash by the federal government. It will be a matter of coöperation and coördination."

Mr. Traylor added that the work of his committee would be to "reduce to writing" the program discussed at the conference.

Railroad Report Presented.

Other states represented at the White House meeting were West Virginia, Ohio, Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Indiana, Missouri, Texas, Louisiana, Kansas, Tennessee, and Virginia. Indiana's representative was Elmer Stout of Indianapolis, president of the Indiana State Bankers' association.

Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, chairman of the federal drought relief committee, presided at the session, which was attended by various other federal agencies concerned in the drought problem.

"Everybody showed a spirit of helpfulness and a desire to set up machinery that will really help the farmers and help them speedily," Secretary Hyde said, following the meeting. Mr. Hyde presented at the meeting a report from the American Railway association showing that the railroads already had transported 665 carloads of feed and live stock at special half rates which were put into effect in the affected areas. Most of the hauling thus far has been in Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, and Maryland.

Mr. Hyde also announced the appointment of a federal "coördination committee" which will assist the federal and state committees in their work. C. W. Warburton of the extension bureau of the department of agriculture will head the group. Other members are A. Lane Cricher, traffic expert; Joseph A. Becker of the crop reporting board, and W. A. Wheeler marketing information expert of the department of agriculture.

County Starts Work on Dempster Street Crossing

A steam shovel started excavating yesterday for a grade separation at Dempster street and Milwaukee avenue, the first two-level crossing of important rural pavements to be built in Cook county. The event was witnessed by President Cermak of the county board; Commissioner Boutell, chairman of the board's grade separation committee; Lafayette Markle, chairman of the board's advisory committee, and representatives of motor clubs.

Lets Engineers Know He Will Be on Job.

The proposed State street subway will have a continuous station platform extending from Lake street to Polk street, according to information given yesterday to Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, at a meeting of the subway engineering commission. Other stations will be located at Clark street and Chicago avenue at Grand avenue and State street and at State street and Roosevelt road.

The location of the station entrances has not yet been definitely determined, Faherty was told. At the suggestion of Maj. R. F. Kelker Jr., chief engineer of the commission, that they might be placed on city property at street intersections Faherty objected that such locations might not be feasible for a subway that is to be constructed by special assessment.

Asks About Progress.

The meeting was attended by Faherty to learn the answers to 28 questions he has asked on the progress of the subway plans. The plans, it was explained, must be sufficiently complete to permit contractors to bid on the job before a public hearing can be held on the subway.

Many of the questions asked by Faherty related to technical details which have not been definitely settled by the commission. After the last of Faherty's questions had been put, Maj. Kelker estimated that 50 per cent of the information desired by Faherty had been available. Faherty then was asked to stay and listen to the report of progress prepared by Kelker.

"No, I guess I'll run along," answered Faherty. "I will give you men two or three days more to get the information I need.

"You know that if I am to build the subway this work will have to be done fast. My term in office expires in April. I have heard subway talk for twenty-five years, but I never expected to be in a position to have something to say about subway construction. Now, that I am in that position, my time is short."

Faherty Reveals Intentions.

Faherty also indicated that he intends to take an active hand in a conversation with George M. Wisner, chairman of the engineers, and again when the engineers were discussing contracts to dig bores for samples of subsurface soil.

"Will the fact that the pay rolls have to be approved by both you and Ald. Joseph B. McDonough, chairman of the council local transportation committee, delay us?" asked Mr. Wisner. "Is McDonough out of town?"

"It will make no difference," answered Faherty. "You need really only my signature. You don't need McDonough's."

The engineers had been informed by Joseph Moody, consulting engineer in the department of public works, that a bond of $25,000 must be posted with that department if a contract is let to a company to open the streets in making bores for subsoil tests. Maj. Kelker said that he had had several "unsatisfactory" conversations with Moody regarding the matter.

"Never mind that," broke in Faherty. "Just go ahead with the work."

Proposes Subway Extensions.

Faherty also suggested to the engineers that the subway be extended beyond the point where the elevated trains are to enter it to offset possible objections that the subway is being constructed solely for the benefit of the elevated company. This matter and others, such as ventilation, sound deadening and a number of technical details are to be settled by the engineers as rapidly as possible.

In discussing the foundation for the subway Maj. Kelker stated that some members of the commission thought it can be floated on clay without piling or caissons. He said that caisson construction would add $10,000,000 to the subway cost. The entire cost of the bore, he said, has not been determined.

Aurora Complains of Du Page County Racket; Chicago Truck Traffic Held Up by Rival Unions

Du Page county, neighbor of Cook county on the west, has a few rackets which State's Attorney Chauncey Reed of that jurisdiction said yesterday are not as irksome to his constituents as to outsiders. That statement was confirmed by complaints from Aurora manufacturers in Kane county that they have trouble in getting their trucks through Du Page county on their way to and from Chicago.

Aurora's factories are mostly open shop, according to a spokesman for them, and their truck drivers are caught between a crossfire of the Chicago Teamsters' union activities and of local No. 146, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers—a Du Page county union. The boss of the Du Page county union is Fred Waldt, its secretary and treasurer.

Other Lines of Racketeering.

It is charged that Du Page county citizens suffer from racketeers also in the milk business, the cleaning and dyeing industry, and in several other ways, but hauling is called the chief problem. Milk dealers are to meet today at Aurora to discuss possible remedies.

The milkmen say they suspect that Terry Druggan, who made his money in unlawful beer, is behind the movement to "organize" them so their shipments to Chicago will have safe conduct. Terry applied for a permit to engage in the milk business in Aurora, but the officials there turned him down.

But the chief trouble, according to Aurora business men, is in getting their trucks through Du Page county. It was explained that if the drivers join Waldt's union—as some of them have—they get into difficulties in Chicago because they are not members of the Chicago union, and if they are Chicago union members—as some are—they find trouble in the Du Page county territory ruled by Waldt.

Factory Man Talks.

"Our Waldt union drivers can't get to the Chicago docks and freight depots for their loads," said a representative of one of Aurora's many factories. "And if they are not Waldt unionists they are waylaid before they get to Cook county.

"A bunch of railroad ties was dropped on an Aurora truck as it passed under a subway in Du Page county. Another time a crowbar was dropped on a truck, point down. Many drivers have been beaten. A few joined the union.

"We're ready to fight. At times we had to send our trucks to Chicago in caravans, convoyed by guards in other machines. There have been fifty or sixty instances of stopping our trucks in Du Page county in the last year and on a few occasions there were reprisals. Some of our fellows caught the Du Page union sluggers and gave them some of their own medicine.

"Our men don't want to join either union. They get better than union wages. To them the union is just a source of revenue for the walking delegates."

Tell of Vandalism.

In Aurora there was mention of a series of acts of vandalism in Du Page county—a truck from Elgin was dumped over near La Grange; a dredging outfit was bombed near Naperville; wires were torn out of the home of Chauncey McCormick because the "wrong contractor" was hired; paint jobs were spoiled because outsiders did the work.

"If the racketeers can control the teamsters of our section they can control our business," an Aurora business man explained. "They can tell us to whom we may sell and from whom we must buy. We get the backwash of racketeering from Chicago, and the liquor business there must be mad now, because they are paying so much attention to our industries."

The Aurora people said they believed State's Attorney Reed of Du Page county was doing the best he could. Their own police and prosecutors have been of great assistance, but if Reed could keep the Chicago racketeers out of his county Kane county would not be bothered, it was said.

"Du Page is a union county," Mr. Reed explained. "The majority of our residents are unionists, and we have no quarrel with that. I have had complaints and have acted on them. But our people can't be blamed for the provision usually inserted in all contracts that at least 70 per cent of the labor hired must be residents of Du Page county. I understand such provisions are inserted in all building and road contracts.

"Outside contractors have reported tieups and other trouble when they brought in outside workmen. But those matters are usually settled without it being necessary for me as state's attorney to take a hand. We are now investigating the throwing of paint bombs on newly painted buildings. We are never tolerant of racketeering or vandalism."

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

NAVY MAY CLOSE LEAST EFFICIENT SHORE STATIONS

Retrenchment Survey Is Being Made.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Plans for the consolidation of several naval shore establishments, the scrapping or closing down of a number of other stations, and the disposal of all possible obsolete equipment are under consideration by the navy department as a part of its contribution to the Hoover retrenchment program.

As many as a dozen yards and shore properties no longer considered necessary to the efficient operation of the naval establishment face elimination or drastic curtailment of activities, largely as a result of an exhaustive study of naval activities made by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke and chiefs of bureaus of the navy.

Could Save Millions.

Naval officers in touch with the situation state that millions of dollars could be saved in maintenance costs through the closing down of certain shore properties, the disposal of other plants, and the sale of all surplus equipment not needed by the navy at present. The navy yard at Charleston, S. C., the naval plant at New Orleans, the naval ordnance plant at South Charleston, W. Va., and the naval torpedo plant at Alexandria, Va., are shore properties virtually certain to be affected by the economy survey.

It is considered possible the upshot of the Jahncke survey may be the consolidation of all naval yards on the Atlantic coast into half the number maintained at present. It was pointed out in this connection today that the Pacific coast, with 65 per cent of the fleet has but two yards, while the Atlantic coast has five large yards and numerous small shore plants. Political pressure thus far, however, has blocked all attempts to cut down the naval overhead by closing shore properties along the Atlantic coast.

Secretary Ordered Survey.

After announcing that Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams had ordered a study made of naval activities and a report prepared disclosing wherein economies might be effected Mr. Jahncke said.

"In this study every naval appropriation and every naval activity has come under scrutiny. In making these studies the fact has become apparent that the navy is operating certain stations and shore properties which cannot be regarded as essential to its efficiency, the operation of which from an economic point of view cannot be successfully defended, especially in times of financial stringency."

She Eats Raw Onion Every Day and Lives Past 101

GIVEN EQUAL SHARE WITH EMPLOYER'S KIN IN 5 MILLION ESTATE

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 26.—(AP)—More than forty years ago, Rachael B. Superior began working for Enoch F. Berrisford, St. Paul baker and confectioner, and for many years she operated a small candy store for him.

Today his will was filed and "for her work and the trust and confidence reposed in her," it specified that she should share equally with his five daughters in his estate which was given a value of $5,191,585.

The bulk of the estate comprises stock in a baking enterprise.

British Spinster Sees Paris "in the Nude" and Calls Cops

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 26.—The sudden arrival of hot weather after weeks of cold and rain was responsible today for a very "Parisian" incident in the Bois de Boulogne.

Miss Daisy Shrewd, 55 year old British spinster, left her hotel in the fashionable Passy district at 6 o'clock this morning and sauntered into the nearby bois to take her morning constitutional—an old British custom.

Sees Satyrs and Nymphs.

She was walking along the bridle path admiring the sunrise when she noticed a quintet of three men and two women "clad" like satyrs and nymphs, only less so, disporting themselves on the grass—an old French custom.

The shocked Britisher let out an indignant exclamation and the quintet jumped to their feet, picked up stray articles of clothing and scampered off through the trees. Miss Shrewd set off in pursuit, brandishing her Britannic walking stick and shouting for the gendarmes.

The strange marathon ended at the automobile road, when the quintet piled into a Rolls-Royce piloted by a bored looking chauffeur, and disappeared in a burst of speed just as the gendarmes panted up in answer to the spinster's alarming "whoops."

Bois Cleared by Police.

This was the first incident of this kind in a long time. The bois was once famous for these unconventional picnics, which sometimes included an assembly of 40 or 50 couples on warm nights. This kind of diversion was extremely popular among jaded roués and blasé society women, and police frequently arrested dignified senators and ministers' wives in raids.

Recently Prefect of Police Chiappe has taken stern measures to clean up the bois, and amateurs in this kind of rustic sport have taken to frequenting the small forests on the outskirts of Paris, which are not so well patrolled by the police.

GIRL AMNESIA VICTIM DENIES IDENTITY OF KIN

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 26.—(AP)—A young woman who was identified today as Viola Johnson, 23, of Vineland, N. J., by Charles Johnson, Indianapolis, denied she was his sister and objected to accompanying him and his wife to the Hoosier city. She was taken away by the brother, who said he would place her in an Indianapolis hospital. Johnson said she was a victim of amnesia.

The girl, who said she was Mary Wilson, arrived here June 13 from Clarksburg, W. Va., without funds and was taken to a hospital as an amnesia victim. After all attempts to identify her had failed she was taken to a girls' training school.

Mrs. Mabel Laubsch, Vineland, N. J., also identified the girl as her sister from a photograph circulated by police. Mrs. Laubsch said the girl enrolled in the Shenandoah academy, Newport News, Va., to study to be a missionary, but last March it was found her sister was not there.

JONES SAYS HE DIDN'T WRITE JONES DRY ACT

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Senator Wesley L. Jones denied today that he was the author of the "five and ten" law providing severe penalties for prohibition law violations.

The senator said he introduced the measure in congress at the request of the department of justice.

"The idea did not originate with me," he said. "The bill was drawn by and came from the department of justice."

$486,000 EXTRA ASSESSMENTS ON PAVING PROJECTS

Supplemental assessments totaling $486,000 on seven paving projects, for which the original assessments made five years ago are now insufficient to meet the costs, were ordered yesterday by Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements. The extra assessments were agreed on at a public hearing. No objections were raised by property owners, who were told that the city will pay the additional amounts.

The board also decided to proceed with plans for the opening of Orchard street to make it a continuous thoroughfare between Clark street and Ogden avenue. Abbott court, now a 20 foot alley, would be widened to 66 feet and extended north to Clark street north of Diversey parkway. Ald. Arthur F. Albert [43d] has objected to the plan.

The opening of the street was made possible by the judgment entered yesterday by Superior Court Judge Edward M. Mangan in the condemnation proceedings brought by the city. The suit involved 29 parcels of property, for which the owners were awarded damages of $462,200, of which the city will pay $164,300.

Not only is engine and chassis wear reduced, but you save 12 to 20 per cent in gasoline and oil. Free Wheeling with positive gear control does more than save money . . . this great engineering evolution, manufactured under Studebaker patents, and obtainable only in the New Series President and Commander Eights, brings to motoring a sense of freedom it has never known and never can know without free wheeling.

Free Wheeling makes gear changing astonishingly easy and quiet. You can shift, back and forth between second and high, and never touch the clutch! In fact, you need use the clutch only to start or back up.

What will thrill you most in Free Wheeling is the consciousness of a new kind of power . . . power liberated from mechanical constraints . . . yet with the full braking power of your engine instantly available just as in conventional cars.

Highway commissioners, safety directors throughout the country have voiced approval of Free Wheeling, with positive gear control.

Come, treat yourself to this driving thrill! Try Free Wheeling, the culmination of 78 years of Studebaker leadership in continually transforming transportation into something incomparably better.

You shift from high to second, back and forth, at 40—50 miles an hour, and never touch the clutch. You need use the clutch only to start or back up.

The braking power of your engine is available as readily as in conventional cars.

For the first time in a motor car you get the full benefit of momentum automatically. When your car has gone 10,000 miles your engine has "worked" only 8,000 miles.

You save 12 to 20 per cent on gasoline and oil—even more in heavy traffic.

Strains on engine, transmission and axle are lessened. Tires wear longer.

There is nothing new to learn—Free Wheeling with positive gear control is simplicity itself. You drive just as you do in a conventional car.

MEDICAL SOCIETY TRIES DR. HARRIS, NOTED SURGEON

Charges Grow Out of His Connection with Clinic.

Another incident in the conflict among members of the Chicago Medical society over advertising and low cost clinics as problems of professional ethics came to light yesterday when it was learned that Dr. Malcolm L. Harris, noted surgeon and a leader of American medicine, has been brought to trial before the ethical relations committee of the society.

Dr. Harris last year was president of the American Medical association and has been president of the Chicago Medical society. In recent years, particularly during his term as president of the American Medical association, Dr. Harris has struggled to have the medical profession adopt measures to reduce the cost of medical care.

Charges Against Dr. Harris.

The charges preferred against Dr. Harris were that the Chicago Policlinic Medical Center, of which he is surgeon in chief and president of the board of trustees, had been guilty of advertising, and that it was a corporation engaged in the practice of medicine.

All the other physician members of the clinic's board of trustees also were summoned for trial with Dr. Harris.

The case of another noted physician and philanthropist, Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, who was ousted by the Chicago Medical society on charges that he was associated with the Public Health institute, a low cost clinic which used advertising, is still pending before the judicial council of the American Medical association. Dr. Schmidt, who championed the rights of charitable clinics and argued that they provided a means of bringing expert medical care to the middle classes at a price they could afford to pay, appealed to the council from the decision of the Chicago Medical society.

Report to Council in October.

Dr. Nathan S. Davis III., secretary of the Chicago Medical society, said last night that the charges against Dr. Harris and his associates had been heard two months ago, and that a report would be made to the council of the society, which meets in October.

Dr. Harris had agreed to make changes in the advertising matter used by the Chicago Policlinic, and to restrict distribution, Dr. Davis said, and upon this agreement the ethical relations committee decided to make a report to the council recommending that the charges be dismissed.

The accusations were brought by Dr. George L. Apfelbach, a member of the council, former president of the north side branch of the medical society. He presented a circular which had been issued by the clinic, and, which he said had been widely distributed on the north side.

On the first page of the circular, the name and address of the clinic was given and a statement:

"Supplying a small fee health service to all persons not able to pay the fees charged by private physicians."

Statement of Clinic.

An outline of the hours and the types of medical service offered by the clinic was then given, and on the back page was the following announcement:

"The Chicago Policlinic has recently reorganized its clinic facilities into a modern medical center.

"Here good medical care on a small fee basis is being given to men, women and children not able to pay the fees charged by private physicians.

"Social service agencies, hospitals, clinics, physicians, medical and personal directors of industries and others are invited to send such persons for examination or medical care, or both.

"Careful, kindly medical attention and good social service will be given. Patients will be treated or examined and referred back with recommendations.

"When the new Henrotin-Policlinic hospital is completed, the center will occupy modern quarters therein, using the entire second floor at La Salle and Oak streets."

Dr. Apfelbach said the circular allowed the inference that private physicians charged high fees, or that they would not accept charity patients. He objected also to the paragraph in which directors of industries were invited to send patients to the clinic, and said this constituted unfair competition with private physicians who are debarred from advertising.

Dr. Harris was notified of the charges and, upon appearing with his associates for trial, told the members of the ethical relations committee that he had already caused part of the circular to be changed. The committee members asked that other parts be changed, and Dr. Harris agreed.

The phrase on the front page of the circular, as amended, now reads: "A clinic for patients of limited means." On the back page, the second paragraph now says: "Here good medical care is given men, women, and children not able to employ physicians."

Clinic Proposals Rejected.

Dr. Harris for years has sought to have the Chicago Medical society take over the Public Health institute, and operate it by district for the benefit of the profession and of society. Before reorganizing the Chicago Policlinic he offered to turn it over to the north side branch of the society, but both proposals were rejected by the council of the Chicago Medical society.

It was learned that the ethical relations committee agreed to recommend dismissal of the charge that Dr. Harris' clinic was a corporation practicing medicine, and that the members recognized that this charge could not be sustained.

JAMES A. COMMONS.

PROF. COMMONS SEEKS HIS SON, GONE SINCE AUG. 1

Madison, Wis., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Prof. John R. Commons, distinguished economist of the University of Wisconsin, is looking for information regarding his son, John A. Commons, who disappeared on Aug. 1 of this year. His car was found abandoned in Chicago Aug. 4, but it is not known that he went to Chicago.

When last seen in Madison Mr. Commons was mentally confused and under the impression that he had been repeatedly attacked by an unknown person and his life threatened in an anonymous letter. He was a lieutenant in company K, 339th infantry, Russian expeditionary forces. He was experienced in agriculture and may have sought work on a farm. His description follows: Age 38, 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighed 150 pounds, black hair, thick dark beard unless shaved daily. When last seen he was wearing duck trousers and a tennis shirt.

Prof. Commons asked today that information concerning the whereabouts of his son be communicated to him. He is anxious to get in touch with him and believes it is only because of his mentally confused condition that he is staying away from home.

DUKE OF ALBA TO LEAD DAWES INTO NEOLITHIC CAVES

SANTANDER, Spain, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Europe's oldest art gallery — the paintings of wild beasts made by prehistoric man probably more than 10,000 years ago on the walls of the Altamira caves near here—was ready for inspection by Charles G. Dawes, United States ambassador to Britain, upon his arrival on an archaeological mission today.

Mr. Dawes will have an excellent opportunity to study the ways of Spain's neolithic inhabitants. The duke of Alba, one of the foremost patrons of research into the riddles left by ancient man all over this country, expects personally to accompany the American to the famous caves considered by scientists to be of surpassing importance in the study of man's evolution.

Spain's foreign minister and America's former Vice President have in common the same passion for trying to find out what ancient man did and why. Gen. Dawes and Dr. George Grant MacCurdy, director of the American School Prehistoric museum, will go to the southwestern part of Spain to see other stone age remains at Niebla and the Rio Tinto mines.

Dry Agents Raid Capone Still in Calumet City

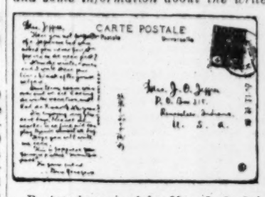
Prohibition agents raided a 500 gallon alcohol still at 901 Green Bay avenue, Calumet City, yesterday, making eleven alleged Capone distilleries wrecked there in a week. Another alcohol still was raided at 175 Torrence avenue, Lansing, the seventh for Lansing in a week. A saloon at 164th street and Cicero avenue, Oak Forest, where inmates of the Oak Forest Infirmary allegedly purchased liquor, was raided. Tom Shields was arrested.

Girl Bookkeeper Robbed of $868 on Way to Bank

Two men who leaped from an automobile at Maypole and Kedzie avenues yesterday took $868 from Miss Ellen Larson, 24 years old, 4936 Barry avenue, bookkeeper for a laundry at 3128 West Lake street, as she was en route to a bank.

INTERESTING LETTERS

If you have received a letter from an interesting or little known place send the envelope to The Tribune, stating name of place where it was mailed and some information about the writer of the letter.



Postcard received by Mrs. J. O. Jeffries, Rensselaer, Ind.

"This postcard was sent to me by Teru Kanazawa, a young Japanese, whose home is on the island of Sado, where his father is a Buddhist priest," Mrs. Jeffries writes. "His address is Kubota, Niku, Sado, District of Niigata Prefecture, via Yokohama.

"I met his older brother in college in Iowa several years ago, and he asked me to send a postcard to his younger brother ,Teru, who was then a student in the University of Tokio. I did this and have received a number of interesting cards in return."

The postcard which Mrs. Jeffries inclosed reads as follows:

"'Mrs. Jeffree: Have you not forgotten of a Japanese lad who asked you never forget forever in the near past? Now the winter comes and I write these few lines to ask after your welfare. Our term exam was over and we are having the winter vacation and had the Christmas and New Year. I am enjoying very pleasant days, because the weather is so fine and can play tennis almost all day. Hope you will write me soon. I'm yours friend, TERU KANAZAWA.'"

Sado is an island belonging to Japan, lying 32 miles west of Niigata. The port is Ebisia. Another town is Aikawa, in the vicinity of which are located several of the gold and silver mines for which Sado is noted. They have been worked extensively from early times.

Tablets that fly

Old Napoleon's armies "marched on their stomachs." But the modern aviator carries light food and travels fast. There is probably no other nourishment so concentrated, and at the same time so delightful to the taste, as Horlick's Malted Milk tablets. That's why Byrd carried them to the Pole. For Amelia Earhart, Chamberlain, Maitland, Kingsford-Smith et al. they are standard flying ration. A delicious confection. A tired shopper's delight. Dainty food for delicate stomachs. PUT C. E. PEACE IN G.O.P. VACANCY LEFT BY JOYCE

Legal Tangle Left by Death Is Settled.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Charles E. Peace, ward committeeman of the Forty-second ward, was made the Republican nominee for state senator from the Twenty-ninth district yesterday.

Peace succeeds to the vacancy on the Nov. 4 ballot left by the recent death of State Senator John T. Joyce. Lawyers advised the Republican organization that Senator Joyce's death automatically terminated the contest brought against him by Wallace F. Kirk and that, since the official returns showed Joyce the victor, there was a vacancy on the ballot.

Kirk Ruled Out.

The lawyers ruled further that Kirk, the runner-up, could not claim the place and that it was up to the senatorial committee of the district to refill the nomination. Two of the three members of the committee, Charles J. Agnew and Walter McCarthy, affiliated with the Pike-Peace ward organization, voted for Peace. The third member, Robert M. Woodward, a nominee for the lower house of the assembly, did not participate.

This action, politicians believed, will end discussions of the vacancy problem which have interested politicians ever since the death of Senator Joyce. The arguments were chiefly legal and concerned the question of whether Kirk could succeed to the place the returns showed he lost, whether the still pending recount could be completed, and concerning the machinery for filling the nomination in the event a vacancy was found to exist.

Take Schroeder's Advice.

Nowhere in the legislative primary law could be found a specific provision concerning the filling of such a vacancy. The only authority specifically given to the senatorial committee is to determine the number of its party's nominees for the lower house and to fill a vacancy in its own ranks.

But one of the lawyers who held that it was within the power of the district committee to fill Joyce's place was Werner W. Schroeder, author of the general primary law of 1927 and its companion, the legislative primary law, who is considered an authority on the election statutes. He cited a section of the legislative act which picks up the methods used in the general primary act which were omitted from its own provisions.

The general primary statute specifies that a party's managing committees shall fill vacancies in nominations—the state, county and city managing committees—and, in absence of a committee by that title, for the senatorial committee—Attorney Schroeder said he believed the senatorial committee was the one to act.

G. O. P. Action Commended.

Chairman Snow, in a conference of leaders of the Republican county organization, reported that he had received commendations for the action of the state convention in binding the party's nominees for congress to abide by the results of the triple referendum on prohibition placed on the ballot by his organization.

Among the congratulatory messages he received were letters from the Crusaders and from the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, both of which, he said, include many former drys who have been convinced that the settlement of the liquor question has not been accomplished by prohibition. Snow said that only a small majority of last ditchers would be dissatisfied with the action of the convention and the pledge given by Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, nominee for the senatorship.

Discredits Dry Move.

Snow said no anxiety had been caused by rumors from what he considered anti-McCormick sources that the Anti-Saloon league is looking around for a dry candidate to put up as a third entry in the senatorial race. He predicted such efforts would meet with little encouragement.

The one possible candidate mentioned in this connection is Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill of Downers Grove, now completing four terms in the Illinois house after being beaten in an attempt to displace Senator Richard J. Barr last spring. The vote in that primary was: Barr, 38,354; O'Neill, 15,627.

Mrs. O'Neill did not take an active part in the Springfield convention last Friday. She spoke briefly before the resolutions committee but did not advocate the dry cause from the floor. She is now at a northern Wisconsin resort and efforts to communicate with her by telephone were unsuccessful.

MORE MEN WORKING, GREEN REPORTS; SEES COMEBACK IN FALL

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—A slight turn for the better in the unemployment situation was noted today by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

"Unemployment reports from trade unions in August foreshadow the fall increase in industrial activity," said Mr. Green. "While the decrease in unemployment was only three-tenths of 1 per cent, we feel that even this small improvement is encouraging, because it indicates that a turn for the better probably took place even as early as the first part of the month.

"Most of our reports are for the first few days of August, and none later than the 16th are included."

VERBAL BATTLE OPENS RACES FOR CONGRESS

Hull Chides Fess for His Praise of Hoover.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—The congressional campaign was on in earnest today with a war of words between Republican and Democratic leaders.

Accepting the record of the Hoover administration as the paramount issue, the Democratic national committee issued a statement by Representative Cordell Hull [Dem., Tenn.] in reply to last night's radio address by Senator Simeon D. Fess [Rep., O.], chairman of the Republican national committee, lauding the President's achievements.

Hull Speaks His Mind.

Representative Hull, who is the Democratic senatorial nominee in Tennessee, challenged Senator Fess' assertions with respect to the "unparalleled accomplishment is leadership which the administration has shown" in dealing with the business situation following the stock market crash of last fall.

"During the weeks preceding that debacle," said Mr. Hull, "Mr. Hoover made numerous speeches and in no one of them was the slightest hint that he appreciated the imminent crisis and, of course, not a word of warning.

Assails "False Statements."

"The chairman of the Republican national committee was naturally supposed to praise the administration, but it was not expected that he would go so far from the facts. According to this administration apologist a serious crisis was impending following the stock market crash, threatening that men would be thrown out of employment, productive industry would be at a standstill, and nation-wide suffering impending if not actually realized.' The inference is that because of the steps taken by President Hoover none of these things occurred. Unfortunately they did occur and still remain."

Representative Hull disputed Senator Fess' statement that there has been no retaliation by foreign nations on account of the new tariff law and said that his enthusiasm for the farm relief act is not shared by the farmers.

Republicans Hit, Too.

The Republican national committee contributed to the verbal political bombardment with a statement by Senator A. H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] declaring that "Mr. Shouse and his noisy headquarters have put fiction and fiddle faddle on a mass production basis." Senator Vandenberg was referring to a declaration by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the national Democratic executive committee, that no steps had been taken by the tariff commission to investigate duties specified in various resolutions adopted by the senate. Senator Vandenberg said he had knowledge of the summoning of Michigan furniture manufacturers in connection with duties on their product.

Senator Fess made it known during the day that he intends to remain at the Washington headquarters of the Republican national committee during the greater part of the election campaign after the primaries are over. He will leave tomorrow for Meadville, Pa., to make a nonpolitical speech and then will rest for a week at his home in Yellow Springs, O.

Senator Fess indicated that President Hoover will refrain from active participation in the campaign. Former President Coolidge, he said, may make one speech, presumably in the Massachusetts senatorial contest.

3 Year Old Girl's Feet Are Cut Off by Mower

Shelbyville, Ill., Aug. 26.—(AP)—An attempt to scare her father as he came around the house on a horse drawn mower cost 3 year old Mary Shields both her feet this morning. Mary, who was hiding around the corner of the house, jumped out and cried "boo daddy." She landed feet first among the rotating blades of the mower. Both feet were severed above the ankles.

BLEASE LEADING IN SENATE RACE; RUNOFF LIKELY

Has Up 10,000 Margin Over Byrnes.

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Senator Cole L. Blease had a lead of 10,000 votes over former Congressman James F. Byrne in 576 out of 1,528 precincts in today's Democratic senatorial primary.

With many of the larger precincts unreported, the count at midnight was:

BLEASE, 52,152.
BYRNES, 42,408.
CARON W. HARRIS, 18,518.

A second race between Blease and Byrnes will be staged Sept. 9 if this lead is maintained in the later returns.

Olin D. Johnston, foe of the $65,000,000 road bond issue, had established a lead of more than 9,000 votes over A. Frank Lever, his nearest competitor, in the eight cornered race for governor.

Collins Wins in Mississippi.

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Congressman Ross Collins tonight appeared to have been safely reelected over Robert Harrelson by a three to one majority on the face of incomplete and unofficial returns from today's Fifth district primary election. Collins, the only Mississippi congressman to face opposition, was given 9,000 votes and Harrelson 4,134 votes, with but 1 in all ten counties of the district.

No Opposition to Borah.

Idaho Falls, Idaho, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Senator William E. Borah, Republican, will be unopposed for reelection in November. This was decided today when the state conventions met. The Democrats voted not to put a candidate in the field against Borah. The Democrats voted to name candidates to oppose the state's two representatives in congress—Burton L. French and Addison T. Smith, Republicans.

The Republican delegates followed their support of Borah with the nomination by acclamation of Representative Burton L. French of the First district and Addison T. Smith of the Second district as candidates for reelection.

Fitts Leads in California.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 26.—(AP)—On the basis of complete returns from 511 precincts out of 10,282 in the state, Mayor James Rolph Jr. continued to lead the field for the Republican nomination for governor in today's state primary.

The figures: Rolph, 22,478; C. C. Young [incumbent], 14,017; Buron Fitts, Los Angeles district attorney, 10,355; Milton Young, 232.

Incomplete returns, however, from 2,007 precincts, including 1,652, or a majority of Los Angeles precincts, where Fitts was conceded to be leading, gave the Los Angeles district attorney a majority over Rolph and Gov. Young.

The figures: Rolph, 83,194; C. C. Young, 33,639; Fitts, 88,184; and Milton Young, 232.

BANKHEAD CHARGES G. O. P. AND KLAN JOIN HANDS TO AID HEFLIN

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 26.—(AP)—John H. Bankhead, Democratic nominee for United States senator from Alabama, charged at a meeting of party leaders here today that an independent ticket sponsoring Senator J. Thomas Heflin for reelection was headed by leaders of the Ku Klux Klan.

Mr. Bankhead declared that in a number of counties leaders of the opposition movement had met with Republican committees "for the purpose of agreeing on a fusion ticket and a wedlock ceremony for the two parties."

"The Republicans contend," he said, "that when once scrambled into a Republican Ku Klux omelet, it will become a Republican omelet."

Mr. Bankhead spoke before a special session of the state Democratic executive committee which barred Heflin from the Democratic primary. Heflin then headed the independent movement that is offering opposition to the Democratic ticket in Alabama for the first time in thirty years.

CAPTURE LIQUOR BOAT IN CHASE; 1 MAN IS SHOT

Newport, R. I., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Three alleged rum runners were captured aboard a liquor laden speed boat off Newport early today as a result of a chase in which one man was shot and wounded.

A fourth member of the crew, who is known as "Chips" Munson of Fall River, Mass., is under guard at a Newport hospital. He was severely wounded by a bullet in his chest fired by the crew of coast guard patrol boat 134 in an effort to halt the flight of the smuggling craft. Munson was the engineer of the boat.

The capture was made off Prudence island shortly after 2 a. m. The boat was taken to Providence pending arraignment of her crew.

Coast guard officers said the boat was one of the most elaborate ever captured in this vicinity. She was powered with three Liberty motors and the hull was constructed of mahogany throughout. To give emphasis to the impression that she was a simple pleasure yacht the crew was arrayed in new uniforms and yachting caps.

4 FACE DETROIT RECALLED MAYOR AT POLLS SEPT. 9

Recorder's Judge Resigns to Make Race.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 26.—(AP)—The eve of the final day for filing nominating petitions in Detroit's special mayoralty election found four candidates qualified to oppose Mayor Charles Bowles, who was recalled by the voters July 22 and automatically became a candidate for reelection.

Two of the candidates—George Engel, former chairman of the civil service commission, and Frank Murphy, who resigned today as a judge of Recorder's court—avowedly are in the race to the finish.

The others are Harold H. Emmons, former police commissioner, and John W. Smith, former mayor and three times opponent of Bowles in races for the office. The latter two have not stated whether they will remain in the race, but Emmons has proposed that all of the candidates confer and agree on one man to oppose Bowles.

Today's developments in the race were the filing of petitions containing 80,000 names for Murphy and the withdrawal of Richard W. Reading, city clerk, who said he acted "in the interest of concentrating opposition to Bowles."

Murphy came into the race in spite of an earlier statement in which he indicated that his running was contingent on Bowles' withdrawing. Bowles has insisted that he will not quit.

Candidates have until Friday to withdraw from the race. The election will be Sept. 9, concurrent with the state-wide primary.

STREET CAR VICTIM DIES.

Morris Rose, 32 years old, 915 Wrightwood avenue, conductor for the Chicago surface lines, was held to the grand jury yesterday on a manslaughter charge following the death of Edwin Krause, 16 years old, 5013 North Lockwood avenue. Krause was struck by a street car driven by Rose, Aug. 3.

"DO YOU INHALE?"

WE ASKED 106 SALESGIRLS AND 83 QUICKLY TOLD US, "YES!"

They can't smoke in the store, of course—so that lunch-time cigarette is prized.

We knew we were getting expert opinions when 83 out of 106 salesgirls gave us answers almost identical:

"Sure I inhale! It's the only way to get the real taste of a cigarette."

The other 23 might just as well have said the same, for all cigarette smokers inhale to some degree—consciously or unconsciously.

That's why WINGS, the new AIR-COOLED cigarettes, have won so quickly so many thousands of smokers. All the fine tobacco in WINGS is "air-washed." Every hint of dust, dirt and those other irritating particles that heat up a smoke are "air-washed" away!

NO MORE CRUSHED OR HALF-EMPTY CIGARETTES!

Every salesgirl was immediately interested in our query. All who had tried WINGS seemed to chime in with this comment of one of the girls: "I inhale WINGS at lunch time and I only wish I could take a 'drag' behind the counter."

WINGS!

Touring Information for Your Holiday Trip

Thousands of motorists now are making plans for Labor Day. Saturday, Sunday and Monday will be holidays for most motorists and they are going to be somewhere on the road. Some are going back to visit their old homes, others will spend the week end with friends; possibly you have planned a trip to some lake.

You will want maps and logs. You will want to know the shortest and best route to your destination; you may want information concerning hotels.

This information is available. The artist has reproduced faithfully a daily scene at the main touring bureau of the Chicago Motor Club. One hundred thousand members of the club obtain travel service at the main touring bureau downtown or at any of the sixty-four branches in Cook county and downstate.

You save money and you travel in greater comfort and security, when you get specialists to route you.

Civic work, such as good roads work, road widening, fighting speed traps, and working for sane laws and ordinances, are among the other general services.

In addition to travel service, the club provides members with such services as these:

Free mechanical first aid and towing service at any hour of the day or night.

Bail bond service, which guarantees your appearance in traffic violation cases, where a bond not in excess of $100 is demanded.

Accident prevention work, which seeks to cut accidents, especially among school children, by means of safety posters and by fostering school boy patrols.

Home district service, which attends to special conditions around your home, such as seeing to it that refuse is promptly removed.

Insurance service, which provides the following features: The valued form policy, which in the event of total loss, pays the face value of the policy. Accessories are covered without additional charge. Last year the "exchange" returned cash savings to subscribers amounting to $711,332.11. Automobile insurance sales amounted to $3,894,706.04.

Write or call for further information. Sixty-four branches: 34 downstate; 30 in Cook County.

There is a branch in your neighborhood.

STATE AND NATION.

The chief justice's meaty address before the American Bar association contained, it seems to us, nothing more timely or worthy of reflection than his remarks upon the balance between state and nation.

"However difficult it may be," he said, "in constitutional interpretation to maintain perfectly and to the satisfaction of all the balance between state and nation, it is of the essence of American institutions that it should be preserved so far as human wisdom makes this possible, and that encroachments upon state authority, however contrived, should be resisted with the same intelligent determination as that which demands that the national authority should be fully exercised to meet national needs."

This warning should be taken to heart, not merely by the judiciary, which has for its most important function the protection and enforcement of our constitutional system, but by the legislature and the people. The full weight of defending the profoundly wise distribution of powers and responsibilities between the federal and state governments should not rest upon the courts. It should be shared by the law making bodies and by our citizenship. Laws should not be demanded by the latter, nor enacted by the former, which heedlessly disturb this balance. Yet this is constantly being done, partly under the urge of plausible need and partly in heedlessness of the larger issues involved.

In the early days of the republic a generally wholesome if sometimes excessive or misplaced jealousy of state rights prevailed, but as we passed beyond colonial days and the nation as an economic entity developed, our tendency has been to overlook the vital element of local self-government, though it is the chief preservative of individual right and the most efficient agency of social regulation.

Fortunately for the domestic harmony and the preservation of those liberties which it is the very highest interest of the American people to conserve for themselves and their posterity, there is now observable a reawakening of the earlier sense of the importance of a just and secure balance between the powers and functions of the nation and those of the state. An experiment, which profoundly disturbs this balance, which, in fact, destroys it, has caused this awakening, and apart from its implications of social and economic effect, whether good or bad, has given a new poignancy to our concern for the preservation of the American system of free government.

The fundamental issue of this controversy, perhaps the most momentous in our history, is not whether the use of alcoholic beverages shall be restrained or even prohibited by law, but whether the wise and farsighted distribution of powers and responsibilities, the balance, as the chief justice put it, between state and nation shall be restored and maintained.

The chief justice's view of this subject was, of course, broader than our application, which he could not properly make as a member of our highest tribunal. It would include all of those infringements upon state powers and those abdications of state responsibility which have been permitted by indifference or shortsighted and unbalanced zeal. But prohibition is by far the most revolutionary expansion of the central authority and the most destructive assault upon the balance between state and nation that have been attempted thus far in our history. The most encouraging development, therefore, of the great controversy over the prohibition experiment is that this farreaching and vital issue of state and national function is gaining its proper place in the forefront of discussion.

JUSTICE TO THE FOREIGN SERVICE.

Provision for our foreign representatives has always been grudging, but it is to be hoped a growing sense of the importance of our foreign trade will bring some change. The late congress authorized allowances for living quarters, heat, light, and fuel, and the state department has been accumulating statistics on the costs of these essentials in order to adjust the allowance to the need. Representatives at one post will find costs high, at another low, at Buenos Aires high, at Peiping or Algiers low. There will be a division of stations into five classes, according to living costs, but it is to be hoped the division will not be rigid and immovable. Costs will vary from time to time and there will be injustice if the usual bureaucratic resistance to any change of rule prevents a proper adjustment of individual cases to actual conditions. How many faithful servants of the republic have been suffering from pinch-penny policy in congress or the executive! The consul in an unhealthy tropical post who was refused allowance for bottled water was only one victim of bureaucratic regulations, but the incident was significant of a policy which ought to be discarded. Underpaying our foreign service is not only shameful but foolish. It is not economy. If we want a foreign representation which draws and holds talent and energy it must be compensated. We refer especially to the consular service.

THE BALTIC BULWARK.

John Steele, head of THE TRIBUNE'S news service in Great Britain, has been traveling in the Baltic states, and his letters will remind American readers not only that these new nations are of interest as human communities of which we know too little but that they represent potentialities of great political moment. Finland, Latvia, Esthonia, and Lithuania are all small states, taken separately, but in alliance and coöperation they would become a considerable force. They are all opponents of communism. They all are in race, character, in ideals, and in morals a part of Europe and its civilization, and not, as Russia is, more oriental than occidental.

Their statesmanship might well take as one of its basic guides the remark of Benjamin Franklin when he signed the Declaration of American Independence, "We must hang together, for if we do not we shall assuredly hang separately." Or they might adopt the American republic's maxim, "In union there is strength." At the present moment circumstance and policy do not favor an aggressive policy at the Kremlin, but circumstance changes and with it policy, and there is nothing in bolshevik doctrine, politics, or morale to insure the Baltic states or any one of them from attack by Russia at any promising moment of the future. Against this menace there is no defense but cooperation, and that is not an easy thing to bring about, and especially to make effective. The weaknesses of allied effort have been shown repeatedly in past experience, even in our day. Baltic statesmanship should therefore realize that it cannot safely be postponed until emergency compels it. Danger will compel it, but it is too complex and difficult an achievement to be accomplished impromptu, especially as haste and the pressure of immediate necessity will make the problem infinitely harder than it is now.

It may be presumptuous to urge so obvious a duty on the able leaders and intelligent peoples of these new and progressive nations. But the suggestion is a mark of our interest and appreciation. We are conscious of the political, economic, and social factors which make coöperation difficult, and it is this consciousness which impresses us with the urgent need for evolving in this time of comparative peace a strong system for combining their strength. We do not underestimate, for example, the difficulty of composing the Vilna controversy between Poland and Lithuania, and yet Poland, with its large population and strong backing, seems a natural, if not a necessary, center of combination against Russia.

At any rate, the states which have emerged from the war and its sequel constitute a natural bulwark of western civilization against the bolshevik threat. They are all irredenta, both from the viewpoint of the fanatic who believes in world revolution and that of the Russian imperialism which insufficiently conceals its ambitions behind the façade of sovietism. They are predestined victims of Russia unless they combine their forces in some form capable of withstanding the heaviest shocks of force and the more insidious invasion of intrigue.

To any such evolution of unity by these frontier champions of civilization America and western Europe ought to contribute substantially in material and moral support. If it is the task and duty of Baltic statesmanship to bring about this evolution, it is also the duty and interest of western statesmanship to assist in every practicable way.

MRS. MOODY'S $20,000.

Under the will of Senator Phelan of California Mrs. Helen Wills Moody was bequeathed $20,000 for bringing the world's tennis championship to California. No sooner were the terms of the will announced than the point was raised that Mrs. Moody might lose her amateur standing if she accepted the gift. The rules provide that no player is an amateur who receives or has received, "directly or indirectly, pecuniary advantage by the playing, teaching, demonstrating, or pursuit of the game." There is no doubt that $20,000 is pecuniary advantage to most folks and Mrs. Moody did not get it for anything but tennis playing.

Still, we think the tennis dignitaries had better go beyond the mere letter of the rule. The concept of amateurism was inherited from England, where any sort of gainful occupation is more or less demeaning and the only really desirable way to acquire wealth is to inherit it.

The grandees of the Lawn Tennis association need not fear that the acceptance of Senator Phelan's $20,000 will debar Mrs. Moody from playing at Wimbledon. On the contrary, it will give her a standing there she never enjoyed before.

Editorial of the Day

THE KANSAS ANSWER.

[Baltimore Sun.]

Kansas is rubbing it in on Mr. Hoover and Mr. Legge. In answer to their plea for smaller wheat acreage, 20,000 Kansans held a "wheat festival" at Hutchinson last week and emphasized their purpose to "ride with wheat."

There were blaring bands, tooting the glory of wheat. A pageant lauding wheat before a crowded grandstand. A parade of wheat decorated floats 2 miles long. And that the fiesta must be taken as Kansas' last word on the wheat reduction program is demonstrated by the belief expressed that the weather will be "the only limiting factor in keeping Kansas from reaching the saturation point in wheat acreage this fall." Should the state be visited by good rains it is predicted that more than 13,000,000 acres will be sown with wheat, making the all-time record.

Kansans are wiggling derisive fingers at the farm board and asking what would have happened if the board's advice had been followed and wheat acreage of this year cut down. The alternative would have been to plant more corn, and Kansas wants to know where it would have been. Corn has been burnt to a crisp and there would have been a shortage in the state of both wheat and corn. So the state is showing its contempt for the farm board's program by crowning a "wheat queen"—a "slim new queen with golden brown hair"—and making the echoes ring with, "Long live wheat!"

This seems to make pretty farfetched the Republican notion that Kansas Republicans defeated Gov. Reed for renomination in order to show their devotion to the Hoover plan of farm relief.

WHERE A DICTATOR FAILS.

MUSSOLINI, in furtherance of his chauvinistic policy, called on the prospective mothers of Italy to maintain a high birth rate. Whatever else he orders in Italy he seems to be able to bring about. The Fascisti organization seems to be unable to reach the mothers. In a report on populations of various countries in 1927 the Eugenics Review lists five countries as having a higher excess of births over deaths than had Italy. Spain ranked on a par with that country in spite of a high death rate on the one hand and no Fascisti on the other.

The failure to obey the orders of Mussolini was somewhat in evidence in Rome itself, but Turin actually had a death rate that was higher than its birth rate, and the women of Milan and Genoa were not much more obedient to the dictator. However, the excess of deaths over births is not the only method of measuring decadence of national vitality. Additional yardsticks would need to be applied before we could say whether the vitality of the average Italian was up to standard.

Measured by the excess of births over deaths, Great Britain still is to the good, but we find farseeing men in that country very unhappy over the outlook. In a recent report the British secretary of state for war wrote there had been such a fall in physique of the Briton as to render it difficult to recruit the British army. Sixty-one per cent of the applicants are rejected and of these rejections 91 per cent are for medical reasons. This is true in spite of the fact that the standards have been lowered twice in recent years.

The Eugenics Review reports the school teachers as saying the physiques of the British school child are steadily becoming poorer. The Times quotes Prof. McBride as saying the standard of health is slowly falling. The reference is to physique, physical strength, and health habits—the British death rate still shows a tendency downward though it is scarcely perceptible.

Tom Shaw thinks the poor physical quality of the young man applying for entrance to the army is a result of the privations of the world war. With this the Eugenics Review does not agree. The average British mother did not suffer for the necessities enough during this war period to have lowered her vitality to the point where it harmed her progeny.

In Germany the birth rate is but little above the death rate. But the Germans claim that by physical training in their public schools and the German youth movement they are maintaining the physiques, strength, and vitality of their youth.

DIABETES AND INHERITANCE.

V. L. C. writes: 1. Where can I purchase a copy of Dr. Joslin's Manual for Diabetics?

2. What is the possibility of a diabetic having healthy children where there is no diabetes elsewhere in the family?

3. Is the disease one which would bar me from the profession of nursing which I am seriously thinking of attempting?

REPLY.

1. Any book store. A book store that does not carry it in stock will order it for you.

2. Very good. There is some tendency for diabetes to run in families. Persons belonging to to diabetic families should regulate their diets in accordance with their inheritance.

3. Probably not if your disease is mild, and you are intelligent and careful.

WHEN DOCTOR REFUSES TO COME.

F. G. S. writes: Can a physician's license be revoked because of his refusing to answer a call?

In the case I have in mind a man had appendicitis. A physician was called. He did not respond. The man died.

Is the physician liable?

REPLY.

A physician's license cannot be revoked because he did not answer a call. A physician has the same right to refuse to answer a call that a merchant has to refuse to sell a piece of goods. If the physician was in attendance on this case, had seen him once or oftener in this attack, and then refused to respond to a call and the refusal resulted in the man's death, he would be liable for damages. Under other circumstances, I doubt if there would be any liability.

NOTICE TO MOVE.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My present lease is expiring. I have received a letter from my landlord asking whether I am going to move or renew my lease. He also inclosed a stamped return envelope for my reply to him. If I do not reply to him immediately, first, can he automatically renew my lease? Second, is there any definite date set as to giving my landlord a moving notice?

T. L. M.

1. Not unless it contains special wording or you hold over.

2. Section 12 of the landlord and tenant act provides "when the tenancy is for a certain period and the term expires by the terms of the lease the tenant is then bound to surrender possession and no notice to quit or demand of possession is necessary."

THE ARTISTIC TOUCH.

It was a brand new plea and we fell for it. We were breezing down Rush street, as usual yesterday morning (late, also as usual) when a sad and dingy looking man stopped us. His head was bent downward and he had a very dirty handkerchief wrapped around his neck. He stared hard at our shoes and said: "Mister, can you stake me to a cup of coffee? I'm in mighty hard luck." "What's the matter with our shoes?" asked we, petulantly, "they're shined and everything." "I can't look any higher," said the man, "I gotta boil on the back of my neck. That's why I have to beg. Y'see, I had a job out at the airplane show keeping tab on the racers and telling an announcer at the microphone what was doin' way up there in the air. Then the day before the races started here I gets a boil on the back of my neck and I can't look at anything but the ground. Tuff luck, mister, tuff luck."

"Ah," said we, "you have dramatized one of the oldest and funniest stories we ever heard. It was about a man who waited twenty years and walked thirty-five miles to see a balloon go up. He got to the town where the ascent was to take place and stood around in the crowd all day. Finally he asked a man when the balloon would go up. The man said: 'Oh, the balloon went up three hours ago.' 'Damn that boil on my neck,' said the man who had waited twenty years, and he turned around and went back home." "Honest, I gotta boil on my neck," said the panhandler, "and I hadda good job at the airplane races——" "Never mind," said we, soothingly, "you have a rare memory and a touch of true art. It is well worth fifty cents. You should write best sellers or detective stories!" Clutching our fifty cents, the panhandler hurried away to a hard-by speakeasy.

ALMA MATER IN AUGUST.

Slow-rummaging, the ivy fingers creep
Along the turreted and memoried walls;
Nested within a jeweled window deep
A mother bird chirps low, insistent calls;
Beneath the stately trees a mintage bright
Lies, scattered idly by the spendthrift sun
Soon to be gathered by the thieving night
And fused to dropping shadows, one by one.

Then down the quiet halls, in cap and gown,
Grave-faced preceptors of another day,
With kindly smile or reminiscent frown,
Pace slowly, and I heard one softly say,
"Ours was the dream from which this beauty grew.
This loveliness is but that dream come true."

ETHELYN BRYANT CHAPMAN.

ALL THE KNOWING ones say that winter is just around the corner and it's going to come mighty early this fall. And all because the purple martins have packed their duds and flown away for the south. Well, we believed the Washington statesmen when they said that prosperity was just around the corner, and we waited and waited and waited and nothing happened; so now it's going to be pretty hard for a purple martin to make us believe there's anything at all around that corner.

ASH STEVENS, in refusing to play a chess championship series against the Conductor of this Column of Calumny, charges us with having used pocket mirrors and carrying two kings in our sleeves in the 1926 chess tournament at the Cliff Dwellers. Very well, chess being out we hereby challenge Ash Stevens to a gentleman driver handicap auto race to take place on the old Cinder Path, south of Soldiers' Field, each driver to start his own car within two hours or forfeit the race. Each driver must pass five green lights and two red ones and have snappy repartee ready to hurl at the two cops at the red light. Repartee to count five points; right and left turns, three points; starting, five points; and stopping, thirty points. There, Ash Stevens, mesh your gears! Mesh your gears!

"THIS DROUGHT is a terrible thing," said the man in front of us on the bus, "and it's pretty well all over the country." "Terrible," said the other man; "darned if I didn't have to pay eight bucks for a pint yesterday. But just wait until the November election. Oh, boy!"

THE PIPER.

I asked a merry Piper
To step within and sup,
To sit with me beside the hearth,
And lift the fragrant cup,
Watching within the driftwood logs
The little flames come up.

But he was in a hurry,
The Piper small and gay,
He knew a little cottage
Where he must go and play,
Wherein a boy and maiden
Had happiness to pay.

O merry, merry Piper,
O happy, happy pair,
With gold to pay for piping,
And hearts without a care,
Could tea and mellow firelight
Be half as tempting fare?

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 27, 1914.

LONDON.—The French embassy gave out this laconic statement: "The ministry of war has not issued its usual bulletins. The general impression concerning the engagements which took place on the line from Cambrai to Le Cateau is favorable. In Lorraine the German offensive movement has been absolutely repulsed." Le Cateau is about 40 miles within the French frontier and is almost that distance behind the Valenciennes-Maubege position, to which the British and French forces retired after the battle of Aug. 22. The war office in Paris reports the allied offensive from the Nancy-Vosges line is making headway. Gen. Gallieni has been appointed commander of the army of Paris and military governor.

PARIS.—The French cabinet headed by Premier Rene Viviani resigned and another cabinet was immediately formed with Viviani at its head. The new cabinet includes several ex-premiers and former cabinet members.

LONDON.—Dispatches from Copenhagen quote the Cologne Gazette, semi-official organ of Germany, as saying that at the battle of Lorraine 300,000 men were engaged on each side, the greatest number yet engaged in any battle in the history of the world except the battle of Mukden.

LONDON.—The Russian advance in East Prussia continues. It was reported that Marienburg, 27 miles southeast of Danzig, has been occupied by the czar's forces. The historic city of Tilsit has been taken by the Russians.

WASHINGTON.—Tension is so acute in Constantinople that diplomats there fear Turkey may at any moment be drawn into the war on the side of Germany and Austria.

WASHINGTON.—A German airship dealing death out of the night to the slumbering burghers of Antwerp has startled the world. In America as well as England and France horror has been inspired by the tale of noncombatants, including women and children, mangled by the shrapnel dropped from the Zeppelin ships of the air.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 27, 1900.

LONDON.—The allied troops in Peking a week ago, the date of the latest advices, were expecting a severe attack from a large body of Boxers supposed to be approaching the capital from the south. A Taku official dispatch, dated Aug. 23, says the Chinese infantry, some 9,000 strong, are advancing from Shantung to make a rear attack on the allies.

GILMAN, Ill.—Two men killed and three wounded, two of them perhaps fatally, one woman wounded and her home burned are the results of an all night battle between a mob and Mrs. Dr. C. W. Wright, who was accused of the murder of Dessie Salter, 16 year old daughter of a local citizen.

CHICAGO.—Survivors of the federal army of '61-'65 made their bivouacs in Chicago preparatory to opening today what the grand commander says will be the last great encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic. While the veterans, cheered by the music of their fifes and drums, marched from the depots, the Avenue of Fame and the Court of Honor flung them welcome. They were eulogized in all churches. The evening meeting at the Coliseum was addressed by Maj. Gen. Daniel E. Sickles, who declared that "no human being now living will ever see the flag come down."

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 27, 1865.

WASHINGTON.—Gen. Joe Johnston of the rebel army has received permission to spend fifteen days in Baltimore. Gen. Ewell got similar permission. Col. Cummings of Philadelphia, late of the army of the Potomac, has been appointed governor of Colorado, vice John Evans of Chicago. Gen. Crocker died this morning of brain fever.

NEW YORK.—The World's correspondent from the City of Mexico says the official organ denies that Maximilian sent his cabinet minister on a special mission to Napoleon to ask that he formally demand from the United States a recognition of the emperor. It also denies that Maximilian is negotiating with his brother, the emperor of Austria, for the restoration of his eventual rights to the throne of Austria.

NEW YORK.—The Commercial's special says: "The President will probably order the release of Alexander H. Stephens."

AFTER THE MUSIC FESTIVAL.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—The heart of this big city has been stirred to the utmost by the overwhelming success of the music festival. Expressions of deep appreciation are heard on every corner, in the home, in the street car, over the phone. Everywhere in Chicago today folks in all walks of life are discussing the spectacle of last night. THE TRIBUNE has earned and is receiving the gratitude of the whole city in payment for its conception and direction of this greatest musical event. Just how refreshing it was to find in this morning's paper the enormous headline, "150,000 Hear Feast of Song," in place of the tiresome heralding of crime is beyond expression to tell. It causes one to wonder if, through such a medium, we have not hit upon the solution of the problem of "cleaning up." The emotional side of Chicago has been deeply touched. In these hearts and minds filled with the inspiration of immortal beauty brought to them in the form of music, there can be no place for thoughts of crime and destruction. I believe that the festival is the nucleus of a great progressive movement. I believe that if grand opera were given in Soldiers' field at a reasonable admission fee, the scene of last night would be enacted on an even larger scale. Our Italian population alone would fill the seats. Of course, there would have to be the community singing before and between the acts. Singing en masse has the faculty of releasing the soul from the bondage of daily care.

The music festival is the greatest thing that ever happened to Chicago. The people have proven that they are back of any such movement, to a man! Weary, fed up with gangs, gunmen and crooked politics, they are actually yearning for things beautiful, things inspirational and cultural. It is as if a vote had been taken in our wonderful city and the side for construction won unanimously. I am sure that every Chicagoan present in Soldiers' field last night thrilled with the thought that he was "From Chicago and Proud of It!"

COME AGAIN NEXT YEAR.

Kankakee, Ill., Aug. 24.—Mere words are impotent; stated thanks are an empty nothingness in my attempt to express my deep appreciation of your generous effort in giving us, the people of the middle west, this gorgeous pageant of song and music. The stirring music of the bands pealing forth their majestic strains, the choruses singing their spirituals with deep emotional yearning which reëchoed in our souls, the soloists with voices of rich clear timbre and expression, the thrilling salvo of the cannons, it was surely an epoch making episode in the life of contemporary Americans. If imperfections existed, we heeded them not.

MRS. JOHN GREGOR JR.

A DISTURBANCE.

Park Ridge, Ill., Aug. 25.—Knowing THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE welcomes constructive criticism, I wish to speak about what I consider the only flaw in the management of the music festival at Soldiers' field Saturday night. I refer to the venders of ice cream, peanuts and candy. It was bad enough before the program started, as they walked on our feet, knocked off our hats, and made pests of themselves in general. If they must go through the crowds after the program has begun, they should at least be compelled to keep silent—any one with eyes can see what they have to sell. MRS. H. C. HANSEN.

REFRESHING.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—I can imagine no more beautiful word picture than your Mr. James O'Donnell Bennett's description of the music festival at Soldiers' field. THE TRIBUNE surely is to be congratulated upon sponsoring such a wonderful undertaking, and the magnificent response of the public has demonstrated beyond all question of doubt that people are interested in the better things of life. It is so refreshing to see a headline like the one in Sunday's TRIBUNE, "150,000 Hear Festival of Music," in place of some of those we have seen recently regarding crime and graft.

IMPRESSIVE.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—The music festival which you instigated was the most impressive spectacle I have ever witnessed, and you are to be highly congratulated. Most people with whom I have talked would pay any amount of money to see and hear the same spectacle next year.

To work this matter out is more important than to have the politicians travel about in private cars, at the expense of the nation's taxpayers. The only thing they relieve us of is money, without service in return. W. A. HENZE.

CHILDREN IN THE CARS.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Some people only pay half fare on the street cars or sometimes nothing for their children, and when the mother gets a seat she lets the child sit down instead of letting an old person sit down or a working person.

Or sometimes when the mother is sitting down with the child and a person gets on with a lot of parcels, the mother is too lazy to pick up the child, so she lets the child have the seat.

FINLAND FACES DICTATOR IN WAR ON COMMUNISM

Farmers' Revolt Against Red Peril Grows.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LAPUA, Finland, Aug. 26.—This typical farming village in Ostro Bothnia, is the birthplace of a movement which probably is the first in the world spontaneously arising from an enraged people against communism, and which will probably overthrow the Finnish government and lead to another dictatorship in Europe.

Six months ago few Finns except those well verse in the history of their country, could have told where Lapua was, and still fewer knew of the existence of Vihtori Kosola. Today Lapua and Kosola fill columns of the Finnish press.

Lapua is a night's journey from Helsingfors. It has a big Lutheran church, serving a wide district, which played a big part as a center of discussion and obligation in what has come to be known as the Lapua movement. A few yards from the church and its pretty parsonage is a big rambling farmhouse where Kosola lives with his big family of children and relatives of which, although he is probably still under 50, he is patriarch.

Reds "Taken for Rides."

The first attention attracted to the Lapua movement was caused by the kidnaping and "taking for a ride" of communist leaders in the neighboring towns such as Vasa, where there are big communist movements. The rides generally ended on the Russian frontier clear across the other side of Finland, where the communists were kicked across into the hands of friends, who, on one of two occasions, were rude enough to shoot at them.

Then came the breaking up of the printing office of the communist paper in Vasa and the kidnaping of two communist members of parliament who were beaten and then shipped abroad. Last month one morning 12,000 peasants from Lapua and surrounding districts appeared in Helsingfors, coming in trains, automobiles and horseback. In perfect military formation they marched to the parliament building and with Kosola as spokesman, demanded from the president the immediate suppression of communism, the strengthening of the laws to make the suppression permanent, the deprivation of communists of all civil rights, and a reform in the constitution in the direction of greater economy and efficiency in government, including halving the number of members of parliament.

Refuse to Compromise.

The politicians tried to temporize, but Kosoala and the farmers stubbornly refused to return home until they got a promise. The bills were introduced to the diet, but they failed to get the requisite two-thirds majority for the reform of the constitution and the diet was dissolved.

A general election will be held on Oct. 1 at which the Lapua demands will be the only issue, and if the Lapuans fail to get what they want by the elections, they make no secret that they will adopt other means. Communism has got to get out of Finland, they declare. There are frequent hints that a temporary dictatorship may be necessary.

Determined to End Communism.

"We are not a party," said Kosola. "We aim to influence the government to pass laws checking communism and excluding communists from any share in state or local administration. The immediate program is to influence the elections by pledging the candidates of all parties; but I am pessimistic about the result of the election.

"We are determined to stamp out the agents of the foreign power who are destroying our industry and corrupting our youth. The communists who were deported from Lapua boasted that they would drive God from both heaven and earth. They came here and held meetings in which they mocked God and parodied religion in a most brutal way. We are determined to stop this.

"The farmers have pledged not to employ communists and the industries are coming into line. We haven't touched the questions of prohibition or foreign affairs because we want a solid front. Our sole purpose is to destroy communism and reaffirm the home government.

INCREASE IN WAGES ORDERED BY STATE IN HIGHWAY WORK

Director Cleaveland of the department of public works has asked contractors to prepare their bids for state paving with a wage scale equal to the rates prevailing in the vicinity of the project. The Illinois Association of Highway and Municipal Contractors has complained that labor is being paid as low as 17½ cents an hour, far below a living wage.

"If the state's highway work is to do anything toward relieving the business an dagricultural depression," said Alan Jay Parrish, Paris, Ill., vice president of the association, "the state's contractors must not be permitted to reduce the standard of living of the laborer. High wages mean prosperity; low wages a general business slump.

"Probably the state could not fix a minimum wage scale, but it might fix a maximum working day. At the rates some of the contractors are paying, a man is forced to labor twelve or fourteen hours to make more than his board and lodging while on a job."

Canada Acts to Stop Flow of U.S. Fruit and Vegetables

OTTAWA, Aug. 26.—(AP)—E. B. Ryckman, minister of national revenue, today took action against dumping of certain American fruits and vegetables in Canada. He announced a set of values for duty of certain produce imported from the United States.

SCOTCH BUSINESS MEN ARE GUESTS OF CHICAGOANS

Thirty-five members of the chamber of commerce of Aberdeen, Scotland, who arrived yesterday for a three day visit as guests of the Chicago Association of Commerce, were enthusiastic over their reception.

"We hope to take back to Aberdeen some of your business methods to try on the folks back home," remarked John S. Yule, secretary of the chamber, who heads the party. "Incidentally, this is the first time that a Scotch chamber of commerce has made a mass trip to America.

"When we hear any talk of your business depression we have to smile. If you want to see a good depression just come to Scotland; it's chronic over there."

Yesterday the Scotch visitors looked over the department stores, the Board of Trade, and other downtown points, and went for a tour of the boulevards. Today they will be the guests of the foreign commerce committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce at a luncheon at the Palmer house. While in the city they are at the Bismarck hotel. The party will leave tomorrow evening for Washington.

COUNTY RECEIVES BIDS FOR ELEVEN ROAD PROJECTS

The county board yesterday opened bids for eleven road work projects, totaling $625,000. Contracts will probably be awarded within ten days. The projects are as follows:

Kedzie avenue, Devon avenue to Granville avenue.

First avenue, Ogden avenue to 28th street.

Joliet avenue, Joliet road to 45th street.

Avenue O and Avenue L, 130th street to 114th street.

Chicago avenue bridge, over Des Plaines river.

First avenue bridge, over Salt creek.

Oakton street bridge, over Des Plaines river.

Ridgeland avenue culvert, at 135th street.

Ald. William Rowan and State Representative William W. Powers, with a committee of citizens, appeared before the board in protest against the extension of Avenue L in preference to Avenue O. The problem will be answered at next week's session of the road and bridge committee.

ASK GOVERNMENT TO SIFT GOTHAM MILK "RACKET"

Charge Violations of U.S. Anti-Trust Laws.

New York, Aug. 26.—[Special.]—On the eve of Attorney General Ward's arrival here to take part in the state hearings on food profiteering the federal government was asked by Aaron Sapiro, counsel for the Harlem and Bronx Milk Dealers association, to investigate milk distribution here to stop "unfair trade" practices.

In a petition to the federal trade commission, Mr. Sapiro charged the Dairymen's league and Arstein & Beckman with violation of federal statutes and asked that the board order the Dairymen's league to cease "unfair trade practices." The Dairymen's league which dominates the milk market here, declined last night to make an official statement on Mr. Sapiro's charges.

Charge "Unfair" Tactics.

Attorney General Ward is expected in this city tomorrow after a conference with newspaper men he will participate in the general food inquiry which Assistant Attorney General Groat will conduct in the morning. He will also take part in the milk hearing which will resume Thursday afternoon.

Twenty specific charges against the Dairymen's league were made by Mr. Sapiro in his complaint against the Dairymen's league. The complaint against Arnstein & Beckman cited twenty-eight instances of alleged unfair practices. The federal trade commission was asked to investigate the charge that many instances of alleged illegal tactics named in the two complaints constituted violations of the Sherman anti-trust act and the Clayton act.

The milk situation here, the commission was told, is "infested" with serious trade abuses which have disorganized the milk industry. Mr. Sapiro said the Dairyman's league was engaged in a deliberate campaign to injure competitors and to form a milk monopoly here by such tactics as giving away milk to dealers and giving cash rebates.

Cut Prices to Get Trade.

"The league has cut prices below any possible cost of production whenever they wanted to get a customer away from some one else," the petition said. "Such practices have become general in the milk industry in New York City except in the cases of the Borden's Farm Products company and the Sheffield Farms company, which have done less of these practices than other firms and have conducted a legitimate competitive business on a clean basis in almost every instance.

"The Dairymen's league has purchased or acquired control of a group of subsidiary milk dealers and through this combination the league has affected what is believed to be an improper and illegal combination which is harmful to the public."

1,000 MORE POLICE FOR NEW YORK CITY REQUESTED BY CHIEF

New York, Aug. 26.—[Special.]—An addition of 1,000 uniformed policemen is requested by Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney for next year, it was announced today by Budget Director Charles L. Kohler.

The exact amount of the department's budget, Mr. Kohler said, is not available, being in the hands of the printer, but the increase over last year is known to total several million dollars.

The enlarged force, if approved, will not be appointed at once.

British Jobless Total Drops; 32,780 Get Work in Week

LONDON, Aug. 26.—For the first time since April, tonight's unemployment figures issued by the ministry of labor, show a decrease. There were 32,780 less without work than last week. This drop is the largest of any week since the Labor government entered office. The total unemployed is now 2,017,957.

WIDE TRAFFIC IN NEW YORK CITY JOBS CHARGED

Outgrowth of Ewald Bribery Expose.

New York, Aug. 26.—[Special.]—The state attorney general is investigating charges that two magistrates now sitting, a judge of a higher court, and several city office holders bought their jobs in the politics market, it was revealed today.

Information about this alleged thriving traffic was received by Attorney General Hamilton Ward after he had issued a call to every citizen of New York to come forward with details of job buying that were worth investigating.

The attorney general was appointed by Gov. Roosevelt to inquire into the charge that George F. Ewald bought an appointment as magistrate from Martin J. Healy, Tammany leader, three years ago.

FOREIGNERS FLEE CHANGSHA AS 5,000 REDS PERIL CITY

SHANGHAI, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Foreign women and children were fleeing from Changsha, Hunan province capital, for Hankow today because of the increasing menace of 5,000 communists approaching the city with the evident intention of attempting to recapture it.

With no protection except a weakened garrison of provincial troops of doubtful loyalty at Changsha, it was felt imperative to evacuate as many foreigners as possible to avoid the possibility of an attack such as hordes of communists recently made on the city, when foreign property was looted and burned.

Hoping to prevent a repetition of the sacking, President Chiang Kai-Shek has ordered 20,000 troops detached from his army.

WEIL'S VICTIM FAILS TO PRESS PLAINT IN COURT

Joseph Kindleberger of Kalamazoo, Mich., president of the Kalamazoo Vegetable Parchment company, failed to appear yesterday in the Felony court to prosecute George Lutz, alleged confidence man and pal of Joseph [Yellow Kid] Weil. It is charged that Weil, Lutz, and several others swindled Kindleberger out of $15,000 in a fake copper mine deal. Weil has not been found. The manufacturer thus far has refused to prosecute.

"It has been reported that you took money to drop prosecution of this case, which, if true, makes you liable to prosecution for compounding a felony," Assistant State's Attorney William A. Rittenhouse wrote in a letter sent to Kindleberger yesterday. "Unless you do appear and prosecute this case this office will take such action in the matter as the facts and law warrant."

The case against Lutz was continued by Judge John Sbarbaro until today. Unless Kindleberger appears to prosecute, the judge indicated that he would have to dismiss the charge. The complaint of Fred H. Bartels, grocer of Glen Ellyn, who says he is the latest victim of Lutz and Weil, has not yet reached the Felony court.

LONDON GETS ITS FIRST SUMMER HEAT; TAKES SWIM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 26.—England is sweltering in the first real heat wave of this summer. Today was the hotest it has been for eleven months, and the weather experts predict that it will be warmer still. The maximum temperature today was 87 degrees, hot for London, and shortly before midnight tonight it was 77 degrees.

This follows a wet, cold July and August. Londoners shed their coats and vests while up to late tonight, thousands stood in line at the serpentine in Hyde Park, waiting to swim.

AIR RACES INCREASE PUBLIC INTEREST IN PRIVATE FLYING

Planes, Instructions, Within Reach of Average Purse

At the Air Races, everybody goes up in the air! Of course, that does not mean that the thousands who are attending the Air Races at Curtiss-Reynolds Airport have the opportunity to high-hat their neighbors from the pilot's seat of a snappy two-place biplane, but almost everyone comes away from the races with the feeling that they too would like to join in the "joy stick" parade up in the clouds.

"Pit" Visitors Prove Interest

At the "pits" you'll find hundreds of people clustered around each plane, directing a steady stream of questions at the attendants in charge. How much does this one cost? Can I buy a plane on the time-payment plan? How much would it cost me to learn to fly? How long does it take?

Costs Surprisingly Low

Most people are surprised to learn that an airworthy plane, together with a 20 hour course of instructions, sufficient to entitle them to an examination for a Private Pilot's License, can be bought for as little as $1500. Furthermore, that operating costs for planes of this type are no higher than those for a good automobile.

Good Planes for Less Money

Used planes for sale appear frequently in Tribune Want Ads. Men who have bought training-type planes, now wish to dispose of them to buy lighter, and speedier planes. Business firms who have been using small planes, are now replacing them with larger cabin models. These planes for sale represent real opportunities to buy flying equipment at a saving.

Find Air Schools Quickly

Competent instructions is another important consideration for the prospective pilot. Even though he has bought his own plane it will be necessary to find a good school to teach him the rudiments of flying. Again the Tribune Want Ad Section can help him. Dependable schools can be located easily in the "Instruction" Columns.

Before you spend a dollar, look through the Tribune Want Ads—you might find a way to save half of it.

Graduates Escape Books; Then Try for Job as Book Agent

The bane of books and more books drove 128 collegians to desperation, resulting in hours of cramming in the final semester and subsequent graduation this year. What a grand and glorious feeling! At last, freedom from books! But were they? After all diplomas had been framed and courage screwed up to the point of audacity, these 128 set forth to find ways and means to satisfy the landlady. Collegian! O magic word! C. T. Fairfield used it in a Tribune Want Ad for a salesman. 128 of this year's graduating crop answered. It was for a book salesman! 123 fainted. 4 went back home to father, and one got the job. Here's the ad, and excerpts from Mr. Fairfield's letter:

WHEN REILY SELLS HIS BRICK YARD, SEE WHAT HAPPENS

Tribune Inquiry Protects Readers from Losses

"I want to sell me brick yaurrd!"

Yes, Sir, I'll be glad to help you. What is your name, and the name of your business?

Where do you live, Mr. Reily?

"Nixt to the brick yaurrd, of course!"

"At 0000 Cinter Strate."

Are you the president of the company?

"You mean, who's boss—that'll be me wife."

How long have you been in business?

"Twinty sivin years!"

Are you rated in Dun or Bradstreet?

"I belong to the Ancient Order O' Hibernians!"

Well, can you furnish a financial statement?

"My Annie makes the statements for me family, but if it's money you're askin' about, see Dinty O'Rourke, me banker."

Oh, yes, Mr. Reily, we'll do that. Now one more question—Why do you wish to sell your business?

"Arragh! Annie sez it's time to retire, and she wants her fling in sassiety like Mrs. Hinnissey!"

So Mr. Reily advertises his brick yard for sale in the Business Opportunities Columns of the Tribune Want Ad Section!

For Your Protection

Tribune Ad Takers at our convenient want ad stores do ask questions! Every Business Opportunity advertisement is carefully investigated before it is accepted for publication in the Tribune Want Ad Section. In that way, the Tribune protects its readers against unscrupulous advertisers who over-rate the products, service or business they wish to sell.

Tribune Has Public Confidence

Because the Tribune advertising rules are strict, the confidence of Tribune readers in Tribune advertising is high. That is one reason why more people consult the Tribune Want Ads for places to spend their dollars economically.

The MURDER at the VICARAGE

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

SYNOPSIS.

Mr. Clement, vicar of a country village in England, at luncheon tells his wife, Griselda, and young nephew Dennis, who lives with them, that any one who murdered Col. Protheroe would be doing the world at large a service. The colonel enjoys making life miserable for his daughter Lettice, and his second wife, and fusses about the running of the parish. He suspects that there are defalcations in the church accounts and is going over the next evening to go over them with the vicar. Griselda, nearly twenty years younger than her husband, refuses to take anything, including the parish, seriously. The vicar, returning from parish visits, stops in at the studio on the vicarage grounds, to discover the artist and Mrs. Protheroe in a passionate embrace. He retreats to his study, followed by Mrs. Protheroe, who tells him of her desperate love for the artist. The vicar begs Lawrence to leave the village.

The next day started out badly for the vicar. At 5:30 he is called to visit a dying parishioner and leaves word for Col. Protheroe, who is expected at 6:15, that he will be back. On returning at 7 the vicar meets Lawrence Redding coming out of the house in an agitated state and in his study he finds the colonel sprawled across the desk, shot through the head, murdered apparently. Dr. Haydock is sent for and he says Protheroe has been dead half an hour and calls the police. A note which the colonel started to write to the effect he is headed 6:20. A clock overturned when the colonel fell forward stopped at 6:22, but it was always kept a quarter of an hour fast.

INSTALLMENT IX.

AN ARREST IS MADE.

"It will be so awful for Anne Protheroe—with the police and everything," Griselda said. "Perhaps I might be able to do something for her."

I cordially approved of this plan and Griselda set off with instructions that she was to telephone to me if she thought that I could be of any use or comfort to either of the ladies.

I now proceeded to ring up the Sunday school teachers who were coming at 7:45 for their weekly preparation class.

Dennis was the next person to arrive on the scene, having just returned from a tennis party. The fact that the murder had taken place at the vicarage seemed to afford him acute satisfaction.

"Fancy being right on the spot in a murder case," he exclaimed. "I've always wanted to be right in the midst of one. Why have the police locked up the study? Wouldn't one of the other door keys fit it?"

I refused to allow anything of the sort to be attempted. Dennis gave in with a bad grace. After extracting every possible detail from me he went out into the garden to look for footprints, remarking cheerfully that it was lucky it was only old Protheroe whom everybody disliked.

His cheerful callousness rather grated on me but I reflected that I was perhaps being hard on the boy. At Dennis' age a detective story is one of the best things in life, and to find a real detective story, complete with corpse, waiting on one's own front doorstep, so to speak, is bound to send a healthy minded boy into the seventh heaven of enjoyment. Death means very little to a boy of sixteen.

Griselda came back in about an hour's time. She had seen Anne Protheroe, having arrived just after the inspector had broken the news to her.

On hearing that Mrs. Protheroe had last seen her husband in the village about a quarter to six, and that she had no light of any kind to throw upon the matter, he had taken his departure, explaining that he would return on the morrow for a fuller interview.

"He was quite decent in his way," said Griselda grudgingly.

"How did Mrs. Protheroe take it?" I asked.

"Well—she was very quiet—but then she always is."

"Yes," I said. "I can't imagine Anne Protheroe going into hysterics."

"Of course it was a great shock. You could see that. She thanked me for coming and said she was very grateful but that there was nothing I could do."

"What about Lettice?"

"She was out playing tennis somewhere. She hadn't got home yet."

There was a pause and then Griselda said:

"You know, Len, she was really very queer—very queer indeed."

"The shock," I suggested.

"Yes—I suppose so. And yet——" Griselda furrowed her brows perplexedly. "It wasn't like that somehow. She didn't seem so much bowled over as—well—terrified."

"Terrified?"

"Yes—not showing it, you know. At least not meaning to show it. But a queer watchful look in her eyes. I wonder if she has a sort of idea who did kill him. She asked again and again if any one were suspected."

"Did she?" I said thoughtfully.

"Yes." Of course Anne's got marvelous self-control, but one could see that she was terribly upset. More so than I would have thought, for after all it wasn't as though she were so devoted to him. I should have said she rather disliked him, if anything."

"Death alters one's feelings sometimes," I said.

"Yes, I suppose so."

Dennis came in and was full of excitement over a footprint he had found in one of the flower beds. He was sure that the police had overlooked it and that it would turn out to be the turning point of the mystery.

I spent a troubled night. Dennis was up and about and out of the house long before breakfast to "study the latest developments" as he said.

Nevertheless it was not he but Mary who brought us the morning's sensational bit of news.

We had just sat down to breakfast when she burst into the room, her cheeks red and her eyes shining, and addressed us with her customary lack of ceremony.

"Arrested Lawrence," cried Griselda incredulously. "Impossible. It must be some stupid mistake."

"No mistake about it, mum," said Mary with a kind of gloating exultation. "Mr. Redding, he went there himself and gave himself up. Last night last thing. Went right in, threw down the pistol on the table and 'I did it' he says. Just like that."

She looked at us both, nodded her head vigorously, and withdrew satisfied with the effect she had produced. Griselda and I stared at each other.

"If it isn't true," said Griselda. "It can't be true."

She noticed my silence and said: "Len, you don't think it's true?"

I found it hard to answer her. I sat silent, thoughts whirling through my head.

"He must be mad," said Griselda. "Absolutely mad. Or do you think they were looking at the pistol together and it suddenly went off."

"That doesn't sound at all a likely thing to happen."

"But it must have been an accident of some kind. Because there's not a shadow of a motive. What earthly reason could Lawrence have for killing Col. Protheroe?"

I could have answered that question very decidedly, but I wished to spare Anne Protheroe as far as possible. There might still be a chance of keeping her name out of it.

"Remember, they had had a quarrel," I said.

"About Lettice and her bathing dress. Yes, but that's absurd. And even if he and Lettice were engaged secretly, well, that's not a reason for killing her father."

"We don't know what the true facts of the case may be, Griselda."

"You do believe it, Len! O! how can you? I tell you, I'm sure Lawrence never touched a hair of his head."

"Remember, I met him just outside the gate. He looked like a madman."

"Yes, but—O! it's impossible."

"There's the clock, too," I said. "This explains the clock. Lawrence must have put it back to 6:20 with the idea of making an alibi for himself. Look how Inspector Slack fell into the trap."

"You're wrong, Len. Lawrence knew about that clock being fast. Keeping the vicar up to time!" he used to say. Lawrence would never have made the mistake of putting it back to 6:22. He'd have put the clock somewhere possible—like a quarter to seven."

"He mayn't have known what time Protheroe got here. Or he may have simply forgotten about the clock being fast."

Griselda disagreed.

"No, if you were committing a murder, you'd be awfully careful about things like that."

"You don't know, my dear," I said mildly. "You've never done one."

Before Griselda could reply, a shadow fell across the breakfast table, and a very gentle voice said,

"I hope I am not intruding. You must forgive me. But in the sad circumstances—the very sad circumstances——"

It was our neighbor, Miss Marple. Accepting our polite disclaimers, she stepped in through the window and I drew up a chair for her. She looked faintly flushed and quite excited.

"Very terrible, is it not? Poor Col. Protheroe. Not a very pleasant man, perhaps, and not exactly popular, but it's none the less sad for that, to be actually shot in the vicarage study, I understand?"

I said that that had indeed been the case.

Ancient Stone Lion Tells of Early Palestine

Experts Interpret Art of Buried Cities.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

JERUSALEM, Aug. 26.—A small lion, carved out of limestone, a specimen of the pre-Greek period in Palestinian art, has been discovered at Kirjaith Sepher. This find was made at the site of ten cities linking the period of Abraham to much later eras. The expedition making the discovery is acting for an American school of oriental research in Jerusalem and the Xenia Theological seminary of Pittsburgh, Pa. Under the joint direction of Dr. Melvin Grove Kyle and Dr. W. F. Albright, the expedition has just finished excavations at Tell Peit Mirsim, 13 miles southwest of Hebron.

The lion is in a perfect state of preservation. It is crouching, and one of its forefeet is broken. The lion was said by Dr. Albright probably to have been one of a pair which, placed on either side, supported a throne of a goddess.

These objects were found among the debris of the uppermost of the Canaanite cities on a mound immediately below the earliest Israelitish city.

"I regard the lion as the most outstanding object of archaeological and historical interest ever discovered in Palestine," Dr. Albright declared.

The lion is three feet long and apparently of Canaanite workmanship. It might possibly have been used in connection with worship of the famous serpent goddess at about 1400 B. C.

Father Vincent of the celebrated French Antiquarian institute, Ecole Biblique de Saint Etienne, at Jerusalem, considered a leading authority on Palestine archaeology, said of the lion: "In my opinion, it is far earlier than any other pre-Greek object unearthed in Palestine and I deem it far in advance of the art of Egyptian sphinxes and griffons, because while it shows faint traces of Egyptian influence it is the most wonderful specimen of genuine early Canaanite art we have been fortunate enough to discover.

"I endorse Dr. Albright's opinion that the stone lion was one of a pair flanking the throne of a goddess idol or one of a pair placed at an entrance to a temple. This is borne out by the fact that the sacrificial altar was found in the debris nearby."

The lion, found standing on its nose in a heap of rubble, apparently cast out by conquering Israelites, will be housed in a Palestine museum for a time, but later transferred to the new Rockefeller Archaeological museum, now in course of construction in Jerusalem.

Guelph Treasure Will Go to Ohio Museum Soon

New York, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Six pieces of the historical Guelph treasure, a collection of ivory, enamel and silver, have been purchased by the Cleveland Museum of Art and will be installed in that museum this winter. The Goldschmidt galleries of New York so announced today. The collection was purchased by William M. Milliken, director of the museum, from those who had bought it from the duke of Brunswick, in whose family it had been for nearly 800 years. The pieces included were made for church purposes.

Replica of Fort Dearborn Will Be Shown in 1933

The contract for the erection of an exact replica of Fort Dearborn, to be one of the exhibits of the World's Fair in 1933, was awarded yesterday to Erskine-Sipchen, Inc. The reproduction of the fort, which will cost approximately $75,000, will be erected on the lake front at 26th street. The contract was signed at the Historical society offices with a model of the old fort serving as a background. Maj. L. R. Lohr, general manager of the fair, had charge of the arrangements.

CHICAGO APPLAUDS THE WELSH SINGERS AT CIVIC THEATER

BY EDWARD MOORE.

It is easy to understand why the Welsh Imperial singers came to the Civic theater last night preluded by so many words of praise from so many communities of different lands.

They are a picturesque and mellow throated organization. Twelve singers, an accompanist, and a conductor, they are costumed in bright red swallowtail coats, tight trousers, puffed shirts, black stocks, the conductor, R. Festyn Davies, varying the theme with tan coat, black knickerbockers and stockings. In other words, their garb is of the era when he-men were permitted to be ornamental in dress without impugning remarks.

Their song is sturdy, honest, virile, and of first class quality. They go in for singing as such, with no attempts to be a human orchestra, to imitate a pipe organ, or do any of the queer things that some modern choruses like to go in for. They are good at projecting English, and just as good, I suppose, at Welsh, though I claim no authoritative knowledge of that tongue.

The program was of glees, folk songs of the British isles, part songs, and choruses, with a pronounced if not entirely explicable passion for the works of the late Charles Gounod. The audience liked his "By Babylon's Wave," but it gave signs of liking better a song of the sea, author unknown, full of yo-hos and ha-ha-has. My preference was for "Bonnie Doon" and "Killarney." They were charming. Conductor Davies is evidently both an able musician and an able trainer.

Choruses were interspersed with soloists, among them Henry Jones, who sang the Credo from "Otello" in a way that showed that the English language and Verdi's music do not the slightest violence to each other, incidentally displaying a voice that would compare favorably with the most of those who do the excerpt in Italian. Other individual artists included Jack Newbury in the bass solo from Mozart's "Magic Flute"; Harry Williams, in a tenor solo from Dr. Parry's opera, "Blodwen," and Jabez Trevor and Howell Williams, in a duet again by Dr. Parry.

President Hoover to Review Veterans of Foreign Wars

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—President Hoover will go to Baltimore next Tuesday, Sept. 2, to review the parade of the national encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, it was announced at the White House today. He has had the invitation of Mayor Broening of Baltimore and Col. Harry C. Jones of the veterans' organization under consideration for some time.

G. A. R. Resents Time's Attack Upon Its Ranks

Leader Tells How Veterans Insist on Marching.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Disposal of a permanent fund of $32,000, a question that has been before the Grand Army of the Republic for five years, remained undecided today, being left for another year.

Donations to the G. A. R. by affiliated organizations have been sufficient for several years to pay all operating expenses and the permanent fund has not been touched.

The "Boys in Blue" continued to arrive today, but indications were that hardly more than 1,000 would be here for the next major activity of the veterans, the annual parade, tomorrow. Only a few hundred had been registered today and Edwin J. Foster, commander in chief, said he did not expect more than 1,500 at the most.

Members of the affiliated organizations bring the attendance up to approximately 15,000.

"How these old veterans hate to ride in the parade," Commander Foster exclaimed. "More and more are forced to every year, but they continue to walk long after they should stop."

The six subsidiary organizations of the G. A. R.—Army Nurses of the Civil War, National Women's Relief Corps, Ladies of the G. A. R., Daughters of Union Veterans, Sons of Union Veterans, and its auxiliary—arranged a reception in Foster's honor tonight.

The United States marine band, sent here by special act of congress, gave a public concert today and has been playing for all the important functions of the encampment.

The veterans were welcomed by Gov. Myers Y. Cooper at a reception last night as the "survivors of the greatest epoch in American history, but for whose achievement, Washington would have striven in vain, popular government would have died and the idealism which triumphed in the Spanish-American and world wars would not have appeared in history and eventuated in victory."

Three candidates for the national presidency of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic developed today. They were Mrs. May Slattery, Pittsburgh, national inspector; Mrs. Orpha M. Whittaker, Washington, D. C., national assistant corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Sarah J. Ehrmann, Lackawanna, N. Y. The election is tomorrow.

Television of Ballet Predicted for Homes of Radio Dance Fans

It will not be long before lovers of the ballet will sit in their homes and see on a screen, through television, the grace and rhythm of ballet dancing. That, at least, is the opinion of Thomas M. Sheehy of Chicago, one of the dancing masters who is putting 200 teachers through their paces this week at the Stevens hotel during the annual convention of Chicago dancing masters.

"The ballet is the foundation of all dancing, whether it be in the ballroom or the stage," Mr. Sheehy said. "In the last year or two dealers in dancing costumes have found that the demand for ballet slippers has fallen off 33 per cent while the demand for tap shoes has shot ahead 150 per cent."

After attending the national convention in New York last week, Mr. Sheehy came to the conclusion that dancing is more popular than ever.

How to dance in a two by four space or a crowded ballroom floor and keep one's composure, was demonstrated by Mrs. Anna Keenan and her son Walter of Philadelphia in the "new rhythm" step, that follows the principle of of the new "university drag" demonstrated on Monday. The couple went through a series of swaying side to side steps, the feet touching in a slow rhythm.

Washington Official to Talk Here During 2d World Peace Day

William Richards Castle Jr., an assistant secretary of state, will be the principal speaker at three observances today of the second anniversary of world peace day. The first will be a luncheon at the La Salle hotel where he will talk on "The Significance of the Kellogg Peace Pact," to be broadcast over WMAQ. Another speaker then will be Salmon O. Levinson, Chicago lawyer, who interested himself in the proposal to outlaw war long before it was in treaty form.

At 6:15 tonight Mr. Castle will talk over the national broadcasting network. At 8 p. m. he will open with an address the British-American field and track meet at Soldiers' field, being introduced by Coach A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago.

The pact was signed on Aug. 27, 1928, by fifteen nations, and later by 58. On July 24, 1929, President Hoover declared it to be in operation on behalf of this country. Advocates of international peace hope to make world peace day an international holiday to help strengthen the friendship among nations.

Olga Baclanova, Film Star, Mother of Nine Pound Son

THE STAGE

THE Chicago Civic Shakespeare society has issued an announcement of Fritz Leiber's repertory for his approaching season, in the form of an Elizabethan calendar. He will begin—at the Civic theater, of course—with "Hamlet," on Oct. 27. He will close with "MacBeth" on Dec. 26. Every night and matinee performance during these eight weeks will mean a change of bill. Eight of Shakespeare's plays will be offered, as follows: "Hamlet," "The Merchant of Venice," "As You Like It," "King Lear," "Twelfth Night," "Julius Caesar," "Macbeth," and "Richard III."

Thus it appears that Mr. Leiber's engagement will be two weeks shorter than last season's, and will contain all the plays then produced except "Othello." Mr. Leiber has not yet announced the personnel of his company.

Colleen Moore, one of the group of motion picture players who will appear on the stage this season under the management of Arch Selwyn, will begin rehearsals today. Her vehicle bears the title of "Foam." . . . Rod La Roque is now in New York ready for rehearsals whenever Vilma Banky, his co-star, arrives. They will be seen in a play called "How to Be Happy." . . . And Lya De Putti's play, called "Made in France," will be launched at Woodstock, N. Y., tomorrow night.

Ethel Dunlap, from the Goodman school of acting and repertory company, is now playing the ingenue rôle in "Sisters of the Circus," at the Apollo, and the management of that play regards her as a highly promising discovery. Miss Dunlap appeared as the young girl in the sandpit scene of John Galsworthy's "Escape" at the Goodman last spring, and was credited with a pretty little hit. She also participated in every production of the Goodman's children's theater during the last two years, winning especial attention in "Little Women" and "The Scotch Twins." She is seventeen years old. The seasoned professionals in the cast of "Sisters of the Chorus" are enthusiastic over the new recruit.

George M. Cohan will begin a tour in his revival of "The Tavern" in Brooklyn Oct. 27. The other revivals which he has planned will be postponed until next spring. A new play of his writing called "The Well Known Woman," will have an autumn première in New York.

Florenz Ziegfeld is reorganizing his activities with the intention of spending one-half the year in producing for the stage and the other half in transforming his shows into talking pictures. He plans a talking picture version of a "Ziegfeld Follies" for which he hopes to secure the services of Will Rogers, a "Follies" veteran. At present he is turning his old musical comedy, "Manhattan Mary," into sound films.

"The picture industry," says Mr. Ziegfeld, "must realize that it is now competing with the legitimate theater. Unless the picture magnates surround themselves with showmen from the stage, I predict that within a year one-half of the picture houses will be closed for lack of attractions."

But in spite of Mr. Ziegfeld's prophecy, the legitimate theater continues to worry over the talkie menace.

The Colony theater, at Broadway and 52d street, New York, will change its policy of talking pictures in order to shelter "The New Yorkers," a musical comedy by Donald Ogden Stewart and Cole Porter. This show will go into rehearsal three weeks hence. Its cast will include Clayton, Jackson and Durante; Waring's Pennsylvanians, Frances Williams, and possibly Charles King.

Clifton Webb, Libby Holman and Fred Allen, the trio of "Little Show" stars, will soon begin to frolic in a revue called "Three's a Crowd," formerly labeled "About Town." This show will be born in Baltimore Sept. 29. After a week there and another in Washington it will make its début in New York.

"Nina Rosa," the operetta which was one of Chicago's long-run shows last season, will have its New York première Sept. 22 at the Majestic theater. Ethelind Terry will be the prima donna in place of Berna Deane. Otherwise the cast will remain unchanged. C. C.

Chicago Will Recall Birth of Civil War Song Writer

The anniversary of the birth of George Frederick Root, writer of "The Battle Cry of Freedom," "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching," and other patriotic songs, will be observed Aug. 30 by the Chicago Historical society. Root was born Aug. 30, 1820, in Sheffield, Mass.

"The Battle Cry of Freedom," the song for which Mr. Root is most noted, was written in Chicago in 1861 just after Lincoln's second call for troops. It was first sung by Frank and Jules Lombard before a public meeting in court house square.

3 More Music Festivals for Chicagoland

Week of Tuneful Pageant Planned for 1933.

Two days for the Chicagoland Music Festival in 1931—three days for the 1932 festival, and for 1933, the world's fair year, a solid week of music and pageantry for the people of all lands to enjoy.

This was the plan announced yesterday when THE TRIBUNE made application to the south park commissioners for the use of Soldiers' field during these periods. The festivals will be held in the third week in August.

The success of the first festival last Saturday night, its history making crowd, demonstrated that here a great popular service may be done, and it is planned to do it better and better every year.

Work has already begun on the great new amplifying system that will correct the errors discovered at this festival. A permanent staff will be organized to start work on the festival for next year and keep at it from now on. Instead of 5,000 contestants, it is hoped to have 10,000, and added features of a pageant that will appeal to the sight as well as to the hearing.

The Chicagoland newspapers which coöperated with THE TRIBUNE are sending in their acceptance for next year's effort. The messages received from them follow;

"Congratulations. The Hawkeye gladly joins in the annual Music Festival."—J. Tracy Garrett, Hawkeye, Burlington, Ia.

"The Herald-Argus congratulates THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE on the great success of Chicagoland's Music Festival and happily accepts the invitation to coöperate in next year's event."—Charles A. Beal, Herald-Argus, La Porte, Ind.

"We certainly will be with you next year," said Frank Young, managing editor of The Defender, "the chorus of 1,000 that sang spirituals at the recent music festival will be replaced by a chorus twice that size."

"You may have our coöperation for the 1931 Music Festival. Congratulations."—E. H. Northam, News, Michigan City, Ind.

"Music Festival O. K. for next year."—Carl G. Sackett, Daily News, Kankakee, Ill.

"Indeed, yes. Both the Courier and the Journal are desirous of again cooperating with TRIBUNE in the annual bigger and better Music Festival. We appreciated being part of it and having contributed to the gigantic success your venture proved on Saturday. Immediately following the success of our local music festival we announced it as an annual event. Regards."—Karl K. Knecht, Evansville, Ind.

"The Telegraph will be glad to cooperate in the annual festival."—George B. Shaw, Dixon, Ill.

"You may count the Kenosha News in on the music festival plan again."—Ernest F. Marlatt, Kenosha, Wis.

"You may enter News-Times for 1931 music festival."—M. P. Reed, News-Times, South Bend, Ind.

"We will again coöperate in the music festival. Think it one of the finest services a newspaper can render its community."—Frank Just, News-Sun, Waukegan, Ill.

Through a misunderstanding the band judges in the finals of the Chicagoland Music Festival ranked the Hammond High school band third in the adult class. This rating was given for appearance at Soldiers' field, but was not for contest judging. The ranking of the bands was as follows:

Adult—First, Cedar Falls, Ia.; second, Fairbanks-Morse, Beloit, Wis.; third, De Kalb city band, De Kalb, Ill.

Boys—First, Hammond High school band; second, St. Mary's Training school band of Des Plaines, Ill.; third, Decatur High school "Redcoats," Decatur, Ill.

Colleen Moore Here on Hollywood-Gotham Trip

Colleen Moore, in a costume of autumn brown, passed through Chicago yesterday from Hollywood, New York bound. She was visibly enthusiastic over her approaching presentation by the theater Selwyns in her first appearance on the speaking stage. She is to take the lead in "Foam," and after it runs in New Yorks expects to go along on the road tour. On the Santa Fé Chief also was Virginia Valli, Chicago born and a motion picture star who didn't seem to mind having no plans at all—at least for publication.

Understanding, Prevention Are Better Than Cure

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A booklet on sex education will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"So many parents wait until their boys and girls are 15 or so—wait until they find themselves worried to death over something those boys or girls have done, before they begin to have an inkling of the fact that perhaps they've made a mistake themselves in managing their children." This from a woman who has made a study of adolescent boys and girls.

And she goes on to say that if you really want to be of the greatest help to your children, be prepared for their adolescent years. Don't wait until they are 14 or 16 before you begin to try to understand. Then often some damage has already been done through misunderstanding. Instead, try to gain some idea of what is ahead for you and for them—what this definite burgeoning into manhood and womanhood brings with it. With preparedness usually comes wisdom.

Now, by that I don't mean to say that every father and mother nor every boy and girl go through a time of strain and stress. In many families life runs smoothly on through all the years. And while the middle teens are different and mean greater changes than those of earlier childhood, even then no special difficulties crop up in many families. This is almost always because there is understanding, and a light but sure touch on the guiding lines. These parents are close to their children, they accept the fact that 16 can't be treated like 6—and things go merrily as a wedding bell.

But this is not generally true. Many parents find themselves completely at a loss to know why their sons become defiant, or sulky, or rebellious, and their daughters disobedient, or wild—or perhaps just the opposite, withdrawn and secretive—at this time.

Of course, there is much you can learn on the spot, when trouble arises. But prevention is better than any cure. Books and booklets can be of material help to you.

A few carefully selected reading references on adolescence are yours for the asking. Please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for the reply.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius K. G. Billings, who have been passing the month on their houseboat, Old River, will return to their tower apartment this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Durell are expected tomorrow from Saratoga Springs and will be at the Berkshire, where they have taken an apartment for the winter season.

Mr. and Mrs. Sturtevant Erdmann of 1070 Park avenue are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter last Friday at the Doctors hospital, New Canaan, Conn.

Girl Wonders Why She's Disliked and Asks Doris Reason

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"My fiancé informs me that there are many people who dislike me intensely, that I am not not sociable. I don't understand. I never intentionally hurt any one's feelings or snubbed any one. I am developing an inferiority feeling. I dread to meet people, particularly girls of my own age. They do not seem to like me. What can you suggest as the cause of the matter. KAT."

Some one said the other day that a woman is never sure that a man is in love with her until he begins trying to improve her. So, maybe, the unflattering revelation from friend fiancé may be interpreted. Anyway, he is your fiancé, so that proves that you must be able to make yourself most agreeable company when you try. Otherwise, he surely would have escaped ere this.

One does not have to hurt people's feelings or snub any one to be not liked. One may be disliked because one is not friendly. Unfriendliness, though it may be born of that inferiority feeling you speak of, has a way of being interpreted as coldness or snobbishness, or a dozen other unpleasant things. So that one knowing she suffers timidity or fear of opinions should know that in order not to be misunderstood entirely she has to exert herself to put up a friendly front, no matter how hard the effort.

Maybe you are one of the unpopular ones with her sex who never gives out a compliment. Are you tongue tied when the moment calls for a pleasant bit of blarney? Or, maybe you don't see things in other girls to give a word of praise for. If your thoughts are turned on yourself, as is true with the inferiority suffering, your vision is blurred and of course you can't see the nice things in other people that call for a word of appreciation.

There is nothing truer than the old maxim about making friends by being friendly. You can't make them otherwise, nor hold them, either. And girls nowadays are generally quite frank about administering praise when occasions of meeting warrant a nice word about the frock worn, the hat, the coiffure or the figure, or an accomplishment. So one whose tongue cannot or will not express a pleasantry is bound to be out of luck with her fellows.

Practice Ie Needed in Acquiring That Perfect Eye Makeup

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

It does make one a little envious when one sees a pair of eyes not naturally ravishing but made so with just the proper shade and application of eye makeup! I saw such a pair but yesterday. I had no idea the girl's eyes had such potentialities. Neither did she until she became interested in dramatic art and fell into the friendship of a makeup expert.

Her eyes were a bluish gray, not large, but she did have lovely long lashes. Her expert friend chose the blue for the lids for her, showed her how to put it on correctly, and, as I say, the girl's eyes are really lovely now.

I have a feeling that in a few years from now we will all have become as adept at eye makeup as the French women and we will flaunt our art just as boldly. At present, women are only beginning to discover the beauty secret of eye makeup. Because they are for the most part in the kindergarten stage of learning, one does surely see the hand of the amateur abroad.

Practice and practice and more practice is needed. If you are uncertain about what shade shadow, mascara, and eyebrow pencil to use, let an expert guide you at first. Pay for a lesson or two.

Try blue eye shadow as a first experiment if your eyes are blue or gray or green. It lends a youthful, flattering tone. You can get the shadow paste in a clear blue and in a green blue. Then, there is a green shadow, lovely with hazel eyes and gray. It lends warmth and depth to a pale eye. Of course, the brunette with black hair and brown eyes will want to stick to the black and brown eye shadowing, but they must be excessively careful to exercise a most sophisticated restraint with the dusky shadow. Otherwise they may look hard and old.

Mascara for the lashes may be had now in blue and blue green along with the usual shades. Experiment until you get just the thing to make your eyes larger, deeper, and more brilliantly lighted.

If you use a paste shadow for the eyes, rub a little cream lightly over the lids first to keep down the color.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

What was the most embarrassing moment of your life? If you care to have it published, address Embarrassing Moments, Chicago Tribune. Please write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

Barber's Revenge.

I think I witnessed a young woman having her most embarrassing moment a few days ago in a barber shop. It seems that she always was in the habit of coming in for a fifteen cent shine or a ten cent neck clip and tendering a $10 or $20 bill. The proprietor, finding that was her smallest, said to let it go "till next time." Next time she usually had a still larger bill. This time she said, "All I have with me is a $5 bill. Can you change that?" He reached for the bill and answered, "Yes," and handing her five cents in change said, "Your bill for today was ten cents, in the past when you didn't have change it totaled $4.85, so here is your change. Thank you. Come in again some time." T. E.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Here's Chance to Aid.

"My husband is out of work, we owe three months' rent, gas and other bills, and we have four children. We expect to get a notice to move almost any day and I don't know where we'll go or what we'll do. We need clothing—I haven't a thing to wear—and I thought you'd probably be able to get some for us. I wear size 34, my husband 36, and the children are girls, 5, 2½, and 1½ years old. The baby is just a month old. We have almost no furniture in the house and I could use a heating stove, bedding, or any other pieces you may be able to get us. "MRS. C. S."

Suffering and privation have been this family's fare for many months and I hope you can give them the help that will put an end to it.

Lena M. Phillips of New York Leads International Group

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, Aug. 26.—After organizing an international federation of business and professional women, delegates from twenty countries who have been meeting here since Sunday for this purpose, elected Miss Lena Phillips, an attorney of New York, as their president.

The other officers are Vice-Presidents Signora Ester Traversari of Italy, Madame Yvonne Netter of France, Dr. Helen Fraser of England, the corresponding secretary is Miss Dorothy Henneker of Canada, and the treasurer is Miss Henrietta Harris of the United States.

The establishment of a bureau of research in America and Europe to investigate problems of business and professional women has been authorized.

The American Federation of Business and Professional Women, which is the largest in the world with a total of 58,000 members, sponsored the movement to form an international organization.

Chicago Group Will Be Host for the Britons

BY THALIA

The Cambridge men in Chicago are to give a luncheon at the University club tomorrow for the Cambridge members of the British empire track team, here for the international meet at Soldiers' field this evening. Durand Smith, who studied at Cambridge in 1927, and Donald P. Welles are making the arrangements and are corralling as many of the men as are in town to be on hand.

The local group includes Edison and Sheldon Dick, Allster and Leander McCormick, James H. Douglas Jr., John Stuart Coonley Jr., John G. Curtis, Keith Drake of Wilmette, and Robert Ross of Evanston.

Lord Burghley, captain of the team, and seven other members of it represent the Cambridge contingent. Mr. Smith is having a small dinner tonight before the meet, and tomorrow evening he is to give a dinner party for Bernard Babbington Smith at Onwentsia. Inasmuch as the team returns to Hamilton, Ont., tomorrow night, there will be no more time for social abilities during the athletes' stay. Mr. Smith, who is one of Cambridge's best pole vaulters, is Durand Smith's house guest at the Franklin P. Smith residence in Lake Forest during his stay. Mr. Smith and Mr. Welles are anxious that any other Cambridge men in town whose whereabouts they do not know should know of the luncheon and attend if possible.

Mrs. Richard S. Folsom, who has been active in making arrangements for the visit of the team, is to have a dinner and box party this evening.

The Delavan Lake Garden club is to hold its second flower show of the season at the Delavan Country club on Friday. The first show, held in July, was to show the quality of the flowers raised in the vicinity. This one is to show what the women are capable of doing with the flowers. Contests will be held for arrangements of cut flowers, baskets, bowls, vases, wall pockets, country house luncheon tables, children's party tables, and porch stands. Mrs. Joseph W. Moulding, president of the garden club; Mrs. Charles G. Stevens, chairman of the show; Mrs. E. C. Berriman, Mrs. Anson Cameron, Mrs. Fred Merrick, and Mrs. Robert Sage compose the committee in charge.

The junior auxiliary of the Children's Memorial hospital is to hold a fall hat sale at the White Elephant on Wednesday, Sept. 10. Mrs. Francis Kirman is to be in charge.

Miss Elinor Trostel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert O. Trostel of Milwaukee, and John Kranz Notz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Felix J. Notz of 521 Stratford place, are to be married at the Trostel residence on Sept. 13. The Rev. E. Reginald Williams of Milwaukee will officiate.

Mrs. Charles M. Hines is to be the matron of honor, and Miss Beatrice Trostel is to be maid of honor. The respective sisters of the bride and groom are to be Miss Trostel's only attendants. Felix J. Notz Jr. is to be best man for his brother, and the ushers will include Marshall Allen, Bowen E. Schumacher, Neil Williams, Charles M. Hines, and Rush Clark Butler, all of Chicago, and Albert O. Trostel Jr. and Otto H. Falk Jr. of Milwaukee. A reception at the Trostel residence will follow the service.

A financial crisis was successfully surmounted recently by Betty Lord, younger of Mrs. Russell Lord's two daughters. Betty, it seems, has not been so avid for the delights of swimming as has her sister Kathleen, who always carries off many of the honors at the Winter club in Lake Forest. In her lack of interest in aquatics, Betty's swimming suit always was being mislaid and lost. Mrs. Lord protested after the loss of several suits during the summer. In order to impress her child's mind with her carelessness, she announced that the latter would be charged the cost, $4.85, of the most recently acquired suit. The prospect of paying off the fine from a 50 cent a week allowance was rather dismaying, so Mrs. Lord promised to strike off the 35 cents if Betty would bring herself to make her first and long postponed dive. That afternoon, she was discovered by Kathleen, standing in utmost dejection on the brink of the pool. "I'd certainly like to get out of this some way," she remarked to her sister, "but I'm so hopelessly in debt, I'm just desperate."

Wherewith, with a resigned sigh, she made the plunge. Since then, she has been diving away with the best of them.

The Harve Badgerow family will reassemble at their Winnetka residence to Sept. 2 after a summer of separation. Mrs. Badgerow and the youngest daughter, Miss Susan, have been at the Les Cheneaux club near Mackinac island, Mich., and Miss Louise has been visiting friends in the east. The two girls are visiting their grandmother, Mrs. Adella Badgerow, at her summer place on west Okiboji lake, Ia., for 10 days. Mr. and Mrs. Badgerow have just returned from a housewarming party given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Biddle at their new lodge in Minnesota. The Peirce C. Wards and the Martin Lindsays were also guests of the Biddles.

Federal Department of Education Opposed

Emmitsburg, Md., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Voicing of opposition to the establishment of a federal department of education by delegates attending the biennial convention of the International Catholic Alumnae was urged here today by Miss Agnes Regan, chairman of the committee on legislation, to take an active interest in national, state and city legislation.

"It behooves us," she said, "to interest ourselves in educational legislation in the several states. The fact that we maintain our own educational systems should not prevent us from being deeply interested in the great public school system in which many of our Catholic children must of necessity be included and where thousands of Catholic teachers are employed."

Strengthening of Catholic schools by the fullest opportunity for perfect preparation of teachers was urged by Rev. Harry M. Benzinger of Baltimore.

"In the near future," she declared, "there will be a nationwide discussion regarding the control and direction of education. Every member of the association should be prepared to understand the issues which are to come up in the national congress, and to be informed in the press of the country."

MIDSUMMER BRIDE

[Du Bois Photo.]

The marriage of Miss Margaret Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Riordan of 7922 Paxton avenue, to David John Stafford took place on Aug. 16 at Our Lady of Peace church. The ceremony was followed by a reception and dinner at the residence of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Stafford are at Lake Louise, Canada, and after Sept. 7 will reside at 7702 Cornell avenue.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Innovations were the rule at the garden party at the White House this afternoon. President and Mrs. Hoover entertained the members of foreign bar associations who came to the Chicago convention as guests of the American Bar association. The guests were ushered through the mansion to the south portico. There President and Mrs. Hoover received informally. The guests then passed down the stairway into the grounds.

The President and Mrs. Hoover first had greeted the members of the American Bar association, who were congregated under a large tree, passing among them instead of standing and having them approach. Then they passed on to the end of the lawn and received all the other guests. When all had been received the hosts roamed about among the company, stopping to chat.

Mrs. Hoover wore a flowered chiffon gown of the flowing type, with circular flounces and a cape over the shoulders, in russet colors. Her hat was a broad-brimmed, floppy one of black horsehair. Lady Simon was in ecru lace, with a hat of Chinese blue and a Japanese parasol.

Sandwiches, coffee, and cakes were served from several gay marquees on the lawn, and the company lingered until nearly six o'clock. Col. and Mrs. Edward Clifford, formerly of Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Loesch were among the Chicago guests.

Mrs. Hoover attended the luncheon given by the ladies' committee for the entertainment of the ladies accompanying the foreign lawyers visiting here. It was given at Wardman Park hotel. Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, also was present. She is honorary chairman of the ladies' committee, of which Mrs. William P. MacCracken Jr., formerly of Chicago, is chairman.

Food Talk.

Soft, gleaming and quivery—the perfect custard. Among desserts, what is more appealing and nutritious? Here is a food made of milk and eggs mainly. Boiled or baked, it may be served to the sick and well alike. And fortunately both are fond of it.

The combination is a most excellent one so far as nutrients go. Milk is important in the diet of the adult as well as the child because of its complete proteins, its lime and phosphorous and vitamins A, B and D. Eggs are almost as valuable because they contain complete proteins, phosphorous and iron and vitamins A, B and D.

The method of making ideal custard is simple. But how small is the proportion of cooks who have learned this simplicity! Too many times the custard is broken, cheesy and watery. The trouble arises in cooking, not in mixing. Combining ingredients consists of beating the eggs slightly and adding 1 cup scalded milk and 1 1-3 tablespoons sugar to each egg. The mixture is stirred during the addition of the hot milk to prevent formation of lumps.

If the custard is to be boiled it must be cooked over hot water with constant stirring until the mixture forms a coating on a metal spoon. Just as soon as this is accomplished the custard should be removed from the heat because further cooking and a higher temperature cause separation of the coagulated mass, or curdling.

Flavoring is added at the last if the custard is boiled. It is added before cooking begins. The old standbys, vanilla and grated nutmeg, are liked best.

Custards to be baked are mixed in the same way. The mixture is strained into baking cups (preferably glass or crockery ones) that have first been rinsed in cold water. Like the boiled custard, the baked must also be cooked at a temperature below the boiling point. This is achieved by surrounding the custard cups with hot water and placing them in a slow oven not heated above 325 degrees F. The water around the cups should never boil.

About 25 or 30 minutes of cooking at this temperature is necessary to obtain perfect coagulation. The custard is done when an inserted knife comes out clean. Such custards unmold nicely, refuse to "weep" and are tender and jellylike. It is cooking at a higher temperature that spoils the product.

Delicious variations of the basic custard are easily made. Chocolate, coffee, caramel, and cocoanut may be used as flavoring.

Spain's Foreign Legion Chief May Visit U. S.

TETUAN, Spanish Morocco, Africa, Aug. 26.—(AP)—With an arm shot off and an eye shot out, a bullet hole through his face and bearing the scars of a hundred desert battles, Gen. José Millan Astray, founder of the Spanish Foreign legion, is on his way to America.

The general has been invited to Mexico as an honor guest by President Ortiz Rubio and his secretary of war, Gen. Joaquin Amaro. The general expects to reach Vera Cruz Sept. 1, after a stop in Havana Aug. 30, and probably will reach New York Oct. 5.

The general would like very much to find in the United States a certain "Yanqui," one of many roamers and adventurers who at one time or another have chosen, for reasons best known to themselves, to enlist under any name that pleased them in perhaps the hardest boiled body of fighting men on earth—not excepting the French Foreign legion; for the Spanish outfit prides itself on being, if anything, harder boiled than the French.

This "Yanqui" was lying wounded in a Spanish Moroccan hospital and the wife of Gen. Millan Astray, as was her custom, visited there and gave him a few cigarets, a smile, a pat on his forehead and a word of cheer. She did that to thousands.

"To twenty thousand, all in all, I dare say," the general declared, "but of all those thousands that Yanqui did something no other legionnaire ever did. When he could walk he went to the town market and, from his few coppers, bought a little bouquet of flowers and four pieces of candy. He limped out to my house and requested to see my wife. With great dignity, yet simplicity, he presented her the little flowers and the four pieces of candy.

"She was very touched. And I was—although, of course, I could never let him know so because of discipline. Only a 'Yanqui' did, or could do, that. I should love to see that 'Yanqui' when I am in the United States—but, of course, I never will. I do not even know his name, or whether he is alive.

"We have had fine 'Yanqui' fighting men in the legion. Some Negroes have been especially notable—black men from the south of your country. They will fight, those men. I remember one who called himself Jack Johnson. Of course, he was not the prize fighter. I never had a better noncommissioned officer. I don't know his real name. All we ask in the legion is that a man be a soldier and indifferent to hardship and danger. We ask no other questions. But God help the man who thinks it is a place for weaklings."

Stockwell, Fargo, N. D., New General Grand Master

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Walter L. Stockwell of Fargo, N. D., was elected general grand master of the Masonic general grand council at the 17th triennial assembly here yesterday. He formerly was general grand conductor of work and succeeds O. Frank Hart of Columbia, S. C. Other new officers include Robert A. Woods, Princeton, Ind., general grand deputy master, and Nelson Williams, Hamilton, O., general grand conductor of work.

Summer Camp Needs More Funds to Give Holidays to the Poor

Most any way you look out tenement or shanty windows you encounter dingy washings flapping from clotheslines. Most any time you step into such a kitchen you see a woman, her hair moist and her face flushed with heat, bent over a stove or busying herself with the hundred and one demands of her several children.

Many such a mother sees in imagination the fields free and open.

That's where Camp Algonquin can be made useful.

With only $3,434.57 in the Camp Algonquin fund, raised this season by TRIBUNE readers, it is apparent that a big deficit will result unless old friends hurry to the rescue.

Vacations are to be given to families until Sept. 16. There is still time to send a mother or child there. Your $10 will give her a two weeks' vacation, and if you have a few dollars over it will help make up the deficit.

A last minute benefit for camp before school starts Monday was the lemonade stand by Dorothy Fantl, Chicago, and Jane Seaman, Jackson, Mich., at Jackson. It brought the fund $1.

"We are very glad to be of some help to the ice fund," wrote Mary Baumann, Betty June and Jimmie Barrie, Jill Price, Gene Seanor, and Billy Sutter of Evanston in sending $3.60: "We sold lemonade for two weeks."

Fitted Jacket for the Tennis Frock

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Paris doesn't like the cardigan sweater any more. There's nothing to be done about it. If you crave to be chic, you'll have to abandon the poor familiar, squarish wrap yourself. To be fitting to fashion every wrap has to be fitted these days and it's a ticklish matter to fit a tennis jacket without making it so constricting that it serves badly for the energetic game.

The other day at the tennis matches in Wimbledon a new kind of fitted jacket made its debut that seems to fit perfectly the style pattern and the exigencies of the game. It is sketched for you. Isn't it attractive? This jacket is made of pure white wool knitted in ribbed pattern, and fitted, in the knitting, to the waistline. There is so much elasticity in the tricot that it gives to the slightest movement and yet it holds its shape.

The neckline hugs the base of the throat and is finished by a round, turn-over collar of red tricot. The set-in breast and hip pockets are decorated with rounded flaps of red tricot and the buttons are steel ones covered by knitted red caps.

The hat is particularly good for the tennis enthusiast. It is crocheted of red wool to match the trimmings of the jacket and is faced with white crochet. The brim is starched the least little bit to make it hold its shape and the supple crown is folded down in back under a red knitted bow.

This jacket and hat are worn with a tennis dress of white linen with a plain sleeveless blouse and a skirt flared by four set-on, square-topped godets.

FARM AND GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

HONOR ROLL GARDENS.

This morning's mail will bring in the last of the may nominations of neighbors for selection of the outstanding amateur gardens of Chicago and suburbs. Judging is already under way for the determination of THE TRIBUNE's first semi-annual Honor Roll of Outstanding Gardens.

Nominations for this award bring with the approval of judges a certificate handsomely prepared and suitable for framing as recognition of worthwhile accomplishment in flower gardening. Already it is evident to judges that every good gardener not only expresses deserved pride in his or her own handiwork, but that neighbors share in the natural beauties of a well planned and capably managed flower garden.

For those who live within a radius of forty miles of Tribune Tower and who were not nominated this fall there is still hope for recognition. Again next spring and in the fall calls will be issued by this paper for nominations.

Announcement of the names and addresses of those who are awarded the certificate will be made in the Metropolitan section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of Sept. 14.

Scientific Designing makes Kotex inconspicuous under clinging summer frocks

Kotex now has rounded, tapered corners which eliminate awkward bulges and assure a snug, firm fit.

THERE are times when you hesitate to wear your lightest, thinnest summer dresses ... unless you know about Kotex.

Kotex is the sanitary pad that is designed for inconspicuous protection. The corners are rounded and tapered. Sides, too, are designed to fit with the greatest possible comfort.

Wear Kotex without a worry, then, under any frock you possess. Wear it on hot summer days, when you've reduced your clothing to a minimum.

Light, cool, comfortable

There's another way in which this careful shaping brings wonderful relief. Kotex is so much more comfortable. There's no unneeded bulk to pack and chafe. No awkward bulges to grow terribly uncomfortable.

Kotex is always light, always cool, always comfortable. This is largely due to its remarkable filler—Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding. Cellucotton is five times more absorbent than cotton. This means your Kotex pad can be five times lighter than any cotton pad, for the same absorbency and protection. America's leading hospitals—85% of them—choose this same absorbent for important surgical work.

Kotex deodorizes. And it is disposable, just like tissue. Kotex Company, Chicago, Ill.

KOTEX IS SOFT ...
1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, fleecy softness.
2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.
3—Deodorizes ... safely, thoroughly, by a special process.
4—Disposable, instantly, completely.

Regular Kotex—45c for 12
Kotex Super-Size—65c for 12

Ask to see the KOTEX BELT and KOTEX SANITARY APRON at any drug, dry goods or department store.

CHICAGO GROUP AFTER SITE FOR NEW YORK STORE

Field Interests Named in Report.

New York, Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Negotiations are pending for the purchase of the frontage on the east side of Broadway, between 32d and 33d streets, by a "well known Chicago firm" as the site for a tall department store building. Official announcement of the deal is expected within a few days.

The Marshall Field or the Wrigley interests were mentioned as the prospective purchasers, most of the reports naming the Marshall Field organization. The purchase price is reported to be close to $9,000,000.

The properties which would be brought together under the plan are reported to include the Hotel Martinique, the Hotel Alcazar, and the Wilson building, an office structure. The Broadway plot would contain approximately 34,800 square feet.

Leslie Cushman, head of the D. A. Cushman Realty corporation, owners of the Alcazar, denied that his property had been sold. Interests close to the Martinique and others admitted, however, such a deal was pending.

Entry of a Chicago department store into the New York field would add an important unit to the midtown shopping district, realty men pointed out. Directly across Greeley square from the proposed location is the store of Gimbel Brothers, adjoining Gimbel's on the north is Saks & Co., and most of the next block front, from Thirty-fourth to Thirty-fifth street, is taken up by Macy & Co.

Leases on some of the stores in the property mentioned in the negotiations for the Chicago company might delay for a time the erection of any new building.

Woman Ends Life with Poison; Note Accuses Mate

Mrs. Celia Barrett, 32 years old, of 6456 Maryland avenue, died yesterday in the Chicago Osteopathic hospital after drinking poison in her home. In a note found by the Woodlawn police the woman accused her estranged husband, Martin Barrett, 6543 Cottage Grove avenue, of mistreatment. The husband promised the police he would be present at the inquest today.

How His Attitude to Labor Changed Told by Couzens

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 26.—(AP)—James Couzens, Michigan's senior senator, reached his 58th birthday anniversary today, and recalled the incident sixteen years ago which he said converted him to the principles which cause his political opponents to call him "radical" and "irresponsible."

The incident occurred when Couzens was a chieftain of industry, long before he became the senator who last winter startled a group manufacturers by assailing as "careless" and "thoughtless" present employment methods and warned them that unless business does something to stabilize the workingman's income, government will.

Changes Attitude on Workers.

"I confess there was a time when I was not so keen about the rights and interests of the workingman," Couzens said. "I recall a winter day in 1914, when, with a stroke of the pen I ordered the discharge of several thousand workers of the Ford Motor company, of which I was then general manager. I stood in the office window and saw these men milling about, outside the gates. It was bitterly cold and under these conditions I saw the hose turned on them.

"I got converted right there. After 48 hours of discussion, Henry Ford agreed to raise wages from $2.30 a day to $5, in the hope that such men as we could retain might save something out of the increased wages for any contingency of lay off in the future. And for that I want to pay my warmest compliments to Mr. Ford."

Seldom Mentions Ford.

The reference to Ford was one of the few Couzens has made publicly in recent years to the man in whose association he rose from a $200 a month clerkship to immense wealth in sixteen years. It was about a year after the incident related that Couzens left the Ford company after a disagreement with Mr. Ford. Later he sold his interest in the firm for $30,000,000.

This birthday recalled another when Couzens was 55. On that day he said that "there isn't enough work to keep a senator busy," and that "we [United States senators] are all overpaid, and vacations are too long." The statement created a furor, but Couzens has been in turmoils more often than not, including a long drawn out quarrel with Secretary Mellon.

SHOW VALUABLE STAMPS CARRIED BY LINDBERGH

The two most valued stamps ever sent by air mail yesterday were added to the exhibit of air mail stamps being displayed in the Hotel Sherman by the Chicago Postage Stamp club. The stamps, a 15 cent 1875 Lincoln stamp and a 5 cent 1882 Garfield stamp, were on a letter carried to Chicago from Springfield by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh while he was an air mail pilot. The letter bearing the stamps was addressed to R. C. Davidson, traffic manager of the Morton Salt company, and a member of the club.

Another addition to the stamp exhibit is a letter written by Irving Glover, second assistant postmaster general in charge of air mail, while he was flying from Mexico City to Brownsville, Tex. It was addressed to William W. Forpanek, 4501 North La Porte avenue, Chicago. At the time the letter was written Mr. Glover was flying over various routes in Mexico in the interest of air mail service between Mexico and the United States.

THROWN FROM BOAT; KILLED.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Edward Steele, 33, of Rogers City, Mich., was killed last night at Detour, Mich., when he was thrown from the back of a speeding outboard motor boat by a cable stretched from the lighter ship Champion to an anchorage in the St. Mary's river.

COUNTY ALLOWS $60,271 MORE FOR REASSESSMENT

The county board yesterday granted the request of Harry S. Cutmore, director of appraisals for the board of assessors, for an additional appropriation of $60,271 to pay salaries and other expenses in completing the realty reassessment. This brought the total cost of the reassessment to $8,783,000.

Part of the money will be used to combat tax objections filed in County court. Hayden N. Bell, attorney for the county board, said that he expects between 300,000 and 400,000 objections will be filed.

The first of a series of public hearings on tax increases under the reassessment was held yesterday by the assessors. The hearings will be continued daily during the week.

HURL BOMB INTO POLICE STATION IN INDIA; 6 HURT

CALCUTTA, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The Jorabafan police station in the suburbs of Calcutta was bombed this evening. Six persons were injured.

Five residents in a boarding house, attached to Bangabashi college, and two other persons were arrested today in connection with the bomb attack yesterday upon Sir Charles Tegart, police commissioner. They were said to belong to the same organization as the Chittagong arsenal raiders.

One of the actual perpetrators of the bombing died of wounds received, when one of the two bombs thrown at Sir Charles exploded. The other of the assassins escaped.

SIMLA, Aug. 26.—(AP)—It was persistently rumored today that Pandit Motilal Nehru, a Nationalist leader now in jail at Allahabad, would be released on medical grounds.

Surrender 20 Tribal Chiefs.

PESHAWAR, India, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The Malla Kahel section of the Orakzais and Chamkannis, for some time forming one of the most belligerent of the border tribes, today handed over to the authorities twenty of their leading chiefs as hostages.

The situation on the northwestern frontier was quieter today with no signs of further trouble reported from Mohmand and other Afridi infested districts.

"Competitive sports not only satisfy the combative instinct born in every boy, but international games lead to better understanding between races.

"When the youth of the world reaches for a spiked shoe instead of a blade and for a football instead of a gun the world is advancing toward peace," he concluded.

Pat Canty, chairman of the luncheon, introduced Avery Brundage, president of the Amateur Athletic union, who proposed a toast to King George. Mr. Brundage was followed by Sir Harry Barclay of London, secretary of the British Amateur Athletic association, who responded with a toast to President Hoover.

Rotary President Speaks.

Almon E. Roth, president of Rotary International and comptroller of Leland Stanford university, welcomed the visiting athletes. The response was made by William M. Barnard, treasurer of the British A. A. A.

Among the other guests were A. A. Stagg, Gen. John V. Clinnin, George Gipp, Glenn Warner, and Richard Hurley.

Chicago evidenced interest in Lord Burghley, captain of the Empire team. The titled Englishman has been a world figure since winning the Olympic championship in the 1928 Olympics. He also won the high hurdle race at Hamilton last week. For all the publicity he has received Burghley yesterday impressed with a simplicity of manner seldom seen in an athlete so famous.

He came racing down the steps of the station ahead of the Empire team, who had been listening complacently to the greeting roar of the Kiltie band and sounds of bagpipe and drums reverberated from the walls. Wearing a Panama hat, he carried a felt hat and a tweed coat, well prepared for any weather he might find 4,000 miles from home.

"Shakes" with Brundage.

Without monocle and wearing clothes which might have been purchased in a Chicago store, there was one who could have identified him. He posed repeatedly for photographers, shaking hands with Avery Brundage as directed, although criticizing the length of the hand clasp necessary for all the photographers to get into action as "a bit cold blooded early in the morning."

Many of the stars unlimbered in the afternoon at Soldiers' field. Nearly all visited the stadium, although a few did not take part in the workouts. At 4 o'clock the teams were guests of the Medinah Athletic club. Later they attended the international boxing bouts between members of the Empire team which participated in the exhibition matches and Chicago fighters.

Name Yankee Athletes in 6 of 14 Events

The American team in six of the fourteen events on tonight's schedule of international races at Soldiers' field was determined last night. The makeup of the United States representatives in the remaining events is problematical, Harry Gill, Steve Farrell, and Johnny Behr, the coaches, announced.

Sweet, Leland, Simpson, and Tolan will run in that order in the 400 yard relay, one of the few races the Americans believe they will win. If a victory is scored as expected it should at least assure the United States of a tie, for it is expected from the records in the Empire games and the A. A. U. meet that the Yanks will win the six field events.

The 480 yard shuttle hurdle race offers the best chance to clinch the victory. Sentman, Hatfield, Kastner, and Anderson will be the American quartet of high hurdles. Lord Burghley is the ace of the Empire team in this race.

FOUR MILE RELAY—Conger, Rekers, Kaiser, and Venske.

There is a possibility that Tolan and Simpson may not run in the special 100 yard dash, an exhibition event, which will not count in the scoring of the meet. If the dash event comes first the American coaches may decide to save them for the medley sprint.

Each event will be scored one point for the winners and none for the losers. This increases the empire's chances for victory. In the field events the best marks of three men from each squad will be totaled.

Because of protests of the managers of the empire team that many of the officials selected as officials of tonight's meets are professional coaches and should not serve in an amateur meet, it was not announced late last night who would serve as starter and in other important capacities.

The empire boxers, most of whom are from South Africa, scored five victories to one for the United States in the bouts last night at the Medinah Athletic club. Karl Ogren was the only Chicago winner. For the most part the boxers representing Chicago were an indifferent lot, the better boys preferring to box on amateur cards, it is said, rather than face the amateurs of the empire for applause and a medal.

The visiting stars tonight represent the following countries: England, Wales, Scotland, Ireland, Canada, British Guiana, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and Newfoundland.

SPORTSMANSHIP.

"WHAT is sportsmanship?" queried Knute Rockne, Notre Dame football coach and feature speaker at the Rotary club complimentary luncheon to British empire-United States track teams at the Hotel Sherman yesterday. Then he answered his own question in part. "Sportsmanship," said Rockne, "is a practical application of the Golden Rule. It is difficult to define precisely in words. It must be understood."

Then Rockne told of a hitherto unpublished incident of the Notre Dame-Northwestern football contest last fall. "One of our men," said Rockne, "had a torn cartilage of the ribs. Before the game Northwestern's trainer walked into our quarters with a special appliance for protecting this injury. As the opposing linemen took places on the first scrimmage, Northwestern's player opposite our injured man asked on which side was the injury. He was informed. You know football line play does not call for gentleness, but our man told me afterward he was not hit once during the game on the injured side. That is sportsmanship. That is the kind of sportsmanship which makes amateur athletics, college athletics, worthwhile."

We assume the linemen referred to by Rockne were Law of Notre Dame and Anderson of Northwestern.

The Britons present, no doubt already surfeited with luncheons in their honor, appeared to take a keen interest in the Rotary club affair because it was less formal and more straight from the shoulder than such occasions usually are.

The occasion was an appropriate getting together, followed by the Medinah A. C. dinner last night, for the great track and field meet at Soldiers' field tonight, an event second in importance only to the Olympic games.

MR. MORRISEY MUST HAVE BEEN QUITE A GENT

Won Title, Built Saratoga, Served in Congress.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 26.—In the office of the public museum in the City park of Saratoga there hangs a portrait of a young man with a small sprig of brunette whiskers on his chin, glaring indignantly upon a scene of desolation and decay.

The public museum was once a gambling casino and the young man in the portrait was John Morrissey, the founder of the house, who must have been an uncommonly versatile person. He won the American heavyweight championship at the height of a short career in the fighting ring in the meat hand days, he served a spell in the United States congress, and, when he had retired from the ring, he started the Saratoga race track and founded the local gambling industry, which now has degenerated into a furtive, outlaw racket.

Safe Opposite Portrait.

Against the wall opposite his portrait, stands John Morrissey's big safe, which was manufactured to his order, the strongest safe in the world outside the banks and the national treasuries, at the time, with its four thick doors swung open revealing the successive repositories where he bolted his valuables away at night. It is a clumsy old strong box, judged by modern standards, and visiting petermen, sojourning at Saratoga for the races and the waters of one kind and another, go to see it and estimate just how long it would take them to open it by modern methods.

It does look formidable to the lay eye to this day, but I suppose there must be gentlemen among the visitors to Saratoga these days who would guarantee to crack it with a common can opener in ten minutes for a worth while side bet.

Upstairs, in one of the old gaming rooms where John Morrissey strolled among his patrons at night, there is another safe, an iron bound box about half the size of an orange crate, which Mr. Morrissey used for his petty cash at the horse track, where he made book, maintained discipline and, in a general way of speaking, ran the entire show by hand.

Lifted It Out Every Day.

Two Negro workmen used to lift the cash box out of the casino into John Morrissey's carriage and carry it into his office at the track every afternoon and lift it back into the carriage and up the steps to the casino every evening when the races were done and the festivities of the night were about to begin in Morrissey's gilded halls of chance.

The public museum contains an odd jumble of historical souvenirs and common attic trash from the garrets of Saratoga. There are lead bullets from the battlefield of Saratoga and rusty wrought iron hinges from the forts, a collection of tarnished epaulets, uniform buttons, old clothes, cartridges and a case of cracked snake skins, presumably from copperheads or dwarf rattlers taken among the rocks in the vicinity.

At the head of the grand mahogany staircase on the second floor I met a smiling middle aged woman who had a small stack of copies of a Sunday school publication at her elbow, possibly for sale, although I did not inquire. She was obliging to the limit of her knowledge, but all she knew about John Morrissey was that he had been a prize fighter, a congressman and the builder of the present public museum. Nor did she know where I could find any book about him. He was long dead.

Canfield Takes Charge.

The casino had passed into the possession of the late Richard Canfield, a great gambler worthy of the house, and Mrs. Canfield, upon her husband's death, had conveyed the house and

Who Sent Dan Taylor Home? Don't Ask Joe

BY ARCH WARD.

When you talk about the master minds of baseball don't forget to mention Joe McCarthy of the Cubs. As great managers of the game go he is earning a place beside Mack and McGraw.

McCarthy doesn't want to talk about his part in that daring play that won the game from the Giants Sunday when Danny Taylor stole home with two out, two strikes on the batter, and the bases loaded. He wants all the credit to go to the man who scored the run.

"It was Taylor's work," McCarthy said yesterday after his Cubs had increased their National league lead to five and a half games by defeating the Pirates. "He had to have speed and know how to slide to execute the play."

"But weren't you the one who sent him in?" we inquired. "Didn't you have the play planned when you sent Bush up to bat?"

"I would rather have you talk to Taylor about that," he answered.

Taylor was not available, but from others in the know we gathered the following:

When Joe Heving, the Giants' relief pitcher, purposely passed Hartnett and Bell with two out in the ninth, the score tied, and the bases loaded McCarthy never hesitated about sending the pitcher, Guy Bush, to the plate. There were boos from the sidelines because he had not chosen Stephenson, Hornsby, or Heathcote as pinch hitter.

McCarthy would rather have failed to score in the ninth than to remove Bush from the game, as would have been necessary if a pinch hitter had taken his place. Had there been only one out when a sacrifice fly might have brought in the winning run, Bush would have been removed.

Hack's Slugging Is No Novelty; He's Been at It 5 Years

When Hack Wilson propelled his forty-fourth home run of the season into the right field bleachers at Wrigley field yesterday to break the National league home run record he attained a mark at which he has been shooting since he joined the Cubs in 1926.

In every one of the five seasons in which Hack has worn the Chicago uniform he has been at or near the top in home run hitting, having led the league once and tied for first place twice. Last year, when he hit 39 homers, he finished fourth in the home run race, although his total was the greatest he had collected in any season prior to the present one.

Hack made his major league debut with the Giants in 1923, but played in only three games, hitting .200. The following year he batted .295 and hit ten homers, but the Giants didn't think much of his slugging ability and sent him to Toledo after he had played 62 games and hit six homers in 1925. With Toledo he finished the season with an average of .343, and the Cubs drafted him.

The change of atmosphere seemed to have a salutary effect on his hitting. In 1926, his first season with the Cubs, he led the league in home runs, hitting 21 and batting at a .321 pace. In 1927, while Babe Ruth was setting his record of 60, Hack connected for 30 homers to tie for the National league lead with Cy Williams of the Phillies. In 1928 he added another homer for a total of 31 to tie for the lead with Jim Bottomley of the Cardinals and last year he ran his string up to 39, but finished fourth. Chuck Klein, who set the league record with 43; Frederick of the Robins with 42, and Rogers Hornsby of the Cubs with 40, outslugging him.

This season Hack is well ahead of Ruth's 1927 record. The Babe in that season did not hit his 44th homer until Sept. 2, and on Aug. 26 he had only 40, four fewer than Hack's present total. On Aug. 27 Babe hit his 41st.

Ruth gets $80,000 a year for hitting home runs. Wilson gets something less than 25 per cent of that amount.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Hack's done it, all right. He smacked that No. 44 homer in the seventh inning of the Cubs' 7 to 5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday afternoon. And now the pudgy one is the all time home run king of the National league. Moreover, he's in a tie with the big boss of the home run business, Mr. Babe Ruth.

Most of Hack's special home run endeavors have been inspired. On July 26 he made three homers in one game while in a state of ecstasy over the music of a lodge band which gave a concert at the Philadelphia ball park. Some of his homers have been made while he was irate at the pitcher or umpire. And so on.

Yesterday Hack's inspiration was his own embarrassment. Whenever Fred Blake pitches one or more of the Cubs do several things that they do behind no other pitcher. Fred Blake and Hack Wilson are both taxpayers in the great cider producing state of West Virginia, and Hack always bears down especially for his fellow statesman.

Waner's Liner Becomes Homer.

But in the first half of the seventh inning yesterday, Lloyd Waner sent a liner out Hack's way. For almost no reason at all Hack fell flat on his stomach at the crack of the bat, and the ball shot 15 feet away from him and rolled for an in the park homer.

Hack came in to the bench after the inning and made the following announcement to Blake:

"Sheriff, it seems like things always happen to you that never have happened before. That bellybuster couldn't have occurred behind any other pitcher. But for your sake and for the pride of West Virginia I'm going to get that homer back with a legitimate homer. And in this very inning."

We know of no ball player more honorable than Hack Wilson. When he says he'll do a thing, he does it, whether it involves visiting a bunch of sick kids in an orphanage, autographing a baseball, making an appearance at a German picnic, or any other courtesy like that. So when he made that promise to Blake Hack was a cinch to set the new National league record.

Hack really didn't have to make that homer to contribute his share to the ball game. In the fifth inning he singled with the bases full, scoring two runs outright and putting Cuyler on third, whence he scored on a wild pitch. And he drove in English with the first run of the game on a sacrifice fly. Such batting as this strongly entitled him to fall on his stomach one little time, as long as he didn't hurt himself.

Lead by 5½ Games.

The victory gave the Cubs a 5½ game margin over the second place Giants, who were resting up for their four game series with the Brooklyn Robins, which opens this afternoon at the Polo Grounds.

The Pirates will play the second

BY FRENCH LANE.

Honey Locust, as fine appearing a racing mare as there is in the country, and E. James, an apprentice jockey who is likely soon to become the idol of Chicago racing crowds, were a winning combination in the Momence purse at seven furlongs which topped the racing card at Lincoln Fields yesterday.

Racing in the white, red, and black jacket of Johnson N. Camden, Honey Locust was apparently only galloping when she got home a length in front of the fleet Equation, with Harry Payne Whitney's Tantivy a length back in third place.

James Rides a Good Race.

Honey Locust is a big powerful brown daughter of Light Brigade-Honey Dew. She takes tremendous strides and takes them often. She was guided skillfully in this race by little E. James. He had enough left when the finish came to shake off most any kind of challenge. Equation and Tantivy both moved up and made bold bids for the honors. But Jockey James knew that Honey Locust had plenty left. He gave her a bit more running room and she moved away to win handily after having been in front most of the way.

Equation took the lead as the barrier lifted, but Honey Locust moved on past the eastern sprinter as soon as Jockey James got her into good stride and found racing room. She was in complete command from there until the end. She went the three-quarters in 1:11 3-5 and rounded out the seven furlongs in 1:24 1-5. This was only three-fifths of a second short of the track record.•

Then in the fifth race, at a mile and a sixteenth, the youthful Mr James had the whole crowd squirming when he staged the greatest stretch ride of the day to get Tela, a Kentucky filly, up to a place where she was theatening Bather, on which there had been a wild plunge that drove his price down to almost even money.

James and Tela Move Up.

Bather had taken what seemed to be a safe lead at the head of the stretch, but from out of the closely grouped field which was trailing him came James on Tela.

It didn't seem possible it could become a dangerous threat until less than a half furlong from home. James had Tela running like the wind by this time and forced Jockey Chiavetta, who had been loafing a bit on Bather, to go to the whip and put on one of his strongest finishes to get the decision by less than a length. Gotoit ran third, but was never a menace after Tela started her drive after the winner.

Wise Lee, from the Nash brothers' Valley Lake stable, scored unexpectedly in the 2 year old race when he got up in the last strides to beat Walter J. Salmon's Light Step by a half length, with Trap Star third.

Wise Lee Has Few Backers.

Wise Lee had to be a good game colt to score his triumph, for although he was always close up, he was in tight quarters, while Yoganna, Scotland Wise, and Caracalla were out in front of him. But as the leaders spread out after heading into the stretch Jockey Deperini found an opening well out from the rail and drove Wise Lee through it.

Although Pat Nash named Wise Lee for the man who he says was the luckiest Chinaman he ever knew, the crowd didn't have much faith in the colt and he paid the tall odds of $23.58 to win, $7.84 to place, and $5.18 to show. Light Step was the favorite.

MALLOY PLANS TWO RING CARDS FOR SEPTEMBER

The Illinois athletic commission yesterday at its weekly meeting granted Promoter Mique Malloy two dates, Sept. 17 and Sept. 29. He expects to match Primo Carnera with a suitable opponent on one of these nights. He hopes to lease the stadium for the bout.

Tuffy Griffith's name was mentioned as an opponent, but the commission believes he does not weigh enough for the Italian. Leon Chevalier and Jack Gross, Philadelphia heavyweight, were also named. It is believed that Gross will be Carnera's opponent.

Pat Page's Son in Critical Condition After Auto Crash

HANOVER ENTRY FAVORED TO WIN $56,859 STAKES

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Ten candidates are eligible to start in the rich Hambletonian stake to be raced here tomorrow. Payment of $500 has been made by each of the owners of the three year old trotters who will compete for the $56,859.84 purse.

Hanover's Bertha, owned by L. B. Shepard of Hanover, Pa., is favorite for the event, with his stable mate, Brother Hanover, second choice. Main McElwyn, owned by C. B. Shaffer of Lexington, Ky., is expected to give the Hanover Farms entry the hardest battle of their two short years of racing.

The stake is worth $35,706.90 to the winner, $10,201.96 to second, $5,100.96 to third, and $1,000 each to the horses finishing fourth, fifth, and sixth.

Stribling to Fly Here for Conference with Lewis

W. L. [Young] Stribling, outstanding American contender for Max Schmeling's heavyweight title, will fly to Chicago today from his home in Atlanta, Ga., to confer with Nate Lewis, matchmaker of the Chicago Stadium, on plans for a fight here. Stribling, who is a licensed aviator, will pilot his own plane, landing at the Curtiss-Reynolds airport this evening.

BRITISH POLOIST SCORES A GOAL FOR U. S. RIVALS

Westbury, Long Island, N. Y., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Great Britain today continued its preparations for the international polo matches which start a week from Saturday. On Hitchcock field at the Meadow Brook club the British reserves turned back Old Aiken, 10 to 7, with one of the losers' scores going to them from a British stick when Capt. Charles H. Tremayne, trying to prevent an American goal, accidentally hit the ball through for the first score of the game.

The British did some experimenting, still looking toward the adjustment of their difficulties in the No. 1 post on the first team. J. B. Balding, who joined the squad yesterday at Piping Rock and played three periods then, went through the whole game, part of it at No. 1. In the last half of the game the Britons tried the huge Lieut. Humphrey Guinness at No. 1 and switched Balding to back. The middle of the team consisted of Maj. Rex Benson at No. 2 and Capt. Tremayne at No. 3.

Team Play Spotty.

The game was spotty and there was not often teamwork of a connected kind, for the surface of the field was cut up badly, so that it was impossible to do much in the way of real passing, and all kinds of hitting suffered. For a long while this bothered the British more than the Americans, but at the close the visitors were riding harder and with more pressure than they have shown here yet.

Capt. Tremayne hit very well at times and Maj. Benson was often a figure in scoring plays. But it was Balding who stood out on the team today. His hitting was not always accurate, but he played the sort of rough, energetic polo which has brought the best results in the American game. He ranged into opposing players and hit hard every chance he had. Throughout he seemed the Sparkplug of the British side.

Americans Play Today.

Old Aiken's team play suffered from the condition of the ground and from the fact that the opposition was hurrying them enough to break up the attack before it blossomed out in front of the goal.

The Americans are to play another test match tomorrow at Piping Rock, with Earle Hopping back at No. 2, and on Thursday at Meadow Brook the British will play Old Aiken.

SOX PROBLEM OF UNEMPLOYMENT WILL END TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Aug. 26.—The White Sox are going back to work tomorrow after two days of unemployment. The work will consist of a double header with the Indians, and the heaviest part of the labor will be shouldered by Alphonse Thomas, who once was a great pitcher, and Ted Lyons, who still ranks in that class.

Lyons will be saved for the second half of the bargain bill, and if he can achieve a victory it will be his 19th of the season. Other pitchers boast better marks, but they are not attached to seventh place teams.

In the second game of the double header last Sunday at Boston the Sox manager moved Cissell to short and gave Kamm his old job at third base. This scheme also will be in effect tomorrow. Thus Cissell, after almost a season of wandering around the infield, is back where he started, but he at least showed enough as a third sacker to prove that he can opgrate there effectively if a better shortstop can be found. Mulleavy, who was purchased as a shortstop, has much to learn about big league play.

HAYNES TO COACH STRAWN.

In each of their first four innings yesterday the Pirates got a man to second or farther, but the determined defense which has been functioning so perfectly the last four games kept enemy production down to zero. But in the fourth the Cubs opened up on the run making phase.

English Scores First.

English started off with a single to right and went to third on Cuyler's single to center. Woody scored on Wilson's sacrifice fly to P. Waner.

The Pirates took the lead in the fifth inning. French opened with his second single and stopped at second when L. Waner also singled. P. Waner tripled to left center, scoring French and L. Waner. Then that snappy defense got busy again. Grantham fanned. Comorosky was given a more or less intentional pass and Traynor carried out the Cubs' scheme by hitting into a double play, Bell to Blair to Kelly.

In their end of the fifth the Cubs made five runs. Gabby Hartnett pushed off with the first of his two doubles and scored on Bell's double. Blake bunted and beat out the roller for a single, Bell taking third. Blair was hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases. English fouled to Suhr for the first out, then Cuyler walked, forcing in Bell; Wilson singled to right, scoring Blake and Blair and putting Cuyler on third. Cuyler scored and Wilson went to second on a wild pitch. D. Taylor fanned and Bartell threw out Kelly.

The Pirates scored in the sixth on Suhr's triple and Hemsley's sacrifice fly and again in the seventh on the aforementioned inside the park homer by L. Waner.

Hack's No. 44 was the last Cub score of the game, but the Pirates added one in the ninth on Pinch Hitter Mosolf's single, a wild pitch, and P. Waner's third hit, a single to right center.

then and there. He signaled Taylor to steal home. Taylor, however, remained on third as Bush took another called strike. It was time for something to be done. So when Heving wound up he dashed for the plate. He beat the throw so far that O'Farrell's motion of tagging him was only a formality. Heving, observing the theft too late, hurried his throw and it was called a ball. The game was over and the Cubs had won, 3 to 2. The audacity of the play dumfounded everybody, even Bush himself, who had no knowledge that Taylor was coming in.

It is possible, even probable, that McCarthy's decision to send Taylor home won the 1930 league championships for the Cubs. Had they lost that game, their margin would have been only three games instead of five.

The Cubs know now they can lick the two teams menacing their claim to the 1930 flag. They took on Brooklyn when the Robins were flying high. They brought them down by winning three of the four games, throwing Uncle Robbie's boys into a slump from which they haven't recovered yet. Then the Giants, who came bounding along at a .750 clip, dropped three out of four, and if you ask any loyal north side fan he will tell you the race is over.

Whether the Cubs hold their lead until the season closes or not, they have made a valiant fight. And much of their success is due to J. Vincent McCarthy. For some reason or other he has never received the recognition that is his due.

Only too often the fan in the bleachers has said: "Manage the Cubs? Why Wrigley could do that himself. Players like Hornsby, Cuyler, Wilson, and Stephenson don't need managers.

But the Cubs, even with all their stars in action, have needed a pilot more than any team in the league. They have players of various mental abilities and personal traits and it has been no mean task to weld these units into an efficient and concerted machine.

It has taken a student of human nature as well as a baseball mind to take a last place club, like the Cubs were when McCarthy came, build them into title contenders and eventual league champions. And it has been even harder to hold that level. This season, for instance. His injury-ridden Giants castoffs. But Joe has held the works together—smoothing out here, cajoling there, lifting a stern hand in another place—and making the boys win.

CARDINALS HALT REDS' RALLY IN NINTH; WIN, 3-1

Cincinnati, O., Aug 26.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals stayed in the National league race today by outpunching the Cincinnati Reds 3 to 1, but they had to stave off a ninth inning rally. Wild Bill Hallahan held the Reds to four hits for eight innings, and his mates scored twice in the eighth to give him his first lead. Score:

MRS. W. L. MILLER WINS BRIERGATE "OBSTACLE DAY"

Women of the Briergate Country club whose golf appetites had become jaded by the monotony of the usual rounds encountered unexpected hazards that provided their game with a new zest yesterday at the club's first "Obstacle day." Experts for whom a sand trap or a water hazard holds no terrors were reduced to the level of novices in the tournament arranged by Mrs. Frank Walker, chairman of the program committee.

The course was strewn with obstacles from the first tee to the 18th green. A tractor blocked the fairway of the 14th hole, while ladders formed a wall around the 6th green, and a roller barred the way to the 15th hole. Weaving her way through these obstacles Mrs. W. L. Miller won the class A low net prize with a score of 106—13—93, while Mrs. Oscar Meredith led class B with 124—26—98. Mrs. George Madden was first in class C with 123—31—92.

CHAMPION TAKES 1ST ROUND MATCH IN WOMEN'S GOLF

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Two extra hole matches, the defeat of a favored player, and the steady march onward of the defending champion, Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City, today featured first round matches of the 28th annual women's western golf tournament over the Hillcrest Country club course.

Florence Beebe Wins.

Mrs. Lee Mida, Chicago, a member of the women's team which played in Great Britain this year, was forced to the 19th hole to win from Mrs. R. I. Bullard, Springfield, Ill. Miss Helen MacMorran, Chicago, and Mrs. Clay C. Cary, Dallas, battled 23 holes before Miss MacMorran's eagle 3 bested Mrs. Cary's par 5 to win the match.

Miss Bernice Wall, Oshkosh, Wis., lost to the steady stroking of Florence Beebe, Chicago, 5 and 4.

Miss Johnson Loses.

Miss Robinson defeated Mrs. Curtis Sohl, Columbus, O., 2 and 1; Miss Ford defeated Miss Eva May Johnson, Chicago, 3 and 2; Miss Nelson eliminated Mrs. D. W. Snyder Jr., Kansas City, 4 and 3, and Miss Bruen defeated Miss Gladys Cranston, Kansas City, 6 and 4.

Other results:

Miss Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, defeated Mrs. E. T. Nicholas Jr., Chicago, 3 and 1.
Mrs. Roy Green, Los Angeles, defeated Mrs. Nathan Reiger, Kansas City, 4 and 2.
Mrs. Gregg Lifur, Los Angeles, defeated Miss June Beebe, Chicago, 2 and 1.
Mrs. John Arends, Chicago, defeated Miss Jean Armstrong, Chicago, 1 up.
Miss Helen Lawson, Los Angeles, defeated Mrs. Lillian Zech, Chicago, 5 and 4.
Mrs. G. W. Tyson, Kansas City, defeated Miss Edith Berg, Cleveland, 7 and 6.

Pegler Finds Fight Champion Who Amounted to Something grounds to the city of Saratoga for a museum and park.

Not from anything the lady said, but from her very ignorance of John Morrissey, and she an official guide in his old place, I gathered that they low-rate the man nowadays because gambling since his time has become a lawless pursuit, dependent upon the criminality of public officials for its existence. Morrissey, therefore, becomes a sinister, though influential figure, in the history of the place, retroactively.

The modern record books on prizefighting mention Morrissey only incidentally, but some of the old histories recall that he was born in Ireland in 1831, that he weighed about 175 pounds, that he fought Yankee Sullivan and John C. Heenan, and died in Saratoga in 1878. Like Heenan and Sullivan, he went to California for gold in 1851, where Sullivan, who seems to have been a very disorderly character, even for his time, was hanged by the vigilantes. But John Morrissey, from all that I can gather of him, was a man of remarkably strong character, an organizer, a politician, a business man, and a builder, as well as a champion prizefighter.

He Was Real Champ.

The father of Uncle Will Gibson, the fight manager who handled Benny Leonard and Gene Tunney, saw Morrissey in some of his fights, and he has been heard to observe that Morrissey at 175 pounds would have been heavyweight champion of the world even in Jack Dempsey's time.

The old gambling house is grotesque now, of course, but it was a grand place in its time, with its ornate gas chandeliers and statues, its carved picture frames and furniture, and the stained glass calendar of the months, executed by Tiffany, in the skylight of the ballroom, now a bare and dusty chamber echoing the shuffling of hot feet as the tourists go gaping through halls where only the aristocracy were allowed sixty years ago.

The huge rug in the roulette room on the main floor, now soiled and worn, was woven to Morrissey's order in Russia. And the life size painting of Napoleon III., mounted on a war horse, with his marshal's baton poised nonchalantly in his free hand, is supposed to commemorate a visit to Morrissey's halls, although our office scholar insists that Napolean III. never came to this country.

I have never heard of any other prizefighter who amounted to much outside the ring. John Gulley, an Englishman who fought as Gulley the Great along about 1800, was elected to parliament, but John Morrissey strikes me as having been the greatest character the ring has yet produced. A dark eyed, dark haired, handsome young fellow he was in his portrait, with a lot of fight and intelligence in his face, and I wish some one had thought to write a book about him when the material was fresh and unconfused.

Chicago Printers' Nine Swamps Cleveland, 22-3

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 27.—(AP)—More scores resembling football or basketball were made today as the International Printers Baseball league tournament passed its second round. New York defeated Indianapolis, 25 to 6, making the high score of the day. Chicago followed with a 22 to 3 victory over Cleveland. Washington, defending champion, trounced St. Paul, 15 to 4. Cincinnati overwhelmed Boston, 16 to 0, and Pittsburgh defeated St. Louis, 14 to 9.

NORTON ASSUMES DUTIES AS GRID COACH AT LOYOLA

Dr. Edwin J. Norton, who was yesterday appointed head football coach at Loyola university, announced last night after a conference with the Rev. George Kiley, S. J., director of athletics, that the Ramblers will play nine games this fall. The opening game will be with Carroll college at Loyola stadium on Sept. 28.

Games with Georgetown university, Oct. 3, and Boston college, Nov. 15, are high spots on the home schedule.

Dr. Norton is not new at Loyola. He has been on the coaching staff since 1927 and is a graduate of the Chicago College of Dental Surgery of Loyola university.

It was as freshman coach under Roger Kiley that Dr. Norton became a member of the Loyola coaching staff. When Kiley resigned in 1928 he became first assistant to Don Lamont who resigned this spring to assist Jimmy Phelean at the University of Washington.

O. J. Larsen, all-American center at Notre Dame in 1919-'23, was named by Dr. Norton as first assistant and line coach. He served as line coach under Kiley in 1924. Larry Flynn, who played with Norton at Loyola, has also been retained as line coach. Flynn has been on the staff for the last two years. Bob Burke, halfback of the 1929 eleven, has been named as backfield assistant.

On Oct. Loyola travels south to meet Loyola of New Orleans. Last year the Chicagoans drew a 6-6 tie, while the post-season contest gave the Chicago Loyola eleven a 26-6 victory.

Sept. 28—Carroll college at Loyola stadium.
Oct. 3—Georgetown university at Loyola stadium.
Oct. 10—Duquesne U. at Loyola stadium.
Oct. 17—Loyola university at New Orleans.
Oct. 24—Coe college at Loyola stadium.
Nov. 2—De Paul U. at Soldiers' field.
Nov. 8—St. Louis U. at St. Louis.
Nov. 15—Boston college at Loyola stadium.
Nov. 22—South Dakota State at Loyola stadium.

LON CHANEY'S FUNERAL TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Master Mimic of Films Dies at 47.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—The film industry which honored Lon Chaney as a quiet, friendly, and soft spoken genius and which admired his ability to entice more money through the box offices than any other single star in five years, today heaped last honors on the actor.

Chaney died after a throat hemorrhage at 12:55 a. m. He died in the arms of his wife, the former Hazel Hastings, and with his 22 year old son looking on. Death took place at St. Vincent's hospital, where Chaney spent the ten days since returning to California from a serious operation in New York. A bronchial infection which followed a physical collapse and a siege with pneumonia here last year sapped the actor's strength. Three blood transfusions failed to save him. He was 47 years old.

Funeral Services Tomorrow.

Interment will be at Forest Lawn cemetery, in Glendale, Thursday afternoon. Out of respect to the wishes of Mrs. Chaney, a Roman Catholic, funeral services will be conducted by Father Michael J. Mullins of the Church of the Good Shepherd.

Chaney is survived by his widow, who was an actress in Chaney's traveling troupe twenty-five years ago; his son, and two grandchildren; his sister, Mrs. Benjamin Keyes of Berkeley, and three brothers, Frank A., Martinez, Cal., editor, George and John.

Chaney was born in 1883 at Colorado Springs. Both parents were deaf mutes. He never progressed farther than the fifth grade in school. His first regular job was as a property boy. He became a stage hand, and taught himself to dance, sing, enunciate, do stage stunts, and make up for unusual appearances by watching the actors.

An Actor at 16.

He made his first stage appearance at 16, and after that became chorus boy, comedian in cheap musical shows, and touring actor. Throughout his life Chaney kept his card as a member of the Stage Hands' union.

His entrance into the movies, about eighteen years ago, was as a cowboy extra in wild west films. He later directed J. Warren Kerrigan in cowboy films.

In 1917, Chaney turned to unusual character parts and began a long series of film successes. His first was in "The Miracle Man" and then followed "Hunchback of Notre Dame," "Phantom of the Opera," "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," "He Who Gets Slapped,' and "The Unholy Three."

FORMER DAKOTA SENATOR IS DEAD IN WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Former Senator Thomas Sterling of South Dakota died at his home here today. His death was the result of heart trouble.

Sterling was 79 years old. He served in the senate from South Dakota from 1913 to 1925 as a Republican. After his defeat for renomination in 1924 he took up the practice of law in Washington.

President Coolidge appointed him a member of the Washington bicentennial commission. He was also a member of the faculty of the National University Law school.

JOHN R. GORDON, MERCHANT FLEET HEAD, DIES AT 58

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—A prominent figure in American shipping for more than twenty years, John R. Gordon, 58, president of the Merchant Fleet corporation, died here today after an operation for appendicitis.

When he was selected to head the fleet corporation last December he had been a member of the American Steamship Owners association for 20 years. For a like period he had directed the marine and traffic department of the Union Sulphur company of New York.

During the war he was a member of the ship control committee, a special representative for the shipping board to Paris and London, American member of the allied maritime transport counsel, the American member of the London blockade committee, and on the Belgian relief group.

For years he was chairman of the American committee of Lloyd's register of shipping.

Mr. Gordon was born in Portland, Conn., and is survived by his widow, a son and a daughter.

TURKS MASSACRE WOMEN; DESTROY 200 KURD TOWNS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TEHERAN, Persia, Aug. 26.—The complete destruction of 200 large Kurdish villages by Turkish troops and the massacring of women and children while the men were fighting in the field, is the latest report from the frontier. The Turkish government has decided to force the Kurds to emigrate to Anatolia, making Kurdistan pure Turkish territory. It is stated that steps are being taken to prohibit the use of the Kurdish language.

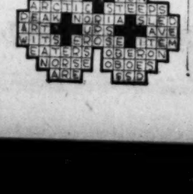
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



ARCHDUKE GIVES UP CROWN CLAIMS TO WED DIVORCEE

Details of Marriage in England Bared.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRIGHTON, England, Aug. 26.—This seaside resort of London flappers was amazed to learn today that Archduke Albrecht had carried his romance with the beautiful divorcee, Mme. Rudnay, for whom he renounced all claims to the Hungarian throne, to culmination here on Aug. 16 in a marriage performed with greatest secrecy at the town registry.

The descendent of the Hapsburgs slipped quietly in and registered with his bride at an inconspicuous hotel where they spent the 15 days residence necessary under English law. In the meantime his papers were carefully inspected.

Having already given up any pretense to the throne and sworn allegiance to the boy pretender, the 18 year old Archduke Otto, now in exile in Belgium, he walked into the town hall and was married by Horace Burfield, registrar, as soon as permission was received.

Has Plenty of Names.

His name was given on the certificate of marriage as Albrecht Franz Joseph Carl Frederich George Hubert Maria Hapsburg-Lothringen, all of which he inherited from ruling families of Europe. But in order to marry he had to give up his title.

His bride, chosen from among the commoners of his mythical kingdom, was listed as Irene Dora Rudnay, formerly Lelbach, the divorced wife of the former Hungarian minister to Belgrade. Both of them are 33 years old.

Goes Into Real Estate.

The bare office of the Brighton registrar thus became the stage for a royal scene which might have ended with coronations if the archduke's mother had had her way and succeeded in preventing the marriage.

Vienna reports say the archduke has purchased 100,000 acres in Brazil and plans to settle hundreds of Austrian peasants there.

DAVID G. WYLIE, CHURCH LEADER, DIES AT AGE OF 73

Stony Brook, N. Y., Aug. 26.—(AP)—The Rev. Dr. David G. Wylie, 73, president of the Lord's Day alliance and a Presbyterian leader for more than fifty years, died unexpectedly at his summer home here today.

Dr. Wylie had been in good health and had presided at the twenty-third annual general Bible conference here this morning. He returned to his home for luncheon and suddenly was taken ill. The cause of his death was not disclosed.

The church leader was a graduate of the Yale Divinity school and the Union Theological seminary. He was the author of several religious books and a frequent contributor to magazines.

E. P. Morse, N. Y. Capitalist, Drops Dead in Nova Scotia

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 26.—Edward P. Morse, retired head of the United Dry Dock company, New York, dropped dead at Deep Brook, N. S., today while superintending the construction of his new $250,000 residence. He was 72 years old, and was said to have been worth $40,000,000. The financier had been spending the summer in Nova Scotia. His wife was with him.

Wife of Dr. H. F. Osborn, Noted Naturalist, Dies

WOMAN'S BODY IN LAKE.

Believed to have committed suicide because of despondency over ill health, Mrs. Alice Hall, 55 years old, 816 Bowen avenue, missing for two days, was found drowned in the lake off 39th street yesterday by life guards.

JOHN JAMES TYE FUNERAL RITES WILL BE TODAY

John James Tye, 69 years old, pioneer hide and wool merchant of Chicago, who died Sunday, will be buried today at his birthplace, West Chicago, with funeral services at St. Mary's church there. He was a member of the firm of Bolles & Rogers, established in 1880, in which he began as an office boy.

His death marks the passing of three of the four partners of the firm, C. E. Bolles and Sampson Rogers having died within the last year. Mr. Tye retired from active business in 1926 and went to live in West Chicago. He was a member of the school board there, and it was during his term of office that the suburb's high school was established.

BABY REUNITED WITH MOTHER, ILL IN HOSPITAL

Jackie La Mar, 12 months old baby, who was believed to have been abandoned by his mother, Mrs. Julia La Mar, 21 years old, when she failed to return to him at the home of Mrs. Ida Vaughan, 1823 South Michigan avenue, was reunited with his mother yesterday when she was discovered in a hospital.

Mrs. La Mar had been ill for several weeks at the Research and Educational Hospital of Illinois, 1819 Polk street. She saw pictures of Jackie in the newspapers and read the statement that he might go to an orphanage.

"I couldn't stand to have my baby sent to an orphanage," she said yesterday. "I never intended to desert my baby, and I'll have him back as soon as I'm able. I went to a hospital just as I told Mrs. Vaughan I would, but was transferred from St. Luke's to here."

Meanwhile little Jackie will live with Mrs. Vaughan until his mother has recovered.

STEEL INDUSTRY DEVELOPMENTS ARE WELCOME

Railroad Activity Also Picks Up.

BY O. A. MATHER.

It has been many a day since trade and industry produced as much good news as yesterday. In fact, it led the more enthusiastic observers to predict that the real turn from depression to recovery has arrived. And the stock market fraternity made the most of it.

First came the weekly estimate on steel production by Dow, Jones & Co. showing an increase of 3½ per cent in steel ingot production for the whole industry during the last week. Average operations were placed around 58 per cent of capacity, compared with about 54½ per cent a week ago. Operations of the United States Steel corporation rose from 62 to 66 per cent of capacity, while those of the independent concerns advanced from 49 to 51 per cent.

All told, this is the first impressive increase in ingot output in several months. It was remarked that this week's improvement may be the initial step toward speeding up operations in line with predictions made by the United States Steel directors at their meeting late in July. At that time it was stated that the officials anticipated improvement in the third quarter from the rate then prevailing, with further increases in the final three months of the year.

At This Time Last Year.

At this time last year steel operations were still coming down. The United States Steel corporation was operating at 94 per cent of capacity, with independents around 89 per cent. The general average was about 89 per cent. Two years ago United States Steel was operating slightly below 78 per cent and independents were around 75 per cent, with the general average for the whole industry fractionally above 76 per cent.

On the heels of the steel output estimate came the weekly report of the American Railway association showing greater activity in the railroad movement of commodities recently. Loading of revenue freight for the week ended Aug. 16 totaled 922,823 cars, an increase of 18,666 cars over the preceding week. This report led to the belief that perhaps a return of "million car" weeks is not far distant, particularly with the advent of autumn.

However, the current total of car loadings still falls 179,744 cars under a year ago and 135,086 cars below two years ago. Miscellaneous freight was 81,276 cars below the same week last year and 54,504 cars under the corresponding week in 1928.

Reports on Oil.

Recent optimistic utterance regarding the future of the petroleum industry were given support by the weekly summary on production by the American Petroleum institute. It placed daily gross crude oil output last week at 2,470,500 barrels, which marked an almost negligible increase of 4,950 barrels a day over the preceding week. An increase of 28,750 barrels a day in Oklahoma production, the first upturn in several weeks, was largely responsible for the total expansion. On the other hand, California output receded 12,600 barrels a day.

Perhaps the most important part of the report was data showing a further decline in storage stocks of gasoline. These were reduced from 41,332,000 to 39,842,000 barrels. Refiners last week operated at 72.4 per cent of capacity, compared with 72.6 per cent in the previous week.

The bottom of the present business depression has been reached, in the opinion of the Bank of America, N. A., which asserts in its current review of business conditions that "only a moderate rate of recovery can be expected in the immediate future, but it now seems quite probable that September and October will be considerably better months than July and August."

United Paperboard Has Fiscal Profit of $3,115

United Paperboard company's annual report for the fiscal year ended May 31 shows net profit of $3,115 after all charges as compared with a net loss of $104,695 in the previous year. The earnings were equivalent to 23 cents a share on the $100 six per cent preferred stock. Continued increase in production and resulting price declines are given by President Sidney Mitchell as reasons for the showing.

'Whiskers' Are Brought Up in Steel Suit

Youngstown, O., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Cyrus S. Eaton clung through a rigid cross-examination today to the statement that he knew nothing about the merger of Youngstown Sheet and Tube company with the Bethlehem Steel corporation until March 7, when Henry G. Dalton of Cleveland told him that the terms already had been arranged.

That Eaton's opposition to the merger, which culminated in the present suit to enjoin it, engendered personal animosities was attested by a cablegram from the financier to one of his associates in which Eaton said Dalton's "false whiskers will be removed."

A ripple of laughter sounded through the courtroom at this reference to Dalton, who, as a vice president of Youngstown and a director of Bethlehem, refrained from voting for the merger but actively supported it.

Cable Is Read.

Eaton previously had inferred in his direct testimony that Dalton helped arrange the Bethlehem deal while he was working on negotiations for a merger with Inland Steel of Chicago, with the consent of James A. Campbell, chairman of Sheet and Tube.

The cablegram was sent by Eaton to John T. Harrington, former president of Trumbull Steel. Harrington was abroad with W. H. Foster, another Eaton associate, at the time the fight on the Bethlehem merger was incepted. The cablegram said in part:

"I wish you and Mr. Foster were here to join in person fight to save steel industry from calamity and city of Youngstown from annihilation. Hope you will return in time to celebrate what will be a complete victory. The false whiskers so becomingly worn by our Cleveland friend will be removed."

Eaton's activity in behalf of a merger between Youngstown and Inland started in 1928 and he said by Jan. 30 of this year he had reason to believe terms could be arranged. Other testimony had disclosed before that the Bethlehem conferences were going on at this time.

Eaton repeated in cross-examination his statement that he was first told of the Bethlehem deal when called to the office of William G. Mather in Cleveland on March 7. Dalton was there and informed him what had transpired, he said.

Defense Attorney Baker produced a file of correspondence in which Eaton, on Jan. 11, had requested Harris Creech, his personal representative on the Sheet and Tube board, to obtain for him a complete list of Youngstown stockholders with the number of shares owned by each.

No Common Dividend.

New York, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Directors of the Republic Steel corporation, successor to the Republic Iron and Steel company, today declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 on the preferred stock, but no announcement was made as to the common dividend.

No dividends have been paid on Republic Steel corporation common stock, although the Republic Iron and Steel company common paid $4 a share annually.

Swedish Match Company in Deal with Guatemala

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 26.—The Swedish Match company has concluded negotiations with the Republic of Guatemala for a thirty year monopoly of the match business in the country, it was announced today. Under terms of the agreement, the company has agreed to extend to Guatemala a loan of $2,500,000, which will take the form of a 7 per cent bond issue to be acquired at 90 per cent of par. The Guatemalan legislative assembly has voted approval. The Swedish Match company will have the right to import matches into Guatemala free of duty. Of the proceeds of the loan, $2,000,000 will be set aside for the formation of a mortgage bank for farmers and the rest will be spent on public works.

BABSON ORGANIZATION IS BULLISH ON LIST OF 12 SELECTED STOCKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 26.—For the first time since it predicted the stock market crash of last fall, the Babson Statistical organization today advised its clients to buy a selected list of stocks. The recomendation suggests the employment of 20 per cent of their funds in the purchase of the shares of twelve companies.

Six of these are described by the Babson organization as "good yielding stocks" and include two distributors of food products, two utility holding companies, one oil producer and distributor and a copper producer and refiner.

Six others suggested as purchases include three of the leading industrial stocks, a big oil producer and distributor and a utility.

The six stocks recommended on the ground of a good yield were National Dairy Products, General Foods, North American, Texas corporation, American Smelting and Utilities Power and Light.

Those described as "active issues" were Standard Oil of New Jersey, Electric Power and Light, Du Pont, United corporation, United States Steel and General Electric.

BUY CONTROL OF FIRST NAT. BANK OF OAK PARK

A group headed by James T. Bushonville has purchased controlling interest of the First National Bank of Oak Park. It is understood that the new group is undertaking a financial reorganization involving a heavy assessment of stockholders.

J. T. BUSHONVILLE.

The bank now has capital of $100,000, undivided profits of $4,000, and reserves of $15,000. New officers and directors have not yet been announced, but it is believed that Mr. Bushonville will assume the presidency. E. E. Rose was formerly president.

Mr. Bushonville is the founder of the Columbia State Savings bank and former head of that institution. He has been in the banking business for 26 years, and has at various times been connected with the Krause State bank, the Liberty Trust and Savings bank, Mid-City Trust and Savings, and the Austin Savings bank.

Fred W. Sargent Expects Drop in Grain Loadings

Unless an unusual export demand develops loadings on the Chicago and North Western railroad will not hold to the level of last year," President Fred W. Sargent said yesterday. "I see nothing for autumn other than the usual seasonal pickup, and this, in my judgment, will be considerably below last year," Mr. Sargent stated.

Cuban Plan to Aid Sugar Is Rebuffed

New York, Aug. 26.—(AP)—An effort to limit the world's production of sugar and to bring the price of that sweet commodity back to a level which will compensate its growers was launched today by Cuba's spokesman at a sugar conference in which the United States, Porto Rico, Hawaii, and the Philippines were represented.

Hardly had the limitation proposal been put before the conference when from New Orleans came the retort of the American Cane Sugar league that Louisiana interests were uniformly opposed to it, that western beet interests and America's sugar producing insular possessions were not interested, and that what to do with her sugar surplus was Cuba's own problem.

Accord in New York.

But in the New York hotel room where the clinic was in session there was "a unanimity of sympathy and a desire to coöperate" and the meeting adjourned to ponder Cuba's suggestion and to meet again tomorrow to discuss it.

To a committee formed and headed by Thomas L. Chadbourne of New York, representing American interests with investments in Cuba, Senator Viriato Gutierrez of the island republic offered limitation of sugar production by Cuba for a five year period if cane and beet growers of the United States, Porto Rico, Hawaii, and the Philippines would agree to limit their production similarly.

His plan embraced the limitation of Cuban exports to 2,800,000 long tons next year. In subsequent years through 1935 exports would be held to that figure plus half the increased consumption shown in the United States year by year.

Lays Down Conditions.

He laid down the condition that Louisiana, Porto Rico, Hawaii, and the Philippine planters and western sugar beet raisers make no increase in their production until 1934, then increase their crop by one-half of the increased consumption in 1933.

If this plan were agreed to, he said, Cuba would attempt to form an international group to help stabilize the industry.

Chadbourne put at $2,000,000,000 the capital investment in sugar in Cuba, the United States, and this nation's island possessions, and called sugar's "the worst case of all the great commodities."

It would, he said, be necessary to have almost complete agreement of American producers to the Cuban plan if it were to be made effective. It was believed that whatever the outcome of the conference here, efforts would be made to summon a worldwide conference of sugar producers so that some plan might be agreed on to halt overproduction in the industry.

Progress Being Made on U. S. Steel Oil Option

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 26.—Satisfactory progress is being made in connection with the United States Steel option to purchase the business of Oil Well Supply company, it was announced today by officials of the latter company. Details of the plan are expected to be submitted to stockholders of Oil Well at the special meeting scheduled for Sept. 9.

Mid-Continent and Pure Oil to Share in Pipe Line

Mid-Continent Petroleum and the Pure Oil company are to participate in the gasoline pipe line being constructed by the Barnsdall corporation and Continental Oil company from Oklahoma to large cities in the middle west.

Only 7½¢ on the Dollar from Bankrupts!

The U. S. Bankruptcy Statistics for the year ending June 30, 1929, as analyzed by "Credit Monthly", show only 7.51 per cent Liabilities Paid. That means that creditors get only 7 1-2 cents on the dollar!

American Credit Insurance

Whether the average from bankrupts is 7 cents or 70 cents, a creditor who is a policyholder in the American Company need not worry about the situation at all. If he has sold according to the terms of his policy, we stand all the responsibility, and guarantee payment of bad debt losses beyond the normal.

Free yourself of the worry, responsibility and loss of time connected with bankrupt cases, and leave the latter entirely to us, knowing that your interests are being fully and conscientiously looked after. Let us explain in detail. Our service is for Manufacturers and Jobbers.

CANADA'S CROP POSITION STIRS WHEAT DECLINE

Pool Action Causes Uneasiness Here.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Liquidation by recent buyers of wheat with pressure from local professionals induced by uncertainty regarding the Canadian situation, found support lacking and the close on futures here yesterday was at net losses of 1⅜@1¾c. September finished at 87⅝@87¾c; December, 92½@92⅝c, and May, 99½@99¾c.

Buying against bids and by commission houses on resting orders checked the decline. Winnipeg showed more strength than Chicago early, but was 1¼@2¼c lower at the last, with October leading. The pool was credited with having sold wheat at Winnipeg during the day.

While official announcement was made that the pool would advance its members 60c per bu on No. 1 northern wheat delivered at Fort William nothing was said relative to whether hedging would be done or not, and numerous conflicting reports were received. This tended to create a bearish feeling at times, although as the price is regarded as equal to 45@50c at loading stations in the country the trade felt that comparatively little hedging would have to be indulged in. A Winnipeg message quoted the banks as saying that there were no strings tied to the money that would be advanced to the pool.

Farmers Hedge Wheat.

Canadian farmers are understood to be hedging wheat by sales of futures, and it was claimed that members of the pool were doing likewise, the names of members of their immediate families being used. Part of the weakness in wheat during the day was the result of spreading operations between wheat and corn, with the result that December corn went to a premium over wheat for the first time this season, corn being around ⅝c over wheat at the last.

There was a little improvement in the foreign demand for North American wheat, with 300,000 to 400,000 bu reported sold in all positions, including some hard winter via the Gulf, but the effect of persistent pressure of Russian grain abroad is noted in cables from Liverpool. The latter market closed ⅝@¾d lower, with a slow milling demand a factor. Foreign crop conditions are very spotted. The Bulgarian crop is now estimated at 52,000,000 bu. In Spain the crop is said to be largely straw, with heads poorly filled.

The world's wheat trade seems convinced that there is no possible shortage of supplies for the 1930-'31 season and, with the new Canadian grain now being pressed for sale, buyers are not disposed to take hold except on the sharp breaks.

September Corn Weakens.

Local bulls made several efforts to advance corn prices, but found the weakness in wheat too much of a handicap and the close was ⅝@1¼c lower, with September leading. The latter closed at 97¼@97⅜c, with December, 92⅝@93c, and May, 96¾c. Reports that Argentine corn was offered at 69c c. i. f. New York, or 94c duty paid, and that the foreign grain was going into distribution in south-

Suit Against Warner Bros. Is Dismissed

Dover, Del., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Chief Justice James Penewill, of the Delaware Supreme court, sitting as chancellor, today dismissed the receivership bill filed by Ira I. Nelson of Boston, against Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., and Renwar, Inc.

The bill was dismissed on motion of Hugh H. Morris, counsel for the defendants, who based his motion on the ground the bill "as filed was neither signed nor verified by the complainant, as required by rule 31 of this court."

Warner Denies Charges.

In his petition asking for a receiver, Nelson alleged mismanagement on the part of the officers of the Warner company and excessive expenditures for properties said to have been purchased by Renwar, Inc., a holding company for Warner Brothers.

H. M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., in a statement issued the day Nelson's petition was filed, characterized the allegations as "false and apparently maliciously made," and said the "presumption is the petition was filed for the purpose of injuriously affecting the price of the stock."

Attorney Discusses Suit.

After the dismissal of the suit, Eugene Savory, Wilmington, Del., counsel for Nelson, said the bill had been dismissed "because of certain changes made in it after it was drawn." The changes, he added, were technical in nature and had nothing to do with the principal allegations. He said the bill had been drawn in Massachusetts to conform to the legal procedure of that state and that the changes were necessary because of the difference in procedure in Delaware.

WAR AVIATOR IS PROMOTED BY FINANCE HOUSE

CHARLES E. BRADLEY.

Charles E. Bradley, former Northwestern university athlete and an aviator in the United States army during the war, yesterday was elected vice president of Albert E. Peirce & Co., 105 West Adams street. Mr. Bradley has been in charge of the firm's wholesale department. He was born in Sedan, Kas., and his first job in Chicago was with the Harris Trust and Savings bank. He joined the colors when the country was at war and served as an instructor and experimental pilot while with the army air service. After the war he was with the air mail service operating between Washington and New York. A. R. Hughes will succeed him as head of wholesale distribution.

FOREIGNERS PAY $4,585,000 FOR TALKIE DEVICES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—During the first six months of this year foreign sales of American sound motion picture equipment totaled $4,585,000.

Comparative figures with the same period last year are not available at the commerce department since the talkies are one of the newest commodities in America's foreign trade.

The united kingdom was the best customer, purchasing equipment valued at $1,771,721. France was next with $601,391, and Canada third with $283,847.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 26.—U. S. Steel common up 4 points to a new high for the current movement; Westinghouse, with a net advance of 4⅜; American Can nearly 3 points above its last night's close, the amusement stocks buoyant, the rails showing something of their oldtime vigor, utilities in brisk demand—that's what all the shootin' was about along Wall street today.

The party lasted only an hour or so, it's true, but that was enough to pull the market out of its doldrums and send prices skipping upwards anywhere from 1 to 5 points above their day's lows. It was the best score the bulls have been able to chalk up for themselves, all things considered, for many wearisome days.

Bullish News.

Moreover, there was a good solid budget of "bullish" news to back the demonstration and save it from the mark of artificiality that has shown so plainly on so many other forward moves since the market ran into its slough here some weeks back. To begin with, there were the farm board's estimates of crop prospects for the Mississippi and Missouri valleys, which did much to dispel the fog of gloom and uncertainty caused by the drought scare which has been hanging over the market so heavily. Then there was an announcement that the United States Steel corporation had raised its production rate 4 per cent in the last week—surefire stuff for the bull cause any time.

Around midday word came that the receivership suit against Warner Brothers had been dismissed and a little later the street was apprised of the "bullish" recommendation of the Roger W. Babson statistical organization, which gained such a name for itself last fall by warning of the great market crash which came in October and November.

Looks Important.

All of which looked "important" to the average speculator seeking for a sign and, coming in a bunch, they seemed worth a fling to a considerable element of the fraternity's rear guard,

CHICAGO CURB EXCHANGE STOCKS

Gains in moderate amounts continued to give a good tone to the Chicago curb list yesterday. Nehi and Thermoid preferred were the best performers, while Insull common and preferred rights bulked in volume of business at levels close to the previous finish. Oil and gas issues behaved irregularly, influenced by a drop of almost a point in Standard of Indiana.

Top yesterday, $9.50; average, $8.75.

Receipts at Chicago today, 10,000 cattle, 15,000 hogs, and 15,000 sheep.

Hog prices yesterday recovered 10@15c of the recent sharp loss on Monday's session, closing firm at the upturn when only 15,000 were posted. Top prices are still 55c under the high spot last Thursday, but show gains of $1.60 compared with 18 days ago. The peak reached $11.35, while the general average moved up 15c at $9.95.

Outside demand continues good and, with choice grades scarce, the price range has reached the widest point of the year. The extreme range from rough heavy "packers" to top light covers $3.45. Two weeks ago the spread was $2.20. During the last two weeks outsiders have purchased 24 per cent of Chicago receipts. A year ago this week only 16 per cent was sold to shippers.

Hog Futures Active.

The hog futures market continued active and steady. Buying again centered on December contracts at $9.00, light and mediums going at this figure, while heavy grades for the same month brought $9.10. September mediums reached $10.50. On the "to arrive" market, lightweights for today's delivery were bid $11.35, mediums, $11.00, and heavy grades, $10.35. Bids for feeding lambs for September delivery were bid $7.00@7.50.

Cattle reached a new high on the present bulge, the top going to $12.10. Prices show gains of $1.50@2.50 compared with the low spot two weeks ago yesterday. Better grades showed the improvement, while medium kinds were comparatively slow towards the close.

Steers Top List.

Sixty-one steers averaging 1,134@1,290 lbs topped the list at $12.10, while $12.00 sales were numerous. Prime 1,376 lb averages sold at this figure, and 1,656 lb averages brought $11.85. Western range cattle are selling $1.00 above a week ago, best steers going at $9.00, and feeders at $8.00. Cows and heifers were mostly steady. Calves were unchanged.

An increase of 45 per cent in sheep receipts in two days compared with a week ago sent lamb prices down 50c more yesterday, with the two day loss amounting to 75c to $1.25. The $10.00 quotation vanished when "hand picked" native ewe and wether lambs sold at $9.75@9.90.

Feeding Lamb Demand Good.

"Tops" from 22,000 western range lambs sold at $9.60 and below, 35 carloads going to buyers during the afternoon rounds. Aged sheep and yearlings were scarce, but ruled weak to 25c lower. Demand for feeding lambs continued good at $7.25@7.75, with $8.00 the peak for fancy selections.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 10,000 cattle, 15,000 hogs, and 15,000 sheep, against 10,452 cattle, 14,676 hogs, and 16,921 sheep the previous Wednesday, and 13,320 cattle, 20,245 hogs, and 18,993 sheep a year ago.

HIGH PERCENTAGE OF LOANS TO COTTON FARMERS

The proposition of the farm board to loan 90 per cent of cotton value to farmers combined with higher Liverpool cables with an advance of from 20 to 30 points, with spot sales of 3,000 bales, was the basis for active buying and an advance of 50 points or more in the different markets. The close was at a small reduction from the top due to profit taking. There was active new buying, covering by shorts and a good market throughout. Hedging pressure was fair sized and well absorbed, and new buying came into the market. Moderate to heavy rains fell in Texas, but elsewhere the cotton belt was dry. Net gains on futures in Chicago were from 29 to 37 points and in other markets from 43 to 50 points. Spots advanced 30 points with New York 11.75c, New Orleans 11.70c, Galveston 11.40c, and Houston 11.50c. It is claimed that cotton prices are relatively lower than any other commodity. This is being given attention by the trade and creates a more friendly feeling to the buying side on breaks. Prices:

AGGRESSIVE SALESMEN.

2 hustlers, capable of organizing a field force on road; you should act immediately; good territory yet available; commission and bonus. 108 N. Wells. Room 1822.

An Excellent Position

Our national organization includes several hundred men who started with us without selling experience. These men have been with us from two to five years; today they make from $3,000 to $7,000 a year. They made between $20 and $50 a week at the start, devoting 100% of their time to selling. Today they devote 95% of their time to taking repeat orders, 5% to new prospects.

Men who have sold insurance, bonds, books, real estate, house to house with us have found selling pleasant work for the first time. Weekly earnings have been as steady and dependable as a salary. Men with selling experience, especially those with inside retail store experience, frequently double their incomes in a few months' time.

It costs us around $200 to employ, train and start a new salesman. We do not leave his success to chance, but carefully school him in our business. Age or experience doesn't seem to matter, provided the man is ambitious, a hard worker, well dressed and mentally alert. The work involves calling on men at their stores or offices.

Guilty Out of City

New York, Aug. 27.—[Special.] the face of charges of graft and regularity that have been piling for many months, Mayor Ja Walker today called in the heads more than one hundred civic and b ness organizations, admitted graft was widespread and called u them to help his administration st out corruption.

The mayor's talk followed a mys announcement that invitations been sent to heads of civic gro Many of the invited guests, who k nothing of the nature of the mee until they heard the mayor's spe continued the mystery by saying knew nothing that they could d response to the mayor's appeal aid.

The mayor asked that the citi aid in ferreting out corruption bring the evidence direct to him.

Promise to Run Down Report

"If you will do that," he said, will put special investigators on job. And I will guarantee to run men who are guilty out of the ser and out of the city."

While the mayor was talking ficial inquiries were being speeded
